MARKET OPENING

For the Week Continues Promising.

BIGGER

Figures Now Set at 90,000 Bales---The Last Week's Prices.

The local market opened this morning under considerable influence from the general market, but with no abatement of features of last week, of large business and steady prices. It was as if the decks were cleared for a good, fair tustle for margins all along the line; margins for shippers and for dealers.

"You can't lose me," shouted the Salt trust from Frisco, sending along the expected raise. However, it proved but a reminder of the trust's power, for it was but $1 per ton on all coarse sait. But Vice-President Durkheimer, of the Wadhams Company, incorporated, 'expressed the idea in saying that this was probably but a feeling forerunner of what may MARKETS OF follow. The raise is, as The Journal forecast, in effect today, the lith.

Produce lines were slack, on account of its being Monday, and the fires interfering somewhat, but not enough to make any material change in prices. The changes made were more in corrections of oversights than effect of market con-

Grain -reports from the early Eastern markets were without unusual features. Many are the street surprises expressed that the reported losses to corn from frosts have not had more effect,

The cooler weather was stimulating to trade, especially in salmon. The latter figures were marked off a triffe.

Hop talk related to the crop, there being as yet no market to speak of. The situation was pointedly stated by Phil Nels & Company, who said;

There is no market, no prices; don't know when there will be any. Brewers are not buying. The weather is immense, and the crop in Oregon will be 90,000 bases. Yield will be heavy on the bottoms but lighter than expected on the uplands, but there will be 90,000 bales." This is 10,000 more bales than has been

THE WORLD

By Bolton de Ruyter & Co. CHICAGO, Sept. 15 .- The Record-Herald today says: The September wheat situation at Chicago is the speculative problem. The market acts as if the Armour line was still a large one. The stock of contract here in public houses was only $00,000 bushels at the fast statement. There is but a fortnight left to delivery day. Yet the pit professional is so certain Armour proposes no squeeze. Every time by the big September holder, the crowd sells the market off. This may result in the longs deciding to stand and take delivery. In such cases unless theory of large shortages is all wrong, there might result September squeeze. There are no indications of anybody making any effort to bring wheat here. The chances are the short interest is not of that class which it is expected to cover except in the pit. If there is continued good weather and the expected increase in arrivals in the Northwest cash prices up there are not likely to show much strength. In case of any notably September advance at Chicago, there would probably be a move to bring Northwestern grain down here. There could not be this sort of corrective, however, unless the September here moved this up this week in another week it would be too late to effect much, no matter what the differences. The Armour interest is the only one which n a hurry, and if this interest has the not bring cash wheat here to help out horts. The indifference to the September ever moved great quantities of cash grain September line, the gossips think it would wheat possibilities is the surprising circumstances. But there is a faguity that lone have the courage to stick and that consequently the aggregate short interests is small and not worth pursuing. That this type of dementia is not rare is shown by the growing disposition of shorts to keep their contracts out up to the last month and without making a move to supply themselves with the property they have sold. Corn closed the week only 11/2 to 1 cent higher than the week before, although there was realized that cold weather with the shorts had been fearing and the bulls had been relying upon. Corn closed lower after the official announcement of killing frosts through Iowa than before. The queer results was largely because the corn profit is at present the control of professionals. He had been apprehensive of frost for several days and had done some buying

Portland Day at the State Fair. Thursday, September 18, will be "Portland Day" at the Fair this year, and the management intend to make it the gala day. A special program has been arranged. There will be a grand parade of the blooded live stock on exhibition, and a big event will be the special racing card, for which unusually large purses will be offered. The display of the agricultural, horticultural, mineral, dairy and other exhibits will excel all former ef-
