OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

COPP'S LAND REVIEW

ELECTRIC FORCE.

Necessity for Extension of Surveys—Increase of Clerical Force in the General Land Office.

A feature of Commissioner Stockinger's report which will be commended by the people of the land states in which public surveys are incomplete, is the recommendation for increased appropriations for surveying public lands, and his remarks in this connection tending to prove that good work can not be done for the price—$1 to $2 per mile—now allowed for surveying.

The act of March 3, 1887, directs that military grants shall be adjusted without delay, and much fault has been found with the Land office for an apparent lack of energy in this direction. It seems that Congress, in its wisdom or lack thereof, or through the excesses of men having power in charge, does not know that it is utterly impossible to adjust the largest grants for the reason that millions of acres of lands lying within the granted and boundary limits are unmeasured, and no appropriation has been made to meet the expense of the surveys absolutely indispensable in the adjustment of the grants. By reason of the failure to survey the lands in these grants the companies are permitted to hold the lands, without taxation, and reap the benefit of the increase in value, while the people along the lines are compelled to carry the entire burden of the local governments. This is a serious evil. It is a great loss to the nation in view of the population, dismembering the western as settled, and denominating by the growth of new villages and towns, the extent of the country, especially the western part.

The President will receive the election returns over the private wire that connects the White House with New York. Dan'l. Darrin will telegraph the returns they are received. As Dan'l. says to follow his chief, I can imagine the Executive office will receive two very nice as hearts on the night of November 6.

HAEMATURIA CONSTITUTIONAL.

Without惊扰, or troubling the system which it takes.

Mrs. W. H. Austin, of this city

(now staying at the International hotel, Portland,) is well known to most of the people here, and it is generally known that she was totally blind for a period of nine months. Her condition was such that during the whole period she wore bandages over her eyes and was kept in a room from which the light was wholly excluded by means of blankets nailed over the windows. Several physicians treated her and gave her no relief. In May last she visited Dr. Darrin and after the first treatment of electro-magnetism was able to remove the bandages. After three weeks she walked home alone from the doctor's office, corner Fifth and Main streets, Portland, being able to see clearly, and is now entirely cured.

Mr. JOHN GUTMANN, Sherman, Minn., writes:

"St. Jacobs Oil cures me of toothache in ten minutes."

Mr. WENLEY POWE, Waynesboro, Va., writes:

"My wife suffered with toothache. Nothing gave her relief. She tried St. Jacobs Oil and was cured at once."

Mr. GEORGE W. HARRIS, Hagerstown, Md., writes:

"For toothache tried St. Jacobs Oil. It gave instant relief. Consider it a wonderful remedy."
