COUNTY NEWS.

Wm. Lee, the boss Veterinary Surgeon of the Pacific Coast called on us last Wednesday. It is four years since we first met Dr. Lee, at which time he performed an operation on a horse so successfully that the horse was worked every day in the team. He will spend several weeks in this county performing operations on cattle and horses. The horse is no boaster but is a surgeon can be relied on and always gets to do the second time he goes to place than he did the first, for his works he is known.

The Brass Band of this place gave their first serenade on last Saturday evening. After playing a few tunes in the Hotel they repaired to the veranda in front of the residence of the editor hereof and discoursed several tunes much to the satisfaction of citizens of Canyon City. We have heard a number of bands but never have we heard one that has learned so rapidly as the band in this town.

Last Friday while the News was being run off Willie Laswell innocently placed his hand on the press and as the forms were run in his finger was caught and badly skinned up. It perfectly unintentional on the part of the pressman.

Geo. P. Rowell's Newspaper Directory for 1880 is on our table, and is one of the most complete ones ever published and no business man that desires to advertise much should be without a copy. Rowell & Co. are always in the lead.

Do not fail to read the advertisements of L. D. Frank, J. Van Beurden and Hodge, Davis & Co., in THE NEWS, also a description of their respective places of business in this issue.

We acknowledge the receipt of a complimentary ticket to the Union County Fair which commences on the 11th of October and continues six days. They have good Fairs.

Mr. M. V. Thompson and wife have taken up their abode in this place and the City Hotel now has an excellent landlady. Welcome.

It is with pleasure that we call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Shindler & Chadbourne. A faint description of the store and goods will be found in another column.

Boys read the ad. of Wm. Beck & Son in this paper.

W. L. Burnham and F. M. Ish made this office a call last Monday.

"Papa don't get drunk any more since he commenced using Dandelion Bitters."

THE NEWS MAN AWAY FROM HIS PAPER AND COUNTRY.

The last letter I wrote was from The Dalles just after our arrival there and before I had seen much of the town. Well, as it was the glorious Sabbath and Conference in session I concluded to take a rest and also take in the Church doings of the day, but on meeting a brother traveler by the name of Chas. Sears, formerly of the S. F. Chronicle but now a civil engineer for Theilson, and as a consequence became deeply engaged in discussing the R. R. prospects of Eastern Oregon and other matters dinner was called ere we were aware of the lateness of the hour. After dinner I, in company with Rev. McKean attended the M. E. Sunday School. There I noticed a dozen or more Indians that seemed enjoy the ceremonies of the afternoon hugely. The house was filled with pleasant people and the school was very interesting. At the night service a sermon was preached by Rev. Turner, several Ministers ordained as Elders and the appointments for the conference year read. On Monday morning I started out to see what I could see, and soon seen that I was at the Mountaineer Office and so stepped in and had a "chat with the boys". Mr. Hand has the most complete office in Eastern Oregon, and is the only one that has a power press and the beauty is he runs it by water power. I next went to J. Selling's, "the printers' friend" where is to be found an immense stock of all kinds of goods. Next is Mr. L. D. Frank, the saddler, and I was very much surprised to find so large and so well selected a stock as he carries in fact it is as he says. The room is large and commodious and every article is so arranged that the buyer is enabled at a glance to see what he is buying. I also took a hurried inspection of the stores of Mr. Moody, Mr. Bleumar & Son, and Mr. Miller's, and whose advertisements will appear in THE NEWS as soon as the gentlemen send them, at which time an insight to their respective stores will be given. In sauntering around town The News man noticed a fashionable Millinery Store and stepping in I was pleased to find that the proprietress was none other than Mrs. Glover, formerly of Baker City. Her advertisement will appear soon. After attending to the advertising business I went to the shops of O. R. N. Co., where they have about 300 men employed and I was informed that on that day they had started, and completed two cars and would finish the third. I could see at a glance that it was a big thing for The Dalles, and for the whole of Wasco County. The people of Oregon are surely great debtors to the O. S. N. Co. for the money they have caused to be thrown in this upper country, and particularly should The Dalles hold it in great regard as it has surely been the making, light and life of that town. I also visited that day the Empire and Times offices and found the boys happy, busy and hearty. Next I went to the office of the Prineville and Canyon City Stage Line where I found the gentlemanly agent, Mr. Martin Van Buren Dunlap, neatly fixed in a desirable room. He informed me that the business of the line had increased considerably lately, and, also, that Canyon City was now second in prominence to the line. The Dalles being first.

Tuesday Morning I took passage on the Mountain Queen for Portland and as we went steaming down the Columbia memory carried me back to my native State, and to the many, many, happy hours I had spent on the "Old Des Moines" and Mississippi Rivers; and also to the fact that the man most prominent in establishing the O. S. N. Co., was a leading Captain at one time on those self same rivers, and that his name is yet fresh and honored by the old settlers of my native town; it is needless to say that I refer to Capt. Ainsworth, Sr., but such were my thoughts and they were pleasant. Breakfast was announced and I assure you I did full justice to the meal.

The day was very smoky and in consequence thereof all the beautiful mountain scenery was veiled so that all on board had to be content with viewing the banks on either side of the river. Soon the Cascades were reached and all freight, baggage and passengers leave the boat and board the cars and are swiftly carried around the fierce waters of the rough, rugged and dangerous cascades. Arriving at the lower end another transfer is made from the train to the beautiful, new boat, the "Wide West," a different moving vessel from the upper boat. Her motion was hardly perceptible, so easily did she glide over the water. On the Wide West I met Clarence White, formerly of Baker City, but now freight Clerk on the boats from Portland to The Dalles. He had one of Job's afflictions on his neck that was no pleasant pet.

Dinner was in keeping with the style of the boat—first class. After a few times landing we hove in sight of Vancouver where is to be seen a Fort and Barracks that every soldier is glad to be stationed at. Vancouver is a pretty town and pleasantly situated. After leaving the landing hotel runners appear plentiful and with the exception of the "Clarendon" nearly every Hotel in Portland is represented, and about the only way to get rid of them is to tell them in the start that you stop with Al. Zeiber & Charlie Knowels, or for short at The Clarendon. After leaving the Columbia the boat stems the current of the Willamette for a while and the whistle is blown for Portland and all passengers gather on deck to get a sight of the Metropolis of Oregon. The approaching of the boat to the dock is interesting indeed, here and there are large fine sailing vessels, among them I noticed one under the English flag. It was there receiving a cargo of wheat. The Oregon was also at the dock, awaiting her load and sailing day; and a fine vessel she is too. The boat being safely moored at the moorage the passengers are again importuned by "runners," but several of us are comfortably seated in the "Clarendon Coach" and in a few minutes are at the door of a popular hotel where an excellent supper is in waiting. After a rest of an hour I visit the Oregonian building and find Mr. W. D. Palmer, Publisher of The Daily Telegram, and after a few pleasant hours with him and it being bed time I bid him good night and as I shall have to make another letter to complete my trip I will now say good night till next issue.
