As a practical lesson in protection, says the Times Mountaineer, we saw today at the freight depot a car labeled, T. M. Sinclair & Co., Cedar Rapids, Ia.: Pure Lard, Smoked Meats. In the name of common sense, is it profitable for the people of Oregon to buy lard and smoked meats in Iowa, when they can be produced here with equal facility, and the money saved to the community? This is protection in its simplest form, and which demerits have opposed because it was republican doctrine.

Now that the threshing is completed, or nearly so, throughout the county owners of machines will confer a favor on us if they will send to this office an account of the amount of grain threshed by them. We wish to let the people know what Grant county has done this year in the way of producing cereals.

ELECTRICITY CURES DISEASES.

Stubborn Diseases Yield to Skillful Treatment by Dr. Darrin. It is a positive fact that the art of curing diseases by electricity is revolutionizing the practice of medicine as it is shown by the following testimonials that speak for themselves: Mr. Editor: About July 25 I called on Dr. Darrin for treatment for chronic catarrh, bronchitis, and constipation of ten years' standing. The discharge from my nose was very disagreeable and the incrustations were loathsome in the extreme. Dr. Darrin has cured me with electricity and medicine. I am also cured of constipation and liver complaint. I was present when Dr. Darrin cured Rev. N. Matthias, of The Dalles, Oregon, of four years' deafness in ten minutes.

There has never been made, for general distribution, an art reproduction of the grandeur of Toltec Gorge that equals in accuracy of detail and beauty of coloring, the Aquabelle presented with the October number of The Great Divide as its art supplement. Accuracy of detail was absolutely secured by adhering to the lines of the famous photograph of the scene taken by Mr. W. H. Jackson, while the coloring was made by The Great Divide's artist after careful study on the spot. The literary features of the journal are of special interest, the marvelous Mosquito Snake Dance being described, with full page illustrations, by Dr. R. W. Shufeldt, of the Smithsonian Institution, "Lute's Affair" (illustrated), by Lute H. Johnson—a story of mining life in Colorado—and sketches, poems, popular science articles of great variety and value, make up the contents. Sample copies of the October number, containing the art supplement, will be mailed to anyone enclosing ten cents and addressing the Great Divide, Denver, Colo.

The new system of stopping horses by electricity was given a practical test on the lake front at Chicago, Saturday, by A. B. Holson, the inventor. Holson got into a carriage to which two horses were attached, and with no driver on the box. The man lashed the horses with a whip and they started away at a break-neck speed. Suddenly the horses raised themselves on their haunches and came to a full stop. The invention consists of a dry battery under the driver's box, connected by wires with metal balls, placed in the horse's nostrils. There are two buttons, one on the driver's box and another on the side which closes the circuit when pressed. The result is a mild shock, which, the inventor claims, will invariably bring the runaway horses to a standstill.

The Eugene Guard is "complimentary" to a Lane county citizen who has been "elevated" to a government position. It says: "Yarrow" Symons has been appointed as one of the commissioners to locate the boundary line between the United States and Mexico, and will soon leave for that section. Thank the Lord! The light made on him by the people of Lane county has had the effect desired, i. e. the transfer to another locality. We pity the Mexicans, however.

Includes an illustration of a box of the product and text: 'Don't grope around in the dark like the foolish mope-eyed man, playing blind man's bluff with your business interests, as it were, but let the incandescent light of liberal advertising reflect your business before the eyes of the people, that all may see, beyond peradventure, the article you offer to sell and where it can be found.' Says the New York Sun: 'The reports of the crop in various countries of Europe are the most melancholy reading in the European papers. The reports of the crops in the United States are the most cheerful reading in the American papers.'
