Lock - Not Transferable

Referring to the little incident of the Southern girl who sent President Cleveland the four leaf clover she had found, the New York Times points out that luck is not transferable.

That finding a four-leaved clover brings good luck is universally conceded. The luck, however, is limited to the finder, and is not negotiable. The same is true of horseshoes. The man who finds a horseshoe in the road should be envied even by the holder of half a million dollars' worth of mining stock, but he can no more convey his good luck to another man by giving him the horseshoe than the owner of the mining stock can enrich his creditors by assigning the stock to them. The finder of horseshoes or four-leaved clovers can destroy his own luck by giving them away and thus insulting fortune, but he cannot convey to another the luck which he himself rejects.

Print Cloth Consumption.

It is remarkable to notice what a falling off there has been in the use of print cloth for dresses and other kinds of wear, as compared with twelve or fourteen years ago. At that time, when prints were selling from nine to twelve cents per yard, print dresses were very much worn in the summer time by the good housewives and their children in our New England towns and cities. While at the present time you can scarcely see a woman or child wearing print goods, although they can be purchased for from three and a half to four cents per yard. This does not seem to correspond with the theory that lowering the price of goods increases their consumption; but in this particular instance it has acted quite to the contrary.

A young lawyer who had been instructed that when a witness declared that he was this or that it was essential that he should be made to tell when and for what reason he became so, thus utilizing his instruction when trying his first case with a witness that he had under cross examination:

"Are you a married man?"
"No, Sir, I am a bachelor, was the answer."

"Then, sir," said the lawyer, in a stern tone, "will you please tell this court how long you have been a bachelor, and what were the circumstances that induced you to become one?"

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the systemic, or headachic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat I had to vomit, and what I did eat I had to vomit, and what I did eat I had to vomit."

"I had but little appetite, and what I did eat I had to vomit, and what I did eat I had to vomit, and what I did eat I had to vomit."
