Classified Ads

"Little and often fill the purse."

Is only another way of saying that little ads., often changed and used all the time, bring good results.

In no way can you do this so cheaply and effectively as in the Classified Ads of THE JOURNAL.

These ads, like "Little drops of water" and "Little grains of sand," are small—but immense in their results.

CROPS AND PRICES

Hops Excellent this Year, Only Trouble Is to Secure Pickers.

The hop growers are elated over the prospect of high prices for their productions this year. There is a good yield also, and it is conservatively estimated that the crop for Oregon will be about 100,000 bales of merchantable hops.

Mr. Winstanley, secretary of the Hopgrowers' Association, and M. L. Jones, its ex-president, are in the city consulting the local railroad authorities on the project of a cheap rate for pickers from Southern Oregon. They say that the crop is in excellent condition, and if the pickers can be secured in season to harvest it.

LOCAL MARKETS.

The California steamer George W. Elder is in this morning with a supply of pears, plums and grapes. Oregon Crawford peaches are taking the place of the California, and about the last of the latter have been received. The supply of watermelons is plentiful and quality good. A variety of small pears is in from The Dalles, and nutmeg melons from the same section. A few Cassaba melons are on the market, and the supply of vegetables is sufficient for needs.

The local wheat situation is unchanged. New York and Chicago exchanges have been very quiet this morning. Quotations have risen about one-fourth of a cent since opening. Bradstreet's reports wheat stocks in the United States east and west of the Rocky mountains on August 16 as showing an increase of 259,000 bushels over last week. The American visible supply shows a decrease of 1,509,000 bushels.

Local exporters have bought about 20,000 tons of barley within the past three days, and quotations on feed and rolled barley are up $1 to $2 a ton.

United States Department of Agriculture, Oregon Section, Portland, Or., Tuesday, August 19, 1902.

The past week has been cool and showery. The rains have been general in the Northern part of the state from the coast to the Blue Mountains, but in the Southern part of the state they were light and scattering. Harvest work in the Umatilla district and in the Grand Ronde Valley was suspended for from two to three days on account of the wet spell.

The grain yields in the Willamette Valley continue to be disappointing and variable. In Marion County the average will be about 15 bushels and in general they will fall below the average in all of the other sections of the state. In Southern Oregon the grain is turning out well. In the Umatilla country the yields are improving and the reseeded fields are averaging from 30 to 40 bushels, which is considerably better than expected. In the rGand Ronde Valley the harvest is about half done, and while the yields are satisfactory, there is more than the usual amount of smut on both wheat and oats.

The rains have been of great benefit to sugar beets and late vegetables as well as to corn and pastures. The hop crop is still in a very promising condition, especially in Southern Oregon, where not a single unfavorable report has been received. The potato blight is increasing in the coast counties and in some sections the damage is quite serious.

Fruit in the Hood River Valley continues doing nicely. In the coast district fruit is also making favorable progress, but in the Willamette Valley there is considerable complaint of apples dropping more than is usual at this time of the year. Prunes will be a light crop.
