HELENA, Aug. 29.—The Webfooters took the second game of the series from the Senators. Wiggs did masterly work in the box, and his support was good. He struck out 11 men. The game was on the goose-egg order for Portland up to the sixth inning. The visitors then made two scores on an error by the Helena left fielder dropping one of Vigneux's flys. Up to the 10th inning the game was a tie at three and three. In the last Portland brought in two more runs. During the game the home team had 19 men left on bases, and played in hard luck. Score:

In Pugdam.
CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Joe Choyinski, the Californian will again enter the ring tonight. He will attempt to put out Jim Driscoll and Jack Beauchotte, two heavyweights, in the same ring. Each bout is limited to six rounds. If Choyinski is the victor he will be matched with O'Brien, who has defeated both of these men.

KEARNS VS. HAGARTY.
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29.—"Kid" McFadden, the California featherweight, who recently returned from England, where he won one fight and was beaten by Ben Jordan in the last round of their 16-round encounter, goes against Tim Hegarty, the Australian champion, before the Yosemite Athletic Club tonight. The articles call for a 20-round go at 125 pounds weight at the ringside. Both fighters appear to be in excellent condition for the contest.

OPENING OF CLUB.
BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 29.—The Eureka Athletic Club has arranged a good card for its patrons for the opening boxing show of the season tonight. The wind-up is to be a 20-round go between Tim Kearns, the clever and hard-hitting Boston lightweight, and Herman Miller of this city.

A RECORD OF DISASTER.

Edward A. Crape, who has settled in Portland after having been a world wide traveler, rounded out a record of previous minor mishaps by a tumble of thirty feet at the Blaxier saloon building yesterday, receiving severe injuries including a broken leg. The previous record includes several shipwrecks, and severe experiences, but not before was the traveler laid up by injuries. On one wreck he floated many hours on a plank, near Cape Town, Africa, but came through limb and skin whole. His injury here was the result of an intended harmless joke of his fellow workmen on the building. Crape having volunteered to assist in reaching a difficult point on the roof. He passed out and through a window, which the carpenters then closed up so as to see how he would get down. He attempted to do so by a water pipe, which, however, gave way and precipitated him to the ground. However he so managed as to come straight down upon a box that would break the fall, which it did, and his leg with it. He will, however, be disabled for only a short time.

NO GRAFTING.

Public Will Be Protected During Elks' Carnival.
Fakirs, grafters and flim-flammers, who will attempt to operate in Portland during the Elks' carnival, will not find much inducement.

Mayor Williams has given Chief McLaughlin authority to use his own judgment in the issuing of licenses for the various attractions and schemes for the extracting of money from the unsuspecting public.
The chief has decided to allow nothing to run in the town where there is any suspicion of unfairness connected therewith.
The Elks will see that there will be no grafting inside the grounds, and with the outside protected, the people will not be annoyed by the swarm of vultures that prey on the credulity of the public on occasions of this kind.

Strange, But True.

Bishop Taylor of the Methodist church, who died on May 18 at Palo Alto, Cal., had for over half a century slept with his head pillowed upon a stone. He generally carried the stone in a satchel and always laid his head upon it at night wherever he was, thus literally carrying out the words of the hymn: "My rest a stone." A Baltimore clergyman says that on one occasion the bishop visited him when the temperature was far below zero, and that the bishop slept in the room with all the windows thrown up and with his head on the stone.

ROYALTY COMING

Duc de Luynes Shortly to Visit United States.

(Journal Special Service.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Russian Grand Dukes, Chinese Princes and the heir apparent to the throne of Siam are among Gotham's noted visitors this season, but of the lot of foreign dignitaries the visit of none is likely to attract more attention than that of the Duc de Luynes, who is scheduled to sail from France tomorrow in company with the Comte and Comtesse de Castellane.

The Duc de Luynes belongs to one of the "first" families of France, being closely related to the Dukes of Noailles, of Chaulnes, of Uzès, of Brissac and of Malle. He is regarded as the leader of the royalist party and is one of the closest friends of the Duc de Orleans, having served the latter as principal gentleman-in-waiting, chief of the household, and as Grand Chamberlain.

The Luynes, it may be added, were immensely wealthy. But what, between the almost insane extravagance of the Dowager Duchesse de Luynes (who lavished enormous sums upon her friend and companion, Mme. de Waru, formerly known as the Marquise d'Arve de St. Denis) and the Duke's own liberality in behalf of the cause of his friend, the Duc de Orleans, the Luynes fortune is terribly impaired and the estates mortgaged up to the very hilt.

THIS WAS A PEACH

Note From a Young Lady in Living New Jersey.

PRINCETON, Aug. 29.—Here Cupid has moved in a mysterious way his wonders to perform. A Jersey peach and a brief but pointed letter hidden within it furnish the data upon which the romance may be founded. When W. J. Montgomery, a Princeton graduate, opened a peach which had been purchased at a grocery store in Asseman street, he found hidden within the pit, which had been cleverly forced open, a small roll of paper. In the presence of two other sons of Old Nassau he unrolled it, and discovered that the bit of paper bore a message from a young woman several miles over the hills from Princeton. The epistle was as follows:

This peach grew on my father's farm at Little Rocky Hill. His name is Mr. Job Hunt, and my name is Miss Caroline Hunt. My address is Kingston, N. J. Whoever eats this peach let him please write to me and tell me how it tasted. I hope a nice-looking young man eats it, and I hope he is single, and that I may see him some day.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL

Capital Stock of Company Increased to $95,040,000.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 29.—In accordance with the recommendations of the directors the stockholders of the Illinois Central Railroad Company, at a special meeting in Chicago today voted to increase the capital stock of the company from $75,000,000 to $95,040,000, by the issue of 158,000 shares. The proceeds of the new issue will be used in double-tracking the whole line from Chicago to New Orleans.

Saloons and Drunkenness.

The number of saloons in a city does not bear any close relation to the amount of drunkenness in it, or at least the number of arrests for drunkenness.
New York, with double the population of Chicago and 30 per cent more saloons, has fewer arrests for drunkenness in a year than the big city on Lake Michigan. Baltimore has more than twice as many saloons as Boston, while Boston has seven times as many arrests for drunkenness in a year as does Baltimore.
San Francisco has 50 per cent more saloons than St. Louis, but three times as many arrests. Indianapolis has more saloons than Paterson, but the number of arrests for drunkenness is 20 per cent greater in Paterson than in Indianapolis.

Cleveland and Cincinnati have about the same number of saloons, but the arrests for drunkenness, which are 2000 annually in Cincinnati, are 7000 in Cleveland. Buffalo and Philadelphia have about the same number of saloons, but the arrests for drunkenness in Philadelphia are four times as many as those in Buffalo.
Washington has 500 saloons and Milwaukee has 1700, but while arrests for drunkenness in Washington average 3200 yearly in Milwaukee they are only 1900. Worcester, Mass., with 70 saloons, has 2000 arrests in a year for drunkenness, and Detroit, with 900 saloons, the same number.
The explanation of these disparities is to be found probably in the fact that in the cities where there is an unusual number of saloons they are only for the sale of lager beer, whereas in the cities with few saloons more whiskey is sold.

MINING CONGRESS

The Advance Guard of Delegates Is Beginning to Arrive.

(Journal Special Service.)

BUTTE, Mont., Aug. 29.—The advance guard of delegates is already putting in an appearance for the international mining congress which is to begin its sessions in Butte next Monday. Headquarters were established today by Secretary Mahon and the delegates as soon as they arrive are provided with badges and assigned to quarters. No set program will be prepared in advance of the assembling of the congress, it being thought best to leave the arrangements for each day's proceedings to the pleasure of the body.

The list of the speakers and their subjects, so far as arranged, includes the following: "Water Resources of the West," F. H. Newell of the United States Geological Survey; "Unintelligent Mining," W. H. Fraser of Mullan, Idaho; "The Great Expositions as Factors in Promoting the Mining Interests of the Country," Prof. J. A. Holmes of the University of North Carolina; "Notes on Montana's Ore Deposits," Walter H. Weed of the United States Geological Survey; "Mines of Georgia," Prof. S. W. McCulloch of Atlanta, Ga.; "Amendments to Corporation Laws," W. R. Everette of Chicago; "First Aid to the Injured in Mining," Dr. Geo. W. King, Helena, Mont.; "The Undeveloped Mineral Resources of the Southern States," Chancellor Robert B. Fulton of the University of Mississippi.

FAMOUS RIFLEMEN

International Tournament Held Today at Sea Girt, N. J.

(Journal Special Service.)

SEA GRIT, N. J., Aug. 29.—Riflemen of ability and world-wide reputation were on hand in force today at the opening of the great international and interstate rifle shooting tournament of the National Rifle Shooting Association of America. Prominent spectators were numerous and the shooting of the members of the crack teams was watched with the keenest interest.

The competitions began today and to continue through next week. Besides representatives of the various branches of the regular service the competitors include teams representing the state militia of Massachusetts, Michigan, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, and a number of other states. The chief matches of interest to National Guardsmen are the Hilton trophy, Wimbledon cup and interstate military matches.

The Hilton trophy match is open to the world. The conditions are seven shots each at 200 yards standing and 500 yards and 600 yards prone, with head to the target. The prize is a trophy valued at $3000, presented by the late Henry Hilton of New York, to be shot for annually, and a medal to each member of the winning team. The conditions of the interstate military match are ten shots each at 200 and 500 yards and it is open to the army, navy and marine corps of the United States and the state militia of the several states. The prize is the bronze "Soldier of Marathon," valued at $600. The Wimbledon cup match is open to all citizens and residents of the United States, the conditions being thirty shots at 100 yards, any position without artificial rest. The prize is the Wimbledon cup, presented by the National Rifle Association of Great Britain to the National Rifle Association of America; value $500, to be shot for annually, and a medal to the winner.

Canada's Great Forests.

Many persons have wondered if the stories are true about an immense northern belt of timber stretching across Canada from the Atlantic to Alaska. It is said that none of this forest has yet been utilized by man, though it has immense resources in pulp wood and other timber. There is no doubt that the timber is there, and that it is a great reserved source of future wealth. One may easily trace this belt of timber far across Canada on any map.
The east end of the belt almost overhangs Atlantic waters to the north of the Strait of Belle Isle, and touches the waters of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, south of that strait. It sweeps westward round the southern prolongation of Hudson bay, known as James bay, north-west between Hudson bay and Lake Winnipeg, to beyond the Churchill river and then on across the lake regions of the Northwest territories and still farther to Alaska. This mighty belt of trees is about 4000 miles long and has an average width of 700 miles. Of course, the trees tend to become smaller in the north.—New York Sun.

Seeds at Ten Dollars Each.

The rarest thing in the vegetable kingdom is the double coconut palm which grows only in the Seychellum Islands in the Indian Ocean. There are but two in the United States, one in the Philippines conservatory at Pittsburg and the other a plant two feet high recently acquired by the national conservatory at Washington. Some years ago one of the wealthy rajahs of India offered a ship's cargo for a single specimen of the rarity. For a long time it was supposed that this variety of palm grew in the sea. The seed requires seven years to ripen, and even the treasure seekers of the botanical world who visited the Seychellum Islands and secured the seeds, from one of which the young tree in Washington was grown, were obliged to pay $10 each for the seeds.

LOSS OF PRESTIGE

Belgian Press Does Not Take Interest in Kruger's Actions.

(Journal Special Service.)

LONDON, Aug. 29.—The Brussels correspondent of the Times says that the telegrams from Holland have been confused and contradictory, but it is plain that the Boer generals have done everything in their power to avoid arousing anti-British demonstrations, and that all reports in regard to their future so-called "political programme" are premature.
The correspondent says that the rumors that Mr. Kruger reproached the generals are not credited in Brussels, and the reports of dissensions between the generals and their colleagues are unconfirmed.
The loss of prestige by Mr. Kruger and his party, says the correspondent, is shown by the lack of interest in their doings on the part of the Belgian press. Serious opinion does not assign to Dr. Leyds any status in future political developments in South Africa.

The Times, in an article quoted by the Paris correspondent of the Times, considers that the defeat of the South African Republic was merely temporary. In the sense that the Afrikaners are already victorious.
The paper thinks that the Boer generals' decision to return to London immediately shows that they expect from the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, a positive statement as to when autonomy will be granted.

ZOLA'S NEW WORK

Transfers Dreyfus Affair From Military to University World.

(Journal Special Service.)

LONDON, Aug. 29.—The Paris correspondent of the Times says that L'Aurore, which published serially M. Zola's "Fecundite" and "Travail" will soon begin to publish the third of his series "The Four Gospels." It is to be called "Verite."
L'Aurore announces that the lamentable events of recent years have led M. Zola to note that only an educated people is capable of justice. No progress is possible without education of the people. For France it is "the struggle of the lay school."
In his plot M. Zola has transferred the Dreyfus affair from the military to the university world. He depicts the struggle between a free-thinking husband and a Catholic wife over the question of the child. M. Zola is convinced of the necessity of wrestling womanhood from priestly influences if men mean to assure their own liberation.

The church says M. Zola, is the evil anti-social power, which must be destroyed.

UNKNOWN REGIONS

Of Alaska Being Explained—Letter From Geologist Brooks.

(Journal Special Service.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Regions in Alaska hitherto almost unknown are being explored this summer by officers of the geological survey. The survey has received a letter from Geologist A. H. Brooks, dated at Ketchikan River, June 23, reporting that he has found gravel at an altitude of from 1,000 to 1,800 feet on the flank of mountains, while other evidences of glacial action were found at an elevation of 2,000 feet above sea level.
Mr. Brooks is at present leading an exploring party which started late in May from near the head of the Cook Inlet, on the southern coast to explore the unknown region of the Western Alaska range and to reach Circle City, on the Upper Yukon, before the arrival of cold weather. The distance is about 600 miles, 100 of which had been traversed at the date of the letter.
