

MET DEATH

William McCann Shot by His Father.

A DESPERATE FIGHT

Led up to the Murder—A Young Girl the Cause of Strife.

(Journal Special Service.)
CHICAGO, July 23.—The criminal career of the notorious McCann family, which has been in constant warfare with the West Side police for nearly a score of years, has culminated in the shooting of William McCann, 20 years old, by his father, Patrick, after a desperate battle in their house.
Father and son had frequent arguments during the morning, the subject being a young girl, and both ate dinner in sullen silence. The ill humor broke out again after the meal, and Williams caught up a sledge hammer and struck his father with it. The blow did not disable the older man, and he received another before he could run into his bedroom and lock the door. A stroke from the hammer shattered the lock, and Williams attacked his father, inflicting the third blow. The old man caught up a revolver and shot his son.

The warden is thoroughly satisfied that Tracy is in that country, and says that Sheriff Cuddehe, of Seattle, and Sheriff Hartman, of Tacoma, together with several detectives, are still working on the case, and are hopeful of landing the wily bandit. His reasons for thinking that Tracy is there were not disclosed, but he scouts the idea of the convicts having crossed the mountains. The chase will continue, and while the officials are very confident, they apparently have hope for a successful termination of the search.

FASHIONS FADS AND FANCIES IN GAY GOTHAM

(Special Correspondence.)
NEW YORK, July 19.—The summer of 1902 will go down in the history of fashions as a record-breaker in the matter of producing novelties. In fact with all the beauty of summer modes, it may be said that modistes have depended chiefly upon the little elegancies for the smartness of the ensemble.

There have not been many types of the summer girl, but she has been versatile, accepting only the original features of fashions and clinging not long to any pronounced style.

The mode which retains its hold upon the popular fancy longest is THE SHORT WAIST SUIT. This implies not necessarily, a plain skirt and short waist, for the bodice, like every other feature of fashion has been elaborated upon until it has developed into a wonderful creation, displaying the intricate hand-work and trimming of the most delicate textiles.

Shirt waist gowns in the finer materials have the blouses trimmed with bands of embroidery, or sometimes, the entire affair is a series of alternating bands of insertion and silk mull.

The skirts, in keeping with the blouses, are embroidered and finished WITH DEEP PLOUNCES of embroidery. Some very dainty costumes in white organdie built over taffeta have yokes composed of strips of the organdie joined by a fancy stitch, and from the yokes the flounce of the skirt depends, gathered quite full all around to hang in bewitching confusion about the feet.

Constantly the modistes are evidencing by the outlines of fashion, the influence of physical culture upon the feminine mind. The very exercises that are practiced to lend

GRACE AND DIGNITY to the figure are studied, and the result is an effort of the part of the dressmaker to bring into effect such styles as will emphasize the beauty of this training. Probably to this fact as to no other may the long, flowing, clinging lines of the past few seasons be attributed. The greatest novelty of fashions, just now is in belts, neck trimmings and such tiny accessories. There are so many ways

WITHOUT A HEART

A Woman Drinks to the Death of Her Dying Lover.

(Journal Special Service.)
CHICAGO, July 23.—Smiling into the eyes of a man for whom she had jilted William M. Wheeler, a Marshalltown, Ia., Ada Marsh, a habitue of Wodach's concert saloon, drank to the death of her rejected lover, who lay dying near where she sat.
More than 100 men and women were seated at tables in the resort when young Wheeler approached, begging her to forsake the man she was with and go with him.
"Don't bother me," cried the girl, "go away. I have told you to do so before."
"And I have told you what I would do," he replied. Then, taking a seat at a table near the one at which she sat, he raised a bottle to his lips. A moment later he fell heavily to the floor and in a few minutes was dead.

SAID HE WAS TRACY

William Nixon, Went Up Against Real Thing in Seattle.

(Journal Special Service.)
SEATTLE, July 23.—"I'm Harry Tracy the outlaw. Now you get me some drinks and give me some money. If you say a word about me I'll blow your head off."

That's what William Nixon, who wanted to be a bad man, told an actress in a variety hall here the other night, and now he lies in the city jail so badly beaten that he can hardly speak or see.
It was on Friday night that the would-be desperado went into a box in Joe Williams' concert hall in the tenderloin district, and made his little play to a girl who was employed there. Being frightened, she brought his drinks and let the supposed man walk out of the saloon without a word. After he had gone, however, she thought the matter over and informed the proprietor of the place of her experience. He passed the tip along to the policeman on the beat, and when Nixon again entered the saloon on Saturday night he was being waited for.

As soon as the supposed desperado entered the door both the policeman and Williams, who is a brother of the deputy sheriff who was wounded in the fight at Bothell, jumped on their man and nearly beat him to death before he had a chance to explain. When Nixon was taken in-sensible to the police headquarters it was discovered that he was not Tracy, and the visions of a big reward which had been before the eyes of Williams and his variety woman dwindled away to nothing. Nixon is so badly injured that he is in serious danger.

RUNS WILD

Charles Recknagel Takes to the Hills.

HE IS A LUNATIC

Loss of Fortune Is the Cause of His Recent Attack of Insanity.

REDDING, Cal., July 23.—Charles Recknagel, 24 years of age, and an athlete, is insane and roaming the hills somewhere southwest of Redding, while his brother, William Recknagel, from whom he escaped this afternoon, and Sheriff Behrens are planning an expedition to set off at daylight in a renewed effort to capture him. The young man's dementia has come over the loss of the family fortune. His brother fears that he may do some violence to himself or any one who tries to take him.
The Recknagels are a well-known family living near Auburn, in Placer County. Years ago they invested in a mining property and the investment was lost. Charles, the youngest son, brooded until his mind was affected, when he was sent to Napa Asylum, and soon recovered. Lately his gloom returned, and he was sent to his brother, William Recknagel, in Western Shasta. The change did no good, and the brother brought him in this morning with the intention of having him examined. He saw the sign of the Sheriff's office, evidently realized that he was to go to the asylum again, and, springing out of the door, he fled to the hills.
Sheriff Behrens and William Recknagel and others chased him for an hour, but he distanced them and escaped in the brush.

BEAUTY.

HOW IT CAN BE OBTAINED

How to Make a Marvelously Perfect Complexion and Restore Youthful Looks.

HOW TO REMOVE PIMPLES, FRECKLES, MOTH, BROWN PATCHES, BLACKHEADS, OILINESS AND ALL DEFECTS FROM THE FACE, NECK AND ARMS.

There is nothing more beautiful than the human face with its vivacious countenance, its sparkling eye, its pleasant smile and perfect symmetry.

But the growing glory of the face is a radiant complexion with its lively glow, its youthful stage, and its fine, smooth texture.

But the question is can such a complexion be attained? In this wonderfully progressive age of art, literature and science; of the steam engine, the mighty cannon, the electric motor, the wireless telegraph and the ponderous fabric-making machines; what is there that is impossible?

By a careful study of the nature and texture of the skin, and a thorough research in the realm of chemistry and compounding of ingredients, a remedy has been discovered that will accomplish these results.

This remedy is Mrs. A. Ruppert's Face Bleach. WHAT FACE BLEACH IS.—Face Bleach is not a cosmetic to cover up, but it absolutely removes once and forever all the discolorations and blemishes to which the complexion is subject. It can positively guarantee every woman it will do all I claim. Its action on the skin cannot fail to remove every defect. It is a well-known fact that the blood in order to cleanse itself is constantly throwing off its impurities through the pores of the skin; now if the pores are not kept open, the impurities of the blood cannot escape, but collect below the surface and produce all manner of skin troubles, such as PIMPLES, FRECKLES, MOTH, SALLOWNESS, ECZEMA, AGNE AND NUMEROUS OTHER SKIN DISEASES AND DISCOLORATIONS.

ACTION OF FACE BLEACH.—Now Face Bleach has this two-fold action: first, it has a magnetical action, which attracts and draws to the surface the impurities which have collected under the skin; and, secondly, a chemical action which removes by scaling off (in the form of a fine dandruff) the surface of the outer, diseased or dead cuticle, leaving the under skin beautiful, youthful-looking and delicately tinted by nature—clear, smooth and perfect. This method is perfectly harmless to the most delicate skin, as it harmonizes with the laws of hygiene and nature, the two factors which we must adhere to and follow if we wish to permanently improve our personal appearance.

THOUSANDS BENEFITED.—Thousands of patrons, who were annoyed and vexed with most miserable complexions, have been delighted with the grand improvement Madame Ruppert's Face Bleach has produced in their skins. Many complexions, covered with pimples, freckles and unsightly eruptions (itching, burning and annoying) have been changed to bright, beautiful skins, and the improvements made in their looks were simply marvelous. There is scarcely a defect to which the complexion is heir which will not succumb to this wonderful remedy. Premature wrinkles and lines—those lurkers of beauty—are quickly effaced, and those muddy, disfiguring, sallow, jaundiced skins are quickly transformed into clear, wholesome ones by its use. Flabby skins—which also mark the ravages of time—become firm and smooth after a few applications. Skin troubles which have baffled the most skillful physicians have been removed and cured promptly, and many have expressed, personally and by letter, their heartfelt and profoundest thanks for this wonderful Face Bleach.

A positive guarantee is given if Face Bleach is used according to the new special directions, which are furnished with each order, that it will remove every discoloration and impurity from your complexion.

All of Mrs. A. Ruppert's world renowned preparations are sold by us at reduced prices.

AMERICAN GIRLS ARE NOT GREAT BLUSHERS

(Journal Special Service.)
VIENNA, July 23.—Dr. Eulenbarg, the noted Vienna scientist, who has made an especial study of blushing, declares that it is a disease of the nerves, and that the women of America suffer far less from the affliction than those of Europe.

Dr. Eulenbarg recently returned from a visit to America and hence speaks with some degree of authority. Some very interesting cases of blushing among American society girls came under his observation. Europeans, he says, are wont to call the American girl unduly advanced and calculating, but my observation shows that she has a great deal of sensitiveness stored for if she had not, the blood would not rise so often to her cheeks on small provocation, or for no provocation at all.

He tells of a certain Newport heiress, extremely pretty, who was driven to forswear society because the unfortunate affliction of blushing extended to her beautiful neck and arms, and thus prevented her from appearing in full dress. She suffered not only outwardly, but lost all self-control when blushing. Her thoughts became "all mixed up" and she could not speak coherently. She underwent treatment for nervousness but the doctors could not help her.

Another singular case was that of a leading actress who consulted the doctor during her trip to the United States. She had ruined her complexion, he says, by excessive use of white grease paint applied to cover her blushes, which marred her performance. She blushed whenever anything went wrong behind the scenes or on the stage, and had no control of her emotions.

Dr. Eulenbarg has discovered that those addicted to blushing suffer less in summer than in the cold months, and that summer is the best time in which to be treated for the annoying disease. There are critical times, even in the warm months, for the blusher. When a thunderstorm is in the air, and in the damp of the early morning and late at night, persons addicted to the habit blush most often and most violently, says the professor. Strong men do not blush except under extraordinary circumstances. Blushing men are seldom cured, for they are often sufferers from heart disease.

SHOT IN A MIMIC TRACY EPISODE IN SEATTLE

(Journal Special Service.)
SEATTLE, July 23.—Victims of Tracy in stadium hisses their troubles as well as the real personages. One of the actors at the Third Avenue Theater has a grievance against the writers of the play "Tracy and Merrill." It is likely, unless a compromise is effected that the doings back of the scenes will be aired in the courts.

The complainant in the case is named Kingston. He occupies the comparatively insignificant position of one of the convicts in the Salem prison, which is depicted on the boards. To the profession Kingston is what is known as a "super." Those who have seen the play will remember that there is the prison scene and later the jail-break. Tracy and Merrill on the stage following out the incidents of the Tracy and Merrill in real life, do a little killing before leaving the prison. On the stage a few guards and some of the other convicts fall on the stage, after each shot. Last Sunday night this scene was quite successful, a little too successful, in fact.

When Tracy was making his escape he fired at one of the guards and put him hors de combat. He then aimed the gun at a convict and the hammer fell with a click. The cartridge had refused to explode. Tracy then tried again, but by this time the unfortunate convict was too close to him. The cartridge exploded this time all right and the convict fell. He was out for fair and stayed on the floor while the audience was howling curtain calls. Some of the stage hands noticed him on the floor and went to him to tell him to get up, as it was all over, when it was found that he couldn't. He was brought to his senses, and it was shown that the wadding from the gun, shot at close range, had struck the "super" right in the middle of the forehead, making a slight cut. The Tracy of the stage, true to his name, had shot to kill.

Kingston is not hurt very much, but his feelings are wounded to such an extent that he next day announced his intention of placing his case in the hands of a lawyer. An effort is being made by the principal actors and authors of the piece to get fair and amicable and that there was no neglect or carelessness on their part. One of the other supers had his face slightly burned with powder the same night. Since Sunday night the cartridges for the outlaw's guns are wadded with powdered asbestos, which eliminates all possibility of danger.
