The Markets Show No Change in Sugar.

Today was steamer day on the street and business was very good. The merchants are pleased over the status of the sugar market.

The butter market continues weak, and receipts are growing larger every day. It is only a question of a few days before there will be a big slump in that market unless there is a radical change in the receipts.

Eggs are slightly firmer today, and there is no change in the former quotations. Receipts still continue very liberal.

There is nothing of interest in the poultry market today. Monday is always a poor day, shipments not arriving generally before Tuesday morning. Prices are the same.

Hops are quiet, there being only a few hundred bales on the market in the state. Contracts for next year's crop are being made at about 12 1/2 cents.

The receipts of mohair are not very good yet, the unsettled condition of the weather keeping back the supply. It is quoted at 21 1/2 to 22 a pound.

There is no change in the potato market with the exception of Early Rose, which advanced a trifle this morning.

The meat market is the same as Saturday.

BACK FROM GOLD FIELDS

Captain John L. Sperry, formerly a captain of police in this city, who has returned from Cape Nome, Alaska, was around renewing acquaintance with his many friends Saturday.

Captain Sperry has considerable mining interests in the Northern country and in speaking of the prospects there said: "I think Alaska all right. There are a great many people who go North who don't know the first principle about mining. About 75 per cent don't know gold when they see it, except in the shape of a $20 gold piece."

"When I was up in Skagway in the Fall of 1898 there were a great many prospectors who returned there from the Klondike who reported that the country was worked out, although 98 per cent of the great finds in that country hadn't then been discovered. Those are the kind of people that give a country a black eye."

"I think that the men who want to go North and have families to support here, and have nothing to keep them while they are searching for gold, should stay at home."

"I will say this, however, that any man who has funds, lots of energy and pluck can do better in the North than he can at home. It takes quite a lot of time and also money to develop the gold fields and the man without enough money to last him for a year at least had better stay at home. Alaska is no place for the poor man, especially for one who has a family dependent upon him for support."

"You can tell the people this for me," continued the captain, the gold doesn't grow on the willow trees in the North.

"When I was at Nome I saw a great many of the people who arrived and I tell you that they had queer ideas about a mining country. I remember a couple of men who got off the boat there who were highly amusing. One of them ran up on the beach for a little ways and, picking up a handful of sand, closely examined it and not finding any big chunks of gold in it, said to his companion: 'Josh, I told you that there was no truth in those stories of the big strikes.' This enterprising couple took passage back on the same steamer that brought them. This is a sample of 75 per cent of the disgruntled gold hunters."

Captain Sperry is visiting at the home of his daughter, Mrs. D. Halvor, 654 Union avenue, North. The captain intends to stay in the city until the latter part of May, when he will go to Seattle and take the boat for the North.
