

BILLS OF PLAYS

A Week of Gaiety Is to Come for Portland.

CARNIVAL FEATURES

The Theater Season Will Also Then Be in Full Swing.

The coming week will bring to Portland a world of amusement interest, with various attractions from which to select. There will be the Carnival of the Elks, with the Jambour Midway Shows and the other features, displays by Portland business houses and Eastern concerns, and music and brilliant lighting effects and all of the camaraderie and democratic mingling of this people of all classes that goes with such gala occasions.

AT CORDRAY'S.

Carry Dolliver.

Concerning the numerous attractions the managers of the houses have the following to say to the public:

BY MR. BAKER.

Neill Stock Opens a Season of Repertoire Work.

Tomorrow afternoon the Neill Stock Company will begin its season at the Baker theater, presenting "A Social Highwayman," a society play in four acts. Each act will be staged in a manner never before seen at the Baker Theatre. In fact, the productions will be one of the features that the management takes pride in.

The company has been selected with a great deal of care and each member comes to Portland with a first-class Eastern reputation. Experience is an essential that makes an actor proficient. A great many people get the idea that they would like to go upon the stage and apply to the management for positions. In some of the stock houses throughout the country they engage four or five principals and fill in with amateurs and people who think they can act. And in some instances the management does not know differently.

opera, "Paul Jones," for the first three nights and Saturday matinee, and the successful musical mixture, "A Gaiety Girl," for the last three nights of the week. The Seattle Times of Aug. 25 has the following concerning the "Paul Jones" first night in that city:

To speak in very complimentary terms of the singing of "Paul Jones" at the Grand last evening is a mere matter of justice, and it also correctly reflects the opinion of the capacity audience which was in attendance. The big house at this time of year is a surprise, and seems to show that the Pollard Opera Company is constantly augmenting its popularity with local theatre-goers.

Fred Pollard sang for the first time his new song, "The Rose of Kiharney." This is destined to be the next popular song in Seattle. Written by Carroll Johnson, it was brought out by Maude Ambor at Fischer's in San Francisco, and is rightly given five encores there. "Fred Pollard" for that matter, had four encores on it last night. He will have his five before the week is out. The song is given an appropriate choral backing.

Belasco Juvenile Specialty Co. for the Entire Week.

At Cordray's for Carnival week, the Belasco Juvenile Specialty Company will be the bill, and it is safe to predict that the attendance will increase as the week progresses, unless, indeed, the opening night does not compel hanging out the "S. R. O." sign. If the merits of this company of youngsters has been appreciated in advance, this will be the case; for there has been nothing in the line of juvenile work on Portland stages that will compare with that that will be done by the Belascos.

For three nights, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, September 7, 8 and 9, at Cordray's Richard & Pringle's famous Georgia Minstrels will be the attraction. This company caters to the most refined patronage and furnishes hours of solid enjoyment without a suggestive utterance during the whole performance and this has been the phenomenal success of this big combination.
