CANVASS SHOWS ONLY SLIGHT CHANGE LECTURE TOUCHED THE HEART STRINGS

KABOTH HOLDS HIS OWN, BUT CARNEY VOTE SHOWS A QUEER DISCREPANCY

No change was found by the board of canvassers yesterday in the checking up of the vote between Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Kaboth for the city council.

Mr. Schmidt said again yesterday that he is firmly resolved not to ask for a legal recount of the ballots, and intimated that this would be his course even if he was assured that the new deal would seat him in the council chamber.

In the First ward the canvass of the votes in the contest between Mr. Carney and Mr. Karinen showed a change—rather a peculiar change. By it Mr. Carney lost three votes, leaving him only a majority of one over Mr. Karinen.

In this precinct Mr. Carney had received 145 votes and Mr. Karinen 141, according to the figures turned into the city auditor by the judges of the election. But in adding up the check marks the canvassers yesterday found that (apparently) there had been an error in adding up the checks, and that a proper adding of the check marks showed that Mr. Karinen had received three more votes than the judges had credited him with when they tallied up the tabs.

But unfortunately the matter is not simplified by the action of the canvassers. They could do nothing but add up what they found before them, and in so adding they found that Mr. Karinen should be credited with three more votes than he first was given. It was not for them to express any opinion, or to try to go back of the returns.

There were two tally sheets, as provided by law. One of these was turned in to the city auditor. The other is still retained by the judges and clerks. They don't agree. The one that was turned into the city auditor showed the three extra votes. The one that was retained by the judges and clerks does not show these three extra votes. In other words, one of the tally sheets shows that Mr. Karinen got 141 votes; the other sheet shows that he got 144 votes. The one that shows the 144 votes happened to be the one handed into the city auditor and therefore the canvassers had to go by it. But even this sheet showed a total, as added by the judges and clerks of only 131 votes.

SCHOLARLY NORWEGIAN ORATOR DELIVERS ADDRESS TO HIS COUNTRYMEN.

Peter Svensen, a Norwegian gentleman, a scholar, a fine orator, and a former member of the Norwegian parliament, delivered an address in the First Methodist church last night to an audience that filled the place.

Mr. Svensen said he was glad to see so many of his countrymen and women here, and he advised none of them to return to the old country. Let the young men and the old take out their citizenship papers, and become good American citizens, he declared.

Many, he said, had come out here years ago and have never gone back, and he did not want them to think that Norway has not prospered and progressed in that time. The problem of finding bread and prosperity for all those who are now there is being met, he said. But let the young men who are here not forget to write back home to the old folks.

Mr. Svensen spoke of the temperance question. He told of the temperance question in Norway. There the people have voted, practically, to do away with drink altogether.

came over to this country as a delegate to a convention several months ago, and he said he liked the big country. The above running account of a few of the things he touched upon probably will not prove a very accurate rendering to those who heard the address, as it was written merely from a short account given of the address by one who heard it.
