

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Court commences to-day. An other session four months hence. Wednesday evening Michael Hedman returned after an absence of almost a year in the east. The bottom was knocked out of the heavens Saturday night, and didn't it rain in good shape for a few hours!

Overholt & Muldrick did not get a large assay from their rock which they sent away, but that fact of itself does not signify that there is nothing in it.

We place on our exchange list the "Harney Press," published at the county seat of Harney county, by T. H. Roberts, the first number of which reached this office by Saturday's mail.

The law is not vindicated yet. Not until the brutal murder of John Bronklee is avenged, will the people of Grant county feel that the hand of justice has dealt in accordance with the eternal fitness of all things.

Frank McCallum has started a small business at John Day, but "large oaks from small acorns grow," and in time he expects to carry a larger and more varied assortment. See his "ad" under "New to-day."

And now the report comes that twelve human skeletons have been found in the swamps of Harney county. Of course many people will be ready to believe that they are the remains of "settlers murdered by wealthy stockmen."

I. H. Wood has gone over to Prineville in response to a subpoena calling him there to identify some horses which were stolen from him some years ago. The thief has been arrested, but in the event that Mr. Wood recovers the animals the trouble and cost will almost equal their value.

The grand jury that is to be drawn to-day will be confronted with the Sullivan case, and when furnished with a copy of the testimony of the defendant, and when taking all things into consideration their finding can be nothing different from the verdict of the coroner's jury—murder in the first degree.

The East Oregon Herald says: "Two men traveling in two-horse spring wagon, and named A. J. Griffin, from Mt. Home, and R. F. Whitney, from Brune, Idaho, came into the office last Thursday to examine the fine grain exhibit." Was the two-horse wagon named A. J. Griffin? Or did they travel into your office in a two-horse spring wagon? By an immediate explanation you will confer a great favor.

What was left of Pat McGinnis after the State of Oregon got done with him was buried last Friday on the hill outside the cemetery adjoining the grave of Cain, the first murderer (hold on! We have no reference to Cain the first murderer in the world. Read on) ever executed in Grant county by the proper authorities. Thus the two executed murderers lie side by side, and Pete Sullivan in due time will make the third.

The "Harney Press" of April 25,—and its information must have been conveyed by slow freight—says: "The GRANT COUNTY NEWS says at an early hour Monday forenoon, a man known as Peter Sullivan came into town and surrendered himself to the authorities, saying that he had killed Broncho Bill at his cabin on Pine creek." Now, we propose to say that the NEWS never uttered such a sentence as the above; never said anything about "Broncho Bill." There has not been a man by that name in Grant county since our recollection.

Because every third man you meet in Harney county is sailing under the cognomen of "Buccaroo Jim," "Scarface Charley," "One-fingered Tabby," "Wild Bill," etc., it is no reason that the residents of Grant county should be falsely accused of carrying unlawful names, or that the name of the GRANT COUNTY NEWS should be taken in vain. The man killed was John Bronklee, as stated in the NEWS, and not "Broncho Bill," as the Harney paper had it.

In digging the grave for McGinnis, Tom Reynolds dug too close and ran into the coffin of Cain, who was hanged here in 1865, for the murder of a man named Watson, the particulars of which murder as related to the NEWS man by residents of the city who were present at the time are as follows: Cain had worked for Watson in a claim above town for a while and had quit and gone to work in a claim of his own. Watson could not pay him his wages in gold in full at the time he quit, but promised to square up as soon as he could, and told Cain that he could borrow the money and pay him in greenbacks, which were at that time—1864—worth only a few cents on the dollar. Cain told him if he "greenbacked" him he intended to kill him. Cain sued Watson and obtained judgment. Watson, through his attorney settled with Cain in greenbacks, and Cain immediately hunted up Watson and shot him dead. Cain was tried and executed by due process of law. Tom Reynolds buried him 24 years ago, and also buried McGinnis last Friday.

A large number of persons had a lasting impression made on their minds in witnessing the execution of Pat McGinnis last Friday. After a few more such impressions are made in Grant county the majority of the bold bad men will either have been hanged, or learned to respect and obey the law of our land.

The supreme court has modified the judgment of the circuit court for Klamath county in the case of Grant county vs Lake county, on account of indebtedness assumed by the latter when Warner valley was attached to it. BEAR VALLEY BUTTERFLIES.

April 29, 1889.

EDITOR GRANT CO. NEWS: Perhaps a few items from Bear valley would interest some of your readers. We have had a very fine rain, grass is growing fine and stock of all kind looks well.

There are about 100 acres of ground seeded down to grain in the valley this spring.

We have one school now in full blast, being taught by Miss Mack of Prairie City, and another school will be started in a few days.

Considerable improvements is being made in the valley in the way of fencing, building, and plowing.

Now, Mr. Editor, what we want, is a few more bona-fide settlers—no more land sharks or non-residents. Of those kind we have plenty and some to spare, or would have them if they would only even live on their land they pretend to hold and prove up on. In that case they will be bona-fide settlers. But then the law is only joking when it says "a continuous residence upon, and cultivation of said land," etc., etc. There are quite a number of choice claims lying vacant as yet, which we would be pleased to show to all home-seekers. Yours

AT RANDOM. Another Valuable Grant Co. Horse.

Mr. N. H. C. Cottrell of Umattilla county was in Grant county last week and purchased of D. W. Jenkins for parties in Portland the horse "Captain Jinks."

This horse was a full brother to "Mr. Vernon," which horse had a record of 2 26 4. For a gentleman's driving horse "Captain Jinks" cannot be beat for the money—$400. We are pleased to note the sale of Grant county horses, and feel assured that she can furnish as fine driving or work horses as any county in the state, and when the fact becomes generally known, then will be the opportunity for Mr. Jenkins and others who have given their attention to blooded stock to reap a benefit.

HORRIBLE DEATH

The Only Atonement for a Horrible Crime!

Patrick McGinnis Executed For the Murder of Deputy Sheriff Robt. Lockwood.

GOES UNFALTERING TO HIS DOOM!

From Friday's Special Edition.]

To-day was enacted the closing scene in a remarkable drama in real life commenced on the night of July 5th, 1888.

Patrick McGinnis, who murdered Deputy Sheriff Robert Lockwood, expiated his crime on the gallows. He maintained the coolness and nerve which has characterized his actions since his capture and conviction, and during the past few days of his life when certain doom was staring him in the face, not a tremor, nor trace of remorse or fear of death was visible on his countenance, and in the hour of his death his indifference did not forsake him.

One o'clock p. m. was the hour named in the death warrant for the execution, and when the hour drew nigh, the prisoner with all shackles removed, in company with the sheriff and deputies and Rev. Father Henrich of Baker City, proceeded to the scaffold at the rear of the jail. Those who expected to see McGinnis display weakness were disappointed, for instead of being assisted to mount the stairs he stepped in advance of the guards and bounded up the steps as though eternity were for years removed, and not for only a few short minutes.

Upon being asked by Sheriff Gray if he had anything to say, he protested his innocence and declared that he was not the murderer of Robert Lockwood. His hands were strapped to his sides, his feet secured, the noose adjusted and the black cap drawn over his face, when after a short prayer by the priest, the soul of Patrick McGinnis was launched into the great world beyond, where if guilty his protestations of innocence only increase his condemnation. The drop was sprung at 1:15, and in 22 minutes Drs. Horsley and Scott pronounced life extinct, and the body was lowered and placed in the coffin. The victim's neck was not broken, but death was caused by strangulation, although not a movement or struggle was perceptible during the time.

The history of the crime with which McGinnis was charged and for which he was subsequently tried and convicted, and the circumstances attending the trial may be briefly outlined as follows: At the April, 1888 term of circuit court for Grant county, he was indicted by the grand jury for branding horses not his own and bonds fixed at $1000 but afterwards reduced to $600.

About the first of May he was placed under arrest, and failing to give the required bond for his appearance at the November term of court was held in custody, and attended by Robert Lockwood, jailer and deputy sheriff for Grant county, and as his crime was not of such a nature as to warrant a strict watch being kept over his actions, he was allowed all the favors usually accorded a criminal of his class, having the liberty of the sheriff's office during the day, and the corridor of the jail at night.

A Pinte Indian was confined at the same time, charged with the murder of a man named Bright in Harney valley. This prisoner was feared and every precaution taken by the jailer to not allow him to obtain an advantage in any way, he being confined in the iron cell at night.

On the night of July 5th about 11 o'clock, the jailer was found dead in the jail corridor with a bullet wound in the back of his head and the prisoners both gone. His remains were cared for and a reward of $1,500 offered for the escaped prisoners. They were both subsequently captured—the Indian over on the Malheur, and McGinnis on the John Day near Mt. Vernon. Evidence at the preliminary examination substantiated the belief that Lockwood came to the jail in the early evening to attend the wants of the Indian who had complained of being sick during the day, and that when in the act of unlocking the cell in which he was confined McGinnis fired two shots, one missing the officer and the other taking effect in his head as before stated, producing instantaneous death. How McGinnis obtained the weapon—which was "the office pistol," and always kept in a drawer in the sheriff's office—is not known, and perhaps will never be, for no confession was made on the gallows nor any statement to implicate any one. That secret died with Pat McGinnis, and could anyone have been implicated with him in the killing of Lockwood, their own confession, when they are called "to meet Him who judgeth all things," must reveal the fact.

NO OTHER POWER CAN AT THIS TIME CLEAR UP THE MYSTERY.

At the November term of court the grand jury returned an indictment of murder in the first degree. He was tried on this charge before Judge L. B. Ison, with M. Dustin attorney for defendant and District Attorney J. L. Rand and M. D. Clifford for the State, by a jury composed of twelve representative men of our county, and a verdict rendered of "guilty as charged in the indictment." Judge Ison's sentence was that he be hanged on Friday January 18, 1889, till dead. An appeal was taken by his attorney and pending the action of the supreme court a respite of sixty days was granted by the governor. The sentence of the lower court sustained and preparations were made for carrying into execution the sentence on March 19. Proceedings were stopped by an order from Judge Fee, one of the judges of this district, commanding the sheriff to hold the condemned until a mandate was issued by the supreme court and the prisoner re-sentenced. This mandate was issued in due time and Friday, April 26th, 1889, fixed as the date of execution. Therefore on this day was carried into effect, the second sentence of death by the civil courts of justice ever passed upon a prisoner in Grant county since its organization as a county.

Gone to Raising Gourds.

Frank McBean, the veteran stage driver, has resigned his position of driver on the Canyon-Burns route. We had not noticed him in town for several days and supposed he had stopped driving simply because he had stopped driving, but Tuesday we learned the occasion of his absence on his accustomed seat, Frank has gone to farming. He wrote to Mr. Cresap to send him a half-bushel of gourd seed by return stage. He intends planting the seed on his Soda Spring ranch and will embark in gourd culture to the extent of many acres. When the crop of gourds is fully matured next fall, he will gather them and take them to the tule swamps of Harney valley to catch monkeys with. Judge Dustin stopped at Soda Springs Monday night and informed McBean that in the interior of Harney valley was a large section of country abounding in monkeys and reptiles and possums and persimmons, the same as Central America. Frank believes it, and is investing his last dollar in the culture of gourds to capture the monkeys. His plan is as follows: A small hole is cut in the gourd, the insides taken out and the cavity filled with sugar, and the gourd placed where the monkeys can find it. A monkey comes along, smells the sugar, and thrusts his hand into the gourd and grasps a handful. Of course he cannot withdraw the hand without letting go of the sugar, and this he will not do. In this position they are easily caught. The monkeys that Frank captures will be fattened up, but it is not known yet what disposition will be made of them. He thinks, however, of cutting off their tails, shaving their faces, running some for office in Harney county in 1890, and reserving a number to be used as representatives for Grant county.

WONDERS OF THE HUMAN BODY.

The skin contains more than 2,000,000 openings, which are the outlets of an equal number of sweat glands. The skeleton consists of more than 200 distinct bones. An amount of blood equal to the whole quantity of the body passes through the heart once every minute. The full capacity of the lungs is about 320 cubic inches. About two-thirds of a pint of air is inhaled in each breath in ordinary respiration. The stomach daily produces nine pints of gastric juice for digestion of food; its capacity is about five pints. There are more than 500 separate muscles in the body, with an equal number of nerves and blood vessels. The weight of the heart is from 8 to 12 ounces. It beats 100,000 times in 24 hours. Each respiratory duct is one-fourth of an inch in length, of the whole about 9 miles. The average man takes 5 1/2 pounds of food and drink each day, which amounts to one ton of solid and liquid nourishment annually. A man breathes 18 times a minute, and 3000 cubic feet, or about 375 hogheads, of air every hour of his existence. To keep the system in perfect order no remedy is so good as electricity, and that is proving itself the most efficacious of all known treatments. Dr. Darrin submits the following cures recently performed through this subtle agent:

REV. J. E. CONNOR, Portland, Or., skin disease cured. W. T. Binkley, Centralia, W. T., sciatic rheumatism, restored. J. T. George, Gledene, W. T., chronic rheumatism five years, cured. Mrs. Mary A. Johnson, Salem, Oregon, deafness many years, restored. C. F. Mayhew, 183 D street, Portland, rheumatism in its worst form, cured. Mrs. J. Ellis, 325 Clay street, Portland, Or., deafness and diseases peculiar to her sex, cured. D. S. Wells, four miles north of Albina, on Vancouver road, deafness five years, cured. Charles Magnusson, Salem, Or., asthma so he could scarcely walk or sleep, restored. J. W. Keoney, Long Creek, Grant county, Or., kidney complaint and pains in the back and down the sciatic nerve, restored. Willie Clark, 108 Front street, Portland, discharged from twelve years, cured. D. J. Graham's child, Springfield, Or., painfully afflicted with granulated conjunctivitis, complicated with ulcers of the eyeballs for nine months, cured. David Ross' son, Woodland, W. T., painful hip disease, had to be carried to the doctor's office, cured. Mr. Ross has a daughter residing at the Merchants hotel, Portland, and can be referred to.

DR. DARRIN'S PLACE OF BUSINESS.

Dr. Darrin can be consulted free at 225 Fifth street, corner of Main, Portland, Oregon, and Occident hotel, Astoria, Oregon, until further notice. Office hours from 10 to 4 daily; evenings, 7 to 8; Sundays, 10 to 12. All curable chronic diseases, loss of manhood, blood taints, syphilis gland, gonorrhoea, stricture, spermatorrhoea, seminal weakness or loss of desire of sexual power in man or woman, catarrh and deafness, are confidentially and successfully treated. Cures of private diseases guaranteed and never published in the papers. Circulars sent free. Most cases can receive home treatment after a visit to the doctor's office.

The prospects for good crops and a successful business season in this country are exceedingly flattering. We are informed that grass in all parts of the county looks better than it has any spring for years.
