Portland beat Butte yesterday at a score of 10 to 1. The twirlers in the big mining camp seemed bewildered from the start, and the Portland boys kept adding to the lead which they gained in the first inning. The local infield gave one of the finest exhibitions of work ever seen here. The game could hardly be called for clean, gentlemanly work. The eighth inning developed into a thorough slug-fest. It was exciting throughout. The following is the score:

THE BIG FIGHT.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—Champion Jeffries is taking but light exercise at present, and will only aim to keep himself in shape from now on until the fight.

TRACY-FERNS MATCH OFF.

Tom Tracy has received word from Kansas City that Rube Ferns, with whom he was matched to fight in Seattle on August 18, broke his arm while training and will be unable to fill his engagement.

When Jeffries was interviewed by a

San Francisco reporter Tuesday he said:

"I have spent the day quietly, doing no training whatever. I arose shortly after 8 o'clock and after an hour spent about the hotel I went to breakfast with my friend, 'Dick' Adams, who arrived from Los Angeles yesterday. My morning meal was comparatively light. After breakfast I went to the ball game with Adams. I enjoyed it, but must say I was sorry to see the Oakland boys lose. They are wonders at the game and can never be caught in their race for the pennant.

"We returned to the restaurant and I ate a hearty lunch. I feel exceptionally well today and do not miss my ordinary training. After lunch Adams proposed that I go to the baths and I agreed. I took a half hour's swim in the big tank and felt fine when I left. I then took a rub-down, after which Adams and myself strolled leisurely back to town. We ate dinner and now, here I am. I shall go to bed in a few minutes.

"What shall I do tomorrow? Well, in the morning I'll take to the road with my brother and Joe Kennedy. My work will be light. In the afternoon I'll go to the gymnasium, where I will box with my partners, do the machines and punch the bag.

"Yes, I will work right up to Friday, but, as I said before, my work will not amount to much. You see I am ready to go into the ring at a moment's notice and make the fight of my life. My training is practically over, and when the time comes I will make good everything I have promised.

FITZ AND HIS FRIENDS.

When Fitzsimmons arrived in San Francisco from Skaggs Springs he was met with a "hello" band and escorted to the California Hotel. This is what one has to say of the Australian upon his arrival in the Bay City:

As "Fitzsimmons stepped off the train it was apparent at a glance that he was in the best of physical condition. Bright of eye and clear of skin, with a movement in speech and gesture that betokened a man who had conscientiously devoted himself to exacting work, there could be no mistaking his fine fettle.

"With Fitzsimmons were Edward M. Graney and W. W. Naughton.

"Feeling somewhat the fatigue of the trip, Fitzsimmons indulged in a nap yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Fitzsimmons, Bobby, Jr., and Clark Ball accompanied Louis Metzger on a drive through the park.

"Following his dinner, Fitzsimmons went to the freight depot to make inquiry for his three pet fawns for whose safety he was somewhat alarmed owing to their non-arrival. Failing to locate them he continued to worry until the evening. While seated in a box at the California Theater he was told of their arrival at the hotel. He left at once and superintended their housing in comfortable quarters, feeding them from his own hands."

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—Many of the sporting men who are here from out of town to witness the heavyweight championship fight tomorrow night will go to Oakland this evening to see the 20-round go between Joe Gans, the lightweight champion, and Rube Turner. Though Gans is a heavy favorite the admirers of Turner, who has made a creditable fighting record during the last year, express confidence in his ability to give the Baltimore colored by a hard tussle for the decision.

SULLIVAN AT HOME.

Dave Sullivan, the young Irish pugilist, has returned from the West and is now at his home at Homestead, L. I. Sullivan is very much disappointed over the fact that he was unable to tackle Young Corbett. The pair were matched to box on two occasions, once at Denver and the next time at St. Louis. Both fighters were called off owing to interference by the authorities at his last moment. Sullivan still clings to the opinion that he can whip the featherweight champion. He is looking remarkably well and says that he will soon be ready to box any 125-pounder in the business.

FAIR SITE

The Director Will Meet Again Tonight.

EAST SIDE JEALOUSY

Said to Militate Against Selection of a Location on That Side of the River.

"Ninety per cent of the stock of the 1905 Lewis and Clark Exposition is owned on the West Side of the river, and this should control the location of the Fair," said Edward Mendenhall, attorney for the proposed Portland-Hillsboro electric railway. And that fact is the reason given why the exposition should be held west of the Willamette," ejaculated a gentleman later on, who is greatly interested in the success of the Fair project, but unwilling that his name be made public. "The trouble," he continued, "seems to be that a number of the directors are not looking so much to the good admissions as to the exposition, as to other matters really not pertinent to the show at all. The matter of improving the park as has been said before, ought to be a secondary consideration. That of ownership of the stock now subscribed should be a still more distinct thought, because it is not to be a City Park affair. To be a success it must be at least a tri-state enterprise, and it cannot be expected that Washington and Idaho will look with favor upon the request that these commonwealths erect buildings in Portland with an eye single to the beautification or improvement of a Portland park."

"Tonight the Board of Directors will hold another meeting when a vote on the location of the Exposition may be taken, but in any event it is believed that a site on the East Side will not be closed. There seems to be a strong aversion among the directors to the bridges that span the river, though it is not explained how much greater will be the difficulty for persons to cross the bridges going east than to travel over them bound to the west side of the Willamette."

Present indications are that the City Park discussions will be abandoned. It is thought that not enough votes can be concentrated on that point to make it win, and that the tract at Wilamette Heights, in the northwestern section of the city, will be chosen.

An East Side director said today that the "unhappy over there is that Sellwood is jealous of Central East Portland, and bitterly opposed to University Park or any other locations in that section of the city. The same jealousy is prevalent in the Albina regions as regards Sellwood and Hawthorne Park, and this antagonism is seized upon by those of the Board opposed to all East Side sites, to land the Exposition somewhere west of the river."

It is probable that further time will be taken to discuss the matter and that a conclusion will not be reached tonight, yet it is believed that an informal vote may be taken, just to test the sentiment of the directors.

Mr. Mendenhall will renew his offer, made in the interest of the Hillsboro proposed electric road, to run a spur into the City Park, and he said this morning that, for that matter, his line would go down to the Willamette Heights site if the exposition is located there.

An impossibility.

Charles Stecker telling the following joke on himself:

He was taking a short cut through Frankfort street one afternoon a few days ago when he came upon a child crying bitterly. He stopped to ask what was the matter.

"Mamma says I can't ever be President," sobbed the child.

"Well, what if you can't?" consoled the lawyer. "There are lots of other ways of making a name for yourself, even if you don't get Roosevelt's job. You can grow up to be a good man, and that's better than being President. Don't you think so?"

"But I can't grow up to be a good man!" wailed the youngster in a fresh outburst of woe.

"Nonsense!" said Mr. Stecker. Of course you can."

"Can't neither!" bellowed the child.

"Why not, I'd like to know?"

"Cause I'm a little girl!"

EEL MYSTERIES.

HULL, Canada.—A turbin millwheel which runs a gang of saws at the Chaudiere waterfall stopped suddenly this week.

Upon shutting down the mill and unscrewing the upper cap it was discovered that the wheel had become packed full of eels. It looked as though there must have been hundreds of thousands of them.

About Valleyfield on the St. Lawrence it became necessary a good many years ago to set up special guards to prevent eels from crowding into the canals which supply water-power to the factories. And at these guards thrifty habitants used to do a good business catching the eels in wicker traps and shipping them in barrels by boat to Montreal.

One of these enterprising men volunteers the information that he has noticed that until they attain a weight of two or three pounds eels travel in droves, probably families, of some hundreds of individuals. Possibly the stopping of the great mill here may have been caused as this man suggests by the desire of a family of lusty young eels to pass that way.

The incident reminds lumbermen here of an occurrence at a little lake to the north of the Temiscamingue some years ago in order to supply a rapidly-falling stream with water enough to float a large number of logs to the Ottawa River, it became necessary to cut through a rocky natural dam and allow a little sheet of water to discharge into it.

The blasting powder did its work well and the log drivers accomplished their object comfortably. On the next Sunday several of the men made their way back to see the result of their sudden drainage of the lake. They found about an acre of thick mud at the very center of where the pond had been, and this was alive with a struggling, writhing mass of great eels.

The specimens they dragged to camp were so huge that the cook refused to have anything to do with them, as he did not believe eels grew to such a size. A few days afterward a number of men went to see the monsters, but found the mud quite dry and not a fish to be seen.

Various theories were advanced to account for their disappearance, as that a heavy thunderstorm had furnished water enough for them to leave for the almost dried-up brook. Another suggestion was that wild beasts and birds of the eagle try decand hawk family had cleared away and hawk family had cleared away the stranded fish. The people of the country declared that the eels had gone over-
