The Crown Prince's Wedding.
 The formal way in which the late Archduke Rudolph of Austria won the Archduchess Stephanie was a curious illustration of purely royal. At an entertainment at the Palace Rudolph and the Princess found themselves for a moment alone. The Prince seizing the opportunity and preserving the courtly style which is nowhere more rigorous than at Vienna, said: "Madame will you have me for your husband?" The reply was simplicity itself: "Yes, monseigneur." "Your highness" answered makes me very happy," rejoined the Prince, and she added: "And I promise you under all circumstances I will do my duty." This was all and they went out together to rejoin the royal family, when Prince Rudolph said to the king: "Sire with your majesty's permission, I have asked the Princess Stephanie to accept me as her husband. I have the pleasure to announce to your majesty that my proposal has been accepted." "I am happy, monseigneur, to receive you as my son-in-law," answered the king, and that ended it.

It has recently been decided by the department at Washington, and the decision is on file, that if a person files a timber application in the United States land office for a tract of land for timber land, and does not for any reason make his proofs, he has exhausted his rights.
