ASTO MAINE SALMON

Scarce in the Water, Though Plentiful on Bills of Fare.

(Journal Special Service.)

BUCKSPORT, Me., Aug. 5.—"This notion of advertising Kennebec River salmon which has been adopted by the New York and Chicago hotels and restaurants causes me to have several kinds of severe pains," said one of the largest dealers in fish on the river.

"Why, the people on the Kennebec gave up trying to catch salmon during the Civil War. They set no nets, put out no weirs and have no hope of ever securing any."

"But the men who run big hotels in the cities are not the only liars about salmon. I admit we do something in the mendacity line right here at home."

"I am getting on an average 50 cents a pound for all I can sell. Rich people who want Maine salmon are willing to pay well for them, so long as they are sure they are getting the genuine article."

"At the very time I am charging 50 cents a pound for Maine salmon and the buyers are settling the express charges, the local marketmen are selling salmon for from 20 to 25 cents a pound."

"The salmon season in Maine closed July 15, and I think the total catch this season will be worth about $300, which is a very low figure for an industry that has received so much advertising."

About Railroads.

Two new trains are being built for the Illinois Central that it is promised, will eclipse anything in the way of passenger equipment that has so far been produced.

Seattle's City Council has finally begun wrestling with an ordinance that, when finally adopted, will enable the Northern Pacific to build and maintain terminal yards on the tidelands in that city.

Through the dishonesty of an employee of the roadmaster's office on the New Orleans division of the Illinois Central, who put in bogus payrolls, the paymaster has been deceived for five months and the company swindled out of more than $400.

It is announced that the Illinois Central will this fall build a third grain elevator in New Orleans near the new 1,500,000-bushel elevator at Stuyvesant Docks.

John Foreman, of Pottstown, foreman of bridges and buildings for the Reading, has been in the company's service for 55 years and is now 79 years old.

The Illinois Central's long-distance telephone system between Chicago and New Orleans has been completed, tested and found satisfactory.

The above is an authentic photograph of the valuable collection of jewels owned by May Yohe. Because Captain Strong left her suddenly and took these gems along with him to transform them into collateral, the actress has recently caused the sensation that has electrified society.

Chinese Culture of Trees.

"Queer, aren't they?" said one of the party as they noticed the tree in the illustration. "Who's queer?" asked the little man with the short legs and large head.

The tree was of special interest to the little man, as he was collecting information about all kinds of queer growths of Chinese trees and flowers.

The tree is an ordinary evergreen. It had been split up from the roots about six feet when a sapling, the roots having been carefully divided, and thus planted in front of the temple.

Thus far we have discovered only six of these trees. Four are in the north end of the Forbidden City, in front of two of the temples. One referred to is before the temple in the winter palace, where Count von Waldersee's troops were stationed, and the third is in a similar position in the summer palace.

"What are you doing in the mountains so early?" asked the hunter in Kentucky. "Thought if I came out early I might find a still," responded the revenue officer.

in which is an abundance of fruit. It consists of four sprouts which have been neatly formed into a braid and have continued to grow until they are each three inches in diameter.

A very interesting and attractive flowering shrub is called Han-Chieh-mei. It is a species of plum, is used as a pot plant and grows two or three feet high.

Perhaps the most attractive specimen of Chinese plant cultivation is the grafting of the chrysanthemum. They have a large, common weed called hao tk.

It goes without saying that a people who thus understand the grafting of flowers are not ignorant of any of the processes of budding, grafting or cross-fertilizing fruit, as a result we are able to obtain very fine specimens, especially of the peach.—Scientific American.

OVER THE TEACUPS

Only an intensely selfish person can find enjoyment in doing exactly as he or she "has a mind to" as a steady condition in life.

In the perpetual doing to suit oneself there is no touch of sympathy, no pulse of comradeship, no sense of satisfaction in a certain good-will toward others.

A woman finds a great deal of satisfaction in making a coffee, a sofa pillow, the appointments of a home, an afternoon tea, and a lot of other things "to suit herself."

The other night a woman said: "I am tired of doing my way!—It is the fattest phase of living, this always condescending to my own desires and caprices. There's no response in continuously serving myself. Sometimes I would be grateful for a rapid-fire of my faults. Anything to break up minding myself—anything but downright abuse."

The woman is a widow, rich, and hasn't an incumbrance of any sort. She is envied by many men and women because she is able to buy what she wants, to go where she pleases and when, and with no call from what suits her best.

It's all very well for the aggressive woman who everywhere makes herself seen and heard to say: "Only a weak woman depends upon a man to lead where and when she may follow."

But just the same, the sensitively attuned woman with strong intellectuality finds assurance in depending upon the forceful mentality of a husband just as she finds comfort in the material care he bestows upon her.

It's this type's prerogative to cherish this kind of logic. Nobody wants to meddle with her doctrines.

The Chicago & Northwestern and the Omaha have ever been fruitful in the way of novel advertising. Its book on Rinehart's Indians was eagerly sought after. Its golf score took well.

THE RAILROADS AS ADVERTISERS

Unique Schemes Adopted to Attract Attention—Give Valuable Information.

The ingenuity of railroad advertising men is continually on the qui vive to evolve new and attractive ideas that will draw the attention of the public to their respective lines.

The Northern Pacific every year gets out a special issue of its Woodland series, which have a real educational value, and have been utilized in schools.

The Burlington Route is especially prolific in its publications. It issues a handbook on Colorado; a guide to the Black Hills; Little Jurgens in the Black Hills; Mines and Mining in the Black Hills; two books on Nebraska and a monthly agricultural journal, entitled, "The Corn Belt."

The Southern Pacific issues every month a first-class magazine called "Sunset." These are beautifully illustrated, and are every month growing better. A specially valuable lot of literature in these days of immigration are the tiny brochures issued by the different Boards of Trade throughout Oregon.

The Milwaukee has a valuable pocket map which shows up its immense mileage in a most attractive way. The most valuable bit of advertising the Company has ever put forth, and that is saying a great deal, is a brochure just out entitled, "The Carver and Character of Abraham Lincoln."

The Chicago & Northwestern and the Omaha have ever been fruitful in the way of novel advertising. Its book on Rinehart's Indians was eagerly sought after.

"How to Start Afresh" is among the latest of its booklets, and is the post-humous work of the late Colonel P. Donah, who died while the work was in press.

"With Nature in Colorado" is a valuable contribution to railroad literature by the Rio Grande System. It is artistic. "Around the Circle" is another really valuable book this line gets out. "Sights, Places and Resorts in the Rockies" is another.

The Illinois Central's "New Orleans for the Tourist" contains much quaint and unusual information regarding this old Southern city. The Wisconsin Central, the Rock Island and in fact every line which finds entrance or is represented here all have enriched the world with literature which, if the public would have to buy, would be treasured up.
