OCEAN, BAR,
BAY, DOCK
AND RIVER

In charge of Captain Vogt, the converted sloop Gazelle arrived here from Portland Yaquina Bay yesterday afternoon. The Gazelle has been reconstructed and is now classed as a deep sea fishing craft. She was launched Wednesday afternoon at the Graham yards. The Gazelle was built in 1905 and carried passengers during the 1905 fair. Later she was engaged in the freight business between Portland and Vancouver.

It is the intention of the owners of the Gazelle, Captain Vogt and Captain Richard Obie, to engage in the fishing business off the Oregon banks during the Spring and Summer. Both Captain Vogt and his partner are old-timers in the art of deepsea fishing, and they expect to make a good clean-up in the Fall.

The steamship Roanoke, due in this port from the California coast tomorrow, is to be equipped at an early day with a brand new set of boilers, now awaiting her at the Risdon Iron Works in San Francisco. It is not known just when she will be laid off for this equipment, but when she is, it will take the better part of three months to install the boilers, and no word has been given out as yet as to what steamer, if any, is to take her place on the coast run.

The steamship Geo. W. Elder is due to leave out for Eureka, San Francisco and Port Los Angeles, from the Callender pier this morning at 6 o'clock.

The steamer Alliance will leave out for the Coos country, from the Callender dock this morning at 6 o'clock, on her usual Sunday schedule.

The government fire patrol boat, the Haskell, which headquarters at Fort Stevens, will berth at the Callender docks in this city hereafter when in port, the contract to this end having been closed here yesterday between the fort authorities and the Callender Navigation Company. Captain Neals is in command of her.

Yesterday morning Captain Robert Jones, of the steamer Argo filed his resignation with his owners, and the same was duly accepted. He is succeeded by Captain Edward Anderson, who immediately qualified at the Custom House and assumed command. The Argo is billed to depart for Tillamook Bay points at 5 o'clock this morning.

The steamer Wellesley got away over the bar yesterday, on her way to San Pedro, with a mixed cargo of wheat and lumber.

The fine new launch Nora was busy speeding up yesterday around the bay, preparatory to her trial run today from this city to Stella, the home of her owners, Messrs. Strumier & Horton, and return. She is working like a charm and it would not surprise anyone familiar with her and her fine engine, the 75 h. p. Troyer-Fox, if she made a record of some importance today.

The steamer Riverside arrived down early yesterday morning and docked at the A. & C. wharf, where she took on 3500 cases of salmon for the east for the Alaska Fishermen's Packing Company, and 1200 cases for the Sanborn-Cutting interests; and then left for the lower harbor on her way to sea. It is presumed she got out, but it is not confirmed.

Captain E. Bjorn, of San Francisco, arrived here yesterday, to take over the command of the fine schooner W. F. Jewett, now lying in the "Bryan" boneyard up Young's Bay, relieving Captain Abrahamson of the charge. The Jewett has not been chartered and will stay where she is for some time longer.

C. D. Kenedy of Portland, resident agent there for the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company, was in the city, having come down to see to the shipments of salmon on the company's coast tender, the Riverside.

The S. F. & J. steamship Senator, Captain Nopander, arrived down early yesterday morning, with 182 passengers on board and plenty of freight, and took four more steerage passengers from here, including two Hindus. She went to sea in due course.

Mr. Voss, second officer of the Argo goes out as chief officer for the trip to Tillamook and back after which he will be succeeded by Mr. Dexter, late of the steamer Alliance.

The schooner William Bowden, after a week's delay here on account of a stormy bar, went to sea yesterday on the line of the dandy Wallula, on her way to San Pedro. The steamer Cascades preceded her over the bar.

The Norwegian steamship Elsa was among the get-aways from this port yesterday, leaving out for Dunedin, New Zealand, with her great cargo of lumber.

The steamship Argyle entered port yesterday morning, from the California coast, and went on to up river points, without any delay here.

COURT SHOWS LENIENCY TO PRIVATE HALL

YOUNG SOLDIER WHO HAD THREATENED HAMMOND MARSHAL GETS FINED.

Private Arthur N. Hall of Fort Stevens, who was arrested recently on a charge of an assault against the town marshal at Hammond, yesterday pleaded guilty to the charge against him and was fined $25 by Judge McBride. The grand jury investigated the matter and returned a true bill against the young soldier, but because of certain extenuating circumstances the charge brought was only a misdemeanor—that of pointing a revolver toward the marshal.

But the one thing that helped the young man out was the fact that he has heretofore borne an excellent reputation, and that two of the officials at the fort thought enough of him to personally come to the city to plead that his sentence be made light as possible. Letters from two of the officials were read in court yesterday when the young man's case came up, and after District Attorney Tongue had explained the nature of the case to the court, Private Hall was asked if he had anything he wished to say.

He is a boyish looking fellow of 21 years. His home is in Rainier, and he is of good family. Those who looked at him in court yesterday could not help but wonder how such a boyish looking fellow—good looking, with dark eyes, and the kind of a boy whose appearance somewhat indicated that he had a good mother—how he could have gone on the wild jamboree at Hammond and threatened to kill the marshal. But the young soldier soon explained.

"I was drunk. I didn't know what I was doing."

"But," he added to the court, "if you can help me out a little this time I promise never to do such a thing again. I am sorry," he went on, "and I am ashamed."

"I am an old man and you are young," said Judge McBride to the boy. "I never yet have known of a case where drink helped any man to progress, to get along, to rise higher in the world. On the contrary, I have known many cases where it has dragged men down, and ruined them. With you this might have been a very serious matter, and the end might have been prison. But I am disposed to be lenient as you ask with the hope that you will remember in the future to be careful. The judgment of the court is that you pay a fine of $25."

Judge McBride spoke very kindly to the boy, and if his remarks did not impress the trim looking young soldier they nevertheless did impress the others who heard them—and probably had their effect upon the prisoner. Judge Page appeared for young Hall.

The facts of the matter appear to have been that Private Hall and several of his comrades were beastly drunk, and Hall might have shot and killed the marshal. The soldiers ought to have been ashamed of their whole visit to the little city, and of course that was not the first time wild orgies of that nature have occurred there.

Another side of the soldier story is that sometimes they are not wholly to blame. Shut up as they are for weeks at a time, they turn to the saloons for recreation when they come to town, and sometimes they get into the wrong places. Sometimes one may see a soldier perfectly sober one minute and ten minutes later find him in a condition that may be both murderous and beastly. Whisky or beer alone didn't transform them in a moment to wild beasts.

BELLIGERENT NINE.

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—Proprietors of a saloon in Kenosha, Wis., have started a prohibition law of their own refusing to sell liquor to nine habitually thirsty men of the town. The blacklisted nine are highly indignant and have threatened legal proceedings. It is said other names will be added when the list is in good working order.
