DOWN BY THE SEA

Gay Young Men in Trouble—Notes of Social Interest.

(Journal Special Service.) LONG BEACH, Wash., Aug. 1.—With several exceptions, Long Beach, the famous watering place of the Pacific Coast, has all the comforts of a big city. It costs a man 25 cents to have his face scraped; half a dollar for a hair cut, with no extras. A broken looking glass, a rattling-backed chair, an utter absence of disinfectants, and to think that he charges as much to remove the hair of a tourist as the O. R. & N. Railroad charges for a round trip from Long Beach to Ilwaco!

It is a jarring to a good many who left their shaving outfits at home, and there is a strong probability of a whisker club being organized.

Even the milkmen have formed a trust. It costs 30 cents a gallon to color your coffee, that sky blue—so nice to look at. The saloons have a combine. It costs 10 cents a glass for beer with no reductions for special drinks.

The drillers have struck an unusually hard rock in the well and in order to drill further it is necessary to secure heavier machinery, which will be purchased in the East. Messrs. Gates and Moore have great faith in the future of the Malheur oil fields, and give assurances that work will be resumed this fall.

HEPPNER.

HEPPNER, Aug. 1.—Almost the entire wool crop of this district has been baled, and most of it has been already shipped. Taking it all the way through, the season has been very active and conditions have been favorable and satisfactory. From the southern portion of Morrow County and Grant and Gilliam Counties more wool came to Heppner this season than ever before, while about 400,000 pounds of neavy wools down in the Sand country were purchased by the Pendleton Scouring Mills and shipped by way of Echo and other points.

The collections during July aggregated $51,530.56.

THE DALLES.

(Journal Special Service.) THE DALLES, August 1.—The Wasco Warehouse Milling Company is erecting another large warehouse in The Dalles. The new building will be 50 by 250 feet, and have an immense storing capacity. The enormous grain crops of Eastern Oregon will result in flooding The Dalles with wheat this season, and this concern is preparing to handle the great increase in this commodity. The first of this year's wheat was received at Moody's warehouse Thursday, and is of excellent quality. It was brought in by John Wagonsblast from his place to Dry Hollow.

Work hands in Eastern Oregon are at a premium. In Wasco, Sherman and Morrow counties harvest hands are being offered from $2 to $2.50 per day to work in the fields, and yet there is a great scarcity of men.
