

THE GRANT COUNTY NEWS.

May 8, 1890.

The new river and harbor bill to be passed by congress provides that no bridge shall be built across any navigable stream without a permit from the secretary of war.

It is reported from St. Petersburg that the Russian physician Dr. Bapchinski announces that he has discovered that diphtheria is easily curable by inoculation of erysipelas.

The colored people are gradually getting to the front. Judge Ruffin of Charleston, Mass., belongs to the African race. He is the only colored judge on the bench in the United States.

The house committee on invalid pensions has recommended that a pension be granted to William Gardner, a private in the First California infantry, for injuries received by the kick of a mule in New Mexico in 1862.

Senator Mitchell has introduced an amendment to the river and harbor bill, appropriating $25,000 for the improvement of the Upper Snake river, between Huntington, Baker county, Or., and the Seven Devils mining district, in the territory of Idaho.

The Vale, Malheur county town council has officially requested ranchmen in the surrounding country who are afflicted with typhoid fever to stay away from town. To us that warning seems uncalled for. When a man has typhoid fever he does not feel much like going to town.

A novel opium smuggling scheme has been discovered in Chicago. The police raided an opium den, and found, among other things a number of lemon rinds filled with opium, the end being cut off, inside scraped out, opium put in and the ends carefully cemented again. It is not known how extensive this plan of smuggling may have been.

A novel way of raising money to build a church has been adopted by a congregation in an Iowa town. They borrowed $120,000 and gave life insurance on a number of the members, which is to be applied on the debt as fast as death ensues. An epidemic of small-pox or typhoid fever in that congregation would be money in the pockets of those who survived.

There appears to be an impression abroad that since Senator Blair's educational bill has been defeated he will turn his restless mind to inventing something worse. His prompt introduction of the bill fixing the minimum rate of pay for Federal employees at $2 a day will seem to indicate that he is feeling around.—Portland World.

In South Dakota, a bill providing that the state board of charities and corrections should be composed in part of women passed the House, but was defeated in the Senate. A bill was passed instead providing for an "investigating committee" of three women, whose duty it will be to visit all the state charitable and penal institutions, report any abuses, and make suggestions to the board, but who will be without a vote.

There has been great extravagance on the part of congress in appropriations for public buildings in different parts of the country, and many more public building bills have been introduced and are now pending. Some members of the house have called the president's attention to the matter. To inform himself on the subject he has sent an agent to the Capitol to secure a complete list of such bills now pending in the House and Senate. It is said that he will probably begin a series of vetoes after the manner of Cleveland.

Even our congressmen at Washington sometimes make mistakes. The bill creating the territory of Oklahoma, which was passed by the house and senate and sent to the president, must be referred again to congress, because of a fatal defect in its phrasology. The commissioner of the general land office, to whom the bill was referred, reports that the clause describing the boundaries of the territory reads: "Western line of Texas," where it should read, "Eastern line of Texas." The president will send the bill back to congress, with a message calling attention to this defect, and congress will have to amend the bill.

Men who, being drafted, sent substitutes to the Union army, are feeling aggrieved that no proposition to pension them has yet been made in congress. Then there are those who staid at home and raised the soldier's rations! They should not be struck from the nation's grand list of beneficiaries at this crisis. It is believed that many of these are not in good health at this time; most of them are getting well along in years, and a large majority of them are poor. The people have been told so often that this nation can afford to be grateful to its heroes, that they may be pardoned for believing it, and he who curbed his loftier ambitions and plowed, sowed and gathered into barns that soldiers might be fed, may be pardoned if, when the money is being passed round, he feels aggrieved if none of it comes his way. The attention of Ingalls, Mitchell and other grateful patriots in the United States senate is called to the fact that injustice is likely to be done a large and deserving class who labored for their country's weal in the period of her woeful extremity. A bill providing for folks in general who were loyal citizens of the United States between 1860-65 should be presented at once, as there is a chance that some of the surplus may yet remain after the next pension appropriation is paid out.—Oregonian.

"A boy assassin hanged," read Mrs. Bascom from a newspaper. "Wall," she remarked, "a assassin boy is a great trial, but I don't think he ought to be hanged for it."

NEW TO-DAY. "A boy assassin hanged," read Mrs. Bascom from a newspaper. "Wall," she remarked, "a assassin boy is a great trial, but I don't think he ought to be hanged for it."
