

The Daily Market Report

PORTLAND, March 19.—Dealers report potatoes moving freely now, for the most part to the south, and they look for a continuance of activity until a considerable portion of the crop available in the state in market. The chances are that this week's shipments will be the heaviest for a single week in more than a month. A fairly strong demand in California and a more or less general disposition on the part of the growers to sell are the factors that have brought about this situation. Whether the movement south will within the next week or two assume such proportions as to cause a temporary weakening there remains to be seen. There is fear of this in some quarters.

Little Poultry Coming In.
As usual at this time of the year, receipts of poultry are light and the market as a result is steady to strong at the prices that have ruled for several days. The demand of course is chiefly for hens and chickens.

Dealers in country dressed meats report trade active and the market strong. For best quality pork and veal the demand is good, and even medium-grade stuff moves in a way. There were no developments in the butter market. Though the supply is still short generally, production is steadily increasing and the outlook is for a decline, probably next week.

Four Cars of Oranges in.
Carlot receipts from the South today included four cars of oranges. The market was reported firm, with no changes in prices.
Apples still move in a slow way at prices ranging from $1 to $2.50 for the most part, but it is believed that the bulk of the stock in the country tributary to this city has been cleaned up.

White California asparagus was quoted at 11 to 12 cents today and the green sort at 15 cents, with the supply adequate.

Vegetables of all sorts were fairly active and yesterday's prices generally prevailed.

Why experiment with your health? Insist upon having the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar. T. F. Laurin, Owl Drug Store.

A SUNDAY STROLL.

This Recreation Was at One Time Unlawful in Maine.
Something of the exact behavior demanded from young people by those in authority in the early days of the nineteenth century is brought to notice in the biography of Peter Edes, a pioneer printer in Maine. Mr. Edes had an apprentice, James Orocco, who enjoyed a walk on Sunday after a week of indoor employment.
Mr. Edes soon found out that this was not permitted at Bangor and wrote to a friend of the trouble caused him by his apprentice's apparently innocent amusement.
"You must know," he writes, "that the people are very strict on this day and will not let men walk out, much less boys. James was strolling about and was ordered home by the tything men, but he would not obey them. A complaint was lodged against me on the next day, and I should have been obliged to pay a fine had not Judge Dutton pleaded in my behalf that I did not approve of such conduct and so got clear."
Another interesting incident in connection with life in Bangor at this time is an advertisement which appeared in Mr. Edes' paper, the Bangor Weekly Register, stating that "E. & M. R. Edes have opened a school in the room over the Register office for the instruction of young misses and small children in the useful and ornamental branches of education."
The terms were: "Orthography and plain work, 17 cents per week; writing, English grammar, geography with the use of maps, composition, ornamental needlework, 25 cents per week." This was probably one of the first schools in Maine for teaching young ladies exclusively in the branches of education and also including plain work and fancy needlework.
