 Some of the new directoire bonnets resemble those worn by Salvation Army women. Every directoire piece of headgear should be tied with soft, wide strings, and the most fascinating ones are of black velvet ribbon.

is more popular, owing to its agreement with the classicism that prevails in dress. The woman past the first brilliancy of youth should know also that diamonds are less becoming to her than pearls and emeralds unless her hair be white, and then she cannot do wrong in choosing diamonds for her ears.
 The costume illustrated may be made of cloth, linen, pique or any material with considerable body. The back gore of the skirt and girdle are cut in one, which is a feature of the spring models. The waist is simple and can be fashioned either with buttoned leg of mutton or shirt waist sleeves.

 GIRLS' AND CHILD'S RUSSIAN DRESS.
 Paris Pattern No. 2583.
 All Seams Allowed.

Developed in dark green serge, this is a simple and serviceable little frock for every-day and school wear. The model is a slight variation the usual style of Russian dress and is extremely becoming to the growing girl. The front is gathered and three box-plaits, stitched a few inches below the waist line give the required fullness to the back. The sleeves are gathered into shaped cuffs of the material and the dress is fastened at the left side of the front with serge-covered buttons. The narrow belt, which is passed through straps at the under-arm seams, may be of the material or of leather. The pattern is in six sizes—2 to 12 years. For a girl of 8 years the dress requires 3 1/2 yards of material 27 inches wide, 2-7-8 inches wide or 2 1/2 yards 42 inches wide. Price of pattern, 10 cents.

FADS AND FASHIONS

NEW YORK, March 27.—There is still great uncertainty in regard to the changes of styles which Spring and Summer will bring. Authorities disagree in many important points and features and the large mass of women who imitate, but do not originate fashions, is anxiously awaiting developments. Judging from the models which have arrived here from Paris the fashions for the coming Spring and Summer, although still showing Directoire influence, will represent a greatly modified and far more practical form of that style.

The plain skirt, many fashion experts think, has come to stay, at least until thinner fabrics prove impracticable for such development, and the four-gored one is the newest type. This means that the gores will be wider at the top, giving less flare at the bottom than the former many-gored models. Skirts will still be clinging, but not quite so much as they used to be during the winter.
 They fit over the hips as smoothly as ever and show very little trimming. The inevitable fold is absent from the bottom of the skirt, but a plainer, possibly more severe effect, is seen in its place. For instance, the gores at about flounce depth are so cut that last extends some inches over the widths next to it and these widths overlap the next ones and so on. The seams are sometimes sewed outside that is, the edges turned under lap fashion, and again, they overlay with a narrow strapping. It may be stated that much of the narrow strapping or short tab straps are in evidence on a number of the new models.
 The new coats are from 34 to 36 inches long, are semi-fitting and finished with long sleeves. The very latest comers are collarless, even in severely tailored styles, and the necks are trimmed with flat pieces of velvet satin or silk about two inches wide. This is either strapped in with the goods or with braid a little less than an inch wide and black in tone.
 The most noticeable thing among the new materials for tailoring is the invasion of the silk and wool mixtures and the silk which here as in other provinces of fashion are demanding recognition and deserving it. Silk and wool bengalines in one tone bayadere stripes—a silk stripe or group of stripes on a fine wool ground—are shown in all the modish shades and are particularly good in some of the graver or beige tones and the grays. These are often matched with plain fine wool, the stripe material being used only for the coat.
 Satin striped prunelles are another and not too expensive silk and wool class of tailor fabrics and at a higher price one finds what the manufacturers have called a satin serge, a beautiful material extremely soft, yet firm, woven like wool serge with a fine twill, and having a satin finish. This satin serge is an admirable material for the one-piece frock and coat models through which the tailors are now making inroads upon the dress-makers' territory, and the new silk and wool satin cloth, a very lightweight, soft fabric with high satin lustre of surface and wool back is another material much favored for dressy costumes of this type, though according to old traditions, it has not the accepted tailor air of the satin serge.
 Directoire cloth, slightly heavier than satin cloth and with a lustre less pronounced, is also popular with the tailors and there are many corded materials in silk and wool all grouped under the head of cotele and some of them practical for tailor costumes, while others are excessively sheer. This cord idea extends into the all-silk fabrics too, ranging from the all-wool stuffs of Bedford cord type through the silk and wool bengalines, etc., to the all-silk bengalines, the Ottomans, the failles and the cotele shantungs and tussors.
 Ottoman will be extensively used not only for trimming of tailored costumes, but for whole costumes as well, and indications are that we shall see a very large number of Ottoman silk coats in combination with one-piece frocks of lightweight wool or plain silken stuff. Attractive separate coats of Ottoman are being made by some of the authoritative tailors and while cut on the newest lines are as a rule severely tailored in air, though they are frequently adorned by handsome buttons and ornaments made from the silk or of a passementerie sort. Braiding embellishes some of these Ottoman coats, but some of the best models of such coats were decorated only with stunning buttons and fastenings.
 All of the pongee weaves are very popular and they fully deserve their popularity. The material is shown in an amazing variety this season, and while many of the weaves are too light and soft for practical tailored uses, there are plenty of others admirably adapted for such purposes.

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER

Free to You and Every Sister Suffering from Woman's Ailments.
 I am a woman. I know woman's sufferings. I have found the cause. I will tell you. I will tell you of any change, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from woman's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—see, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourselves at home without the help of a doctor. I want to understand woman's sufferings. What we women know how to cure, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is safe and sure cure for Leucorrhoea or White Discharge, Bleeding or Falling of the Womb, Protrusion of the Uterus, Painful Periods, Stiffness of the Neck, or Swelling of the Feet, or any other ailment of women.
