THE GRANT COUNTY NEWS, OUR NEW SERIAL

October 9, 1890.

A man named Klein is doing the northwest selling European National bonds, which are supposed to make a man,s fortune, but which in reality are worthless. Several bit at it in Astoria, but on being arrested he refunded the

According to a telegram, "lightning struck a man in Springfield, Ohio, killed him, burned the sign of a cross on his back, and then dug a hole in the ground behind him the exact size and shape of a grave." We suppose it is also rumored that the electric bolt paid all the funeral expenses, ordered a monument for his grave, and offered to marry his widow; but this report lacks confirmation.

Public sentiment is apparently taking a determined stand in favor of the repeal of the mortgage tax and usury laws, and this is as it should be. Oregon has been kept back fully ten years by the operation of these statutes, and it is time she rid herself of these barnacles, and entered the race for commercial supremney with the same advantages as her neighbors. - Mountaineer.

The season of 1890, is waning and as we look back over the days we must say that the year so far has been a most propitious one. The soil has returned of all products a most bountiful yield; never has there been a more favorable harvest time, so that every particle has been safely housed; prices are ranging well, indicating a good return for the laber performed. We should therefore feel happy and moderately contented.

Several towns in the Willamette valley have been swindled and the farmers in the surrounding country badly taken in by a man well dressed and affable, who comes up and offers to sell the innocent granger someting which he calls "einnamon beans," (at the low price of $20 a pound) and offers to buy at a good price all the cinnumon trees the farmer can raise five feet high. As the beans are common red ones soaked in cinnamon oil, the rascal is safe in giving a bond to buy the young trees. If that swindler comes to Cirant county and any of the people get bit in this manner the vigilantes ought to take them out and hang them to the largest sage tree on the hills, for not reading the News which always endeavors to expose all such frauds.

The California supreme court holds that the press may ofreely criticise the official conduct of a Andge and bring to light any wrongful, corrupt and improper act of a judicial officer." Lut that it must not indulge in indiscriminate abuse, designed not to expose wrong doing, but to pander to passion and prejudice. A newspaper which makes attacks on individuals only when they seem to be demanded in the interests of the community may sometimes appear to be sailing in dangerous places. but it generally comes out un-Imrmed. Every well-managed newspaper knows where to draw the line between liberty and license. No self-respecting journal will condemn an official or anybody else without good public grounds for its notion. Malice and passion have no place in legit imate journation.

E. L. Applegate, formerly Indian agent at the Klamath agency but who was bounced by President Harrison, is said to have received his walking papers because he refused to linve prayers in the Indian school. Teaching young aiwashes the radiments of prayer we surmise would not be an easy job, and the agent was no doubt just fied in striking this exercise off the program. But the U. S. took the matter up and discharged Applegate for not pundering to the wishes of a particular church organization which desired the Intlosavages to be taught how to pray. Governments in the past have themselves been governed by the church, and history teaches us their fate. Modern governments can well profit by ancient history and keep church and state forever seperate. It is the mission of the church to make mankind better and fit them for the higher walks of social life. It is the mission of the state to see that its public ser- called for in the postoffice at Canvants are honest and efficient, but you City, Or. A WORLD-WIDE CHASE.

A Story of Retribution.

BY "WABASH."

Lovers of refined literature in the shape of interesting novel reading will find in this story, just begun in our columns, a source of enjoyment rarely afforded in newspaper pages.

The story is one that will hold the interest of the reader from the very beginning. The plot is well sustained throughout, there are many dramatic incidents, and the story is, in all respects, up to a very high standard of excellence.
