HANDLE SHEEP GENTLY.—Not even a cow, says the Western Rural, should receive gentler handling than the sheep. Kindness is well repaid by any of our domestic animals, but the sheep being so shy an animal, it requires special exhibition or kindness. It should be so handled and treated that it never be frightened at the approach of a person. Their treatment should be such that they will actually learn to entertain an affection for the keeper, and if they do they will naturally be tame and docile. A flock of wild sheep is about the most unprofitable investment that farmers can make. They are continually getting into trouble, and causing great annoyance, it not less to their owner. We have seen some flocks jump into a flock and pull and haul the sheep by the wool, until the animals were not only half frightened to death, but received great injury otherwise. A sheep should never be caught or lifted by the wool. Some one has said that if any one doubts the propriety of lifting sheep by the wool, let him permit himself to be lifted by the hair, and it is a good suggestion. When sheep are thus caught or lifted the skin in some instances is actually torn from the flesh, and if the injury is not to that extent it cannot but affect the flesh to some degree. Sheep should be lifted by placing the arms around the body and near the forelegs. This is the easiest way to do, especially with large sheep. To catch the animal, the hands should be thrown about the neck or else the sheep should be caught by the hind leg immediately above the hock. This latter may be done with hand or the crook, and when this way is adopted the utmost gentleness should be observed and the sheep drawn gently back until the other hand can reach the neck. It is scarcely necessary to remind the keeper that when the crook is used upon the sheep, which is closely surrounded by other sheep, that great care must be exercised lest the other sheep jump against the one caught or against the crook, in which case severe damage may be done.

Have you enemies? Go straight on and mind them not. If they block up your path, walk around them, and do your duty regardless of their spite.

A man who has no enemies is seldom good for nothing; he is made of that kind of material which is so easily worked that every one has a hand in it. A sterling character—one who thinks for himself and speaks what he thinks—is always sure to have enemies. It is as necessary to him as fresh air to keep him alive and active. A celebrated character, who was surrounded with enemies, used to remark: "They are sparks which if you do not blow, will go out themselves." Let this be your feeling while endeavoring to live down the scandal of those who are bitter against you. If you stop to dispute, you do as they desire, and open the way to more abuse. Let the poor fellows talk; there will be a reaction if you perform but your duty, and hundreds who were once alienated from you will flock to you and acknowledge their error.

There is great excitement in Denver over a new discovery of gold near the mouth of the canyon of the Platte, a mile from the South Park railroad and only twenty miles west of Denver. A vein of mineral was struck in the Dolly Varden mine at a depth of twenty feet last Friday, and a specimen was brought to Denver and an assay obtained on Saturday, the assay giving the value of the ore at $21,199 per ton, 320,176 of it being sold. A publication of the facts was made in one of the papers on Sunday morning, and before night 100 persons were on the spot. Up to the present date 200 persons have visited the place and 200 locations have been made.
