THE MORMON QUARREL.

The frightful story of Mormon atrocities detailed in our dispatches, is very likely true, but it belongs to the past, and not to the present struggle between the people and the Mormons, which is a fight against the political supremacy of the "Saints."

This act was intended to defend the established religion from legal control or investigation, to create Mormon ecclesiastical courts with pains and penalties. The Mormon church, beyond question, was esteemed and by law declared sovereign, and the Mormon legislature by the passage of these laws recognizing the church, actually established religion in violation of the Constitution of the United States.

Then in 1857 the situation became so grave that President Buchanan sent General Albert S. Johnston with several thousand troops to Salt Lake to remove Brigham Young. Young forbade the army to enter Utah, called out his militia, burned the government supply trains and drove in its track. During this year occurred the massacre of Mountain Meadow, for which John D. Lee was executed in 1877.

An exchange contains the following: "Queen Victoria has been paid $143,455,000 by the British people for reigning over them, while the house of commons has done the business of government for nothing. The salaries paid to all the presidents of the United States for a hundred years, or twice Victoria's reign, aggregate less than $5,000,000."

There is a singular Chinese superstition that a certain amount of happiness is allotted by the fates to each individual as his earthly portion. He is to have no more and no less, whatever he may do, but he may draw on his portion too fast, and so use up all his happiness before he gets half-way through life.

Old age brings with it the consciousness of physical infirmity and decay, which no art can conceal and no medicine remove. This decay is a loud hint that death is not far distant, and that one should set his house in order for the solemn event.

A SLAVE BOY'S STORY.

A letter from the Congo tells the story of a slave boy from Central Africa who, by a series of strange vicissitudes, has recently come into possession of Mr. Hoffman Bentley, the well known missionary, and is now living on the river near the west coast.

It was three days before the villagers ventured to return to their ruined homes. All was quiet then and they spent the days tilling their fields around the place where they had lived.

One day, after they had led this wretched life for about three months a gang of slave hunters suddenly rushed upon the village, beating their drums and firing guns.

In about ten days the slaves, with their captives, reached Nyangwe, and the poor people were soon scattered far and wide, their owners taking them in all directions.

It has been learned the language of the lower Congo, and Mr. Bentley writes that he is a bright and interesting boy. But the tragic events in his old home are groven in his memory.
