An Old Salt Tells of an Encounter with Arab Pirates. One season back in the 40's I shipped aboard of a British ship, the Swallow, to make a voyage from Bombay up the Persian Gulf and back, writes an old seaman in the Beston Commercial Bul-letin. She was an old craft and a poor sailer, and her erew of twelve men was made up of four or five nationalities. I remember there were two Kanakas, or Sandwich Islanders, one Lascar, a negroor two, and the others were American, English and Dutch. We had scarcely left Bombay when the captain was taken sick with fever. His name was Aldrich, and his wife, who was a woman of thiry, always sailed with him. She now took command in a general way, and this to the satisfaction of the mates. though both were thorough sailors. I heard one of them say that she could take an observation or work a dead reckoning, and I saw from orders she gave that she knew all about a ship.

We had good weather and made good progress until after we were above Museat, in the Bay of Ormuz. Then, one forenoon we got a squall which did not last ten minutes, but which brought down our fore and main to gallant masts and carried away a sail or two. There was only a light breeze after the squall had passed, and we were lying to and bout two hundred tons burden came steaming down the coast. We were within four miles of the rocky and mountainous shore, but she was two affectivate of us. She was no sconer made out than the first mate became at the stranger through the glass, and as she furned away she queried of the mater the result is a collision, whether "coming thro the rye," or not. Life is full of collisions. We are constantly colliding with somebody or something. If it len't with somebody or something. If it len't with our neighbors it is with some dread disease that "knocks us off the track" and perhaps disables us for life. Women especially it seems, have to bear the brunt of more collisions and afflictions than mankind. In all cases of nervousies, bearing down somations, tenderices, periodical pains, sick headsole, congestion, inflanination, or ulceration and all "female weaknesses," Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes to the rescue of women as no other medicine does. It is the only medicine for women, solid by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the medicine for women, Bold by druggita, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money laid for it will be refunded. Or, again, take the instance of the protty young matron who, while devoted to home, husband and children, yet has several intimate friends of the male persuasion. But her influence is all for good. Her functionation is exerted in a worthy cause, and she has found out a great truth that there is no friendship so lasting, so true and sophusant as one between persons of apposite sexes, where a true feeling of benne camaraderie exists and there is no pretense of love-making.
