A CAMPAIGN FOR THE PEOPLE (No. 1.)

In the City of Portland the Council cannot initiate street improvements, and a mapority of the frontage owners may remonstrate against any progress and defont it. This power of remonstrance given to the people often prevents the construction of new streets.

It is possible that this may be a wise provision, but it is not conducive to rapid volopment in the paving of the city. With this power of remonstrance street naving depends upon the public spirit and ride of preperty owners, and to develop a stone or other good ' pavement, we should endeavor to encourage civic pride when the people see that it is entirely In their hands. It is never difficult to get majority to remonstrate against street betterment. The fundamental law contemplates that property owners shall maintain the areois upon which their property abuts. This is a mistake in the law. It should e required to benefit property owners he cannot make minor repairs as cheapas it could be done by the city. The city has the right to appropriate money the repair of streets, bridges and www. It does now maintain the sewers, and, to a great extent, the bridges, and is just this year beginning to spend some money on the repair of streets. The city avernment would have done so long ago and it the means to do so, but the deressed commercial conditions of the past ave been felt by the city government as ell as the people at large by whom the rovernment is maintained.

In the matter of sidewalks it is not conemplated in Portland or elsewhere that the public shall have to maintain a sidewalk. It is the intent of the law, not only in Portland, but everywhere, that perty owners shall construct and almaintain the sidewalks. In Porthand we have about 300 miles of wooder idewalks, and it is not surprising that a large per cent should be out of repair. The Street Department serves thourands of notices each year to property owners of the repair of walks. Many of anom respond cheerfully, but a great number have to be pressed for repairs to walks. It is to be hoped that property ners will see it to their advantage to but down walks at an early day.

There is at this time a great need of a ther obstructions as rapidly as possible. And hummed the meadow o'ers And hummed the meadow o'ers The carmer shuft went for his hive And robbed him of his store. other obstructions as rapidly as possible.

STORIES OF THE DAY.

TOOK THE LONG SHOT. As evidence of the ruling passion of jockeys to keep their eyes open for good odds a well-known horse owner told this story last night: "One of my jockeys," he said, "had been alling for weeks. He had tried to doctor himself, without success, and I suspected that he might be suffering from some serious stomach trouble. I told him to go to my physician on Thirty-Fourth street, Dr. Blank, and see what he could do for him. I also gave him money enough for his doctor's bill. Several days later I saw him and haid: "'Well, what did Dr. Blank any about your case? " 'I did not go to him."

"'Why not? I asked. " Well, sir, when I got to his house his sign read: "Dr. Blank, 1 to 2," and looking eross the street I saw a sign, "Dr. Dash, ? to 1." and I nicked Dr. Dash for a long shot. He proved a winner, too, and I'm feeling better already." -- N. Y. Sun.

A NEW LODGE. When Mayor Ashbridge was coroner he iddressed, one evening, a meeting of the Fatriatic Order Sons of America. At the conclusion of his speech a gray-bearded man, wearing the bronze button of the G. A. R., approached the coroner and, extending hip hand, said:

"Comrade, I am proud to know you. What post do you belong to?" "Post-mortem?" was the coroner's quick reply. "Ah !!' continued the veteran, soberly, 'what is the number?"

"We have a different number every day," answered the coroner. "Strange, strange." said the puzzled vetran, scratching his grizzled head; "but do you know I never heard of that post before? Where do you meet?" "In the city hall," was the answer, "T'll drop in on you some night and sit around your campfire," quath the veteron. "Don't," counseled the corgner, and as he walked away the veteran remarked to a bystander that Comrade Ashbridge was very queer brother. - Philadelphia

LEGISLATIVE COURTESY. Senator Dolliver came away from home this morning without any money in his ocket. He hopped gayly on a street car and started for the capitol. The conductor came around. The senator searched his pockets, but he couldnt' find a cent or a car ticket. There wasn't a soul on the car he knew. Much chagrined, he hopped off the car again and stood on the corner of Fourteenth and F streets, wondering where he could borrow a nickel. Through the window of the next car he saw Representative Kotcham of New York. He got board and sat down next to Ketcham. When the conductor came around Senator Dolliver leaned over to Ketcham and said, confidently: "I wish you would pay my fare."

Ketcham is deaf. "What's that" he asked "I wish you would pay my fare."

"I can't hear a word," protested Ketchm; "speak louder." By this time everybody in the car was ooking at the senator. He blushed rosyed and shouted: "I wish you would pay my fare." "Oh," replied Ketcham, "certainly. The

HINT ON WASHING BLANKETS. The washing of blankets will soon be

n order, as the warm April days are best for drying, and a word anent this cleansing process may not come amiss. Choose a bright day, when the weather is sottled, so that they may be washed, dried and thoroughly aired in the sun. Pour into the tub half a pint of liquid ammonia water, throw in the blanket lightly, then immediately pour in sufficient water over the blanket to cover it. By putting in the ammonia first and adding the water afterwards, the fumes of the former are sent through the blanket and tend to loosen the dirt.

Press the blanket against the sides of the tub and stir and press it in every part, but it must not be rubbed. Then rinse in fresh warm water of the same temperature as the first, then fold and wring as dry as possible through a wringer, shake well and hang out to dry. As the blankets dry a little, water will collect in the corners. This should be squeezed out from time to time. When the blankets are half dry, take them down, shake them and hang them up again, with the other end up.

EMERALD GREEN GOWN.

It is with revivals that the dressmakers are principally tempting their customers at this season. Here is a sleeve, there a cape, models that in time past have enloyed a vogue, are being adopted to present needs, under the guise of novelty, Some of the new gowns are being buttoned or incod up the back, quite a well-remembered trait of about 20 years ago. A magnificent one, for example, of the new emerald green shade is cut in the princess manner, with a loed nd wellboned bck. It is given a bolero of very conrse wool lace, another fresh introduction, in greens and pale other shades, with sufficient black in the scheme to make for dignity, and a touch of gold tracery to add magnificence. The front is quite plain where the bolero does not meet, though it is laced with gold: but the curious addition of a swathed sash of taffetas, worn guite above the waist line, and fastened with a big wheelland.
