HE LOOKED HUNGRY. An artist who was making a sketching tour through a photuresque region of Connecticut chanced one day on a barn so ailuring to his eye that he sat down on a tone wall and went to work at once. He soon became conscious that he had two interested spectators in the persons of the farmer and his wife, who had come to the door of the house to watch him. The artist by and by discovered that he had lost or mislaid his rubber eraser, and, as he wished to correct a slight error in the sketch, he went up to the door and asked the farmer's wife if he might have small piece of dry bread. This, as every artist knows, makes a good eraser. The farmer's wife looked at him with an expression of pity not unmixed with surprise. "Dry bread!" she repeated. "Well, 1 guess you won't have to put up with any | fine. dry bread from me, young man. You come right into the kitchen with me and I'll give you a thick slice of bread with butter on it." "Now, don't say a word," she continued, raising her hand to warn off his expostulations. 'I don't care how you came to this state, nor anything about it; all 1 know is, you're hungry, and that's enough for me. You shall have a good dinner."-Youth's Companion.

STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

SEATTLE, Oct. 7,-The Bunchgrassers fell with a dull thud before the Dugdales yesterday. Hickey tossed for the locals and had good support. But for the errors a complete shutout would have been made. Spokane did not get a run until the sixth. In the eighth by a fortunate bunch of errors they scored three times. Hickey out-tossed Drinkwater. The Spokane team raised a kick and may try to claim the game, on a technicality. The grand stand at Seattle is not misery feet back from the plate. In the eighth Mc-Kevitt tried to make home on a passed ball, but the grand stand stopped it and the runner was put out. This would not have occurred if the stand had been back the proper distance.

PLAY HELENA TODAY The Hejena team has arrived and will open the series today. The Portland club is a couple of games behind the boys from Montana, and must win five out of the six games to be played in order to net third place. This is a big-undertaking. The two clubs have both been playing good ball, and it is doubtful whether Portland can win the games required to land them in the third notch, the man who knocked out Eddie Connol-My in eleven rounds. Hughey McPadden and Benny Yanger, the "Tipton Slasher," are to oppose each other in a six-round bout at Chicago on October 20. They will meet at catch weights. McPadden has signed articles to box "Kid" Goodman, of Boston, on October 9. This is also a six-round affair

In all probability the Rufe Turner-Perry Queenan go will take place in Seattie within the next three weeks. There is some question as to who shall pull off the affair, the Northwestern Athletic Club or the Olympic Club. Turner admits frankly that he would rather appear under the auspices of the former, whereas it is immaterial to Queenan. In spite of his defeat at the hands of near future. One thing is certain, the black boy deserves the match owing to the game exhibition he put up in this city. He should be able to make a much better showing against Matthews at 142 pounds, than he possibly could against a strong, rugged fellow of Reilly's weight.

CORBETT TALKS. Lou Houseman, in last Sunday's Chicago Inter-Ocean, says: "I had a long chat with Jim Corbett yesterday, in the course of which the exchampion dwelt not a little on his promised match with Jim Jeffsies next May The match is clinched, as far as a match can be, in the absecne of signed articles of agreement and posted forfeits. Corbett was originally down to box Jeffries this month in San Francisco, but the champion who was bound only conditionally by his word, asked that the match be deferred. This was principally because of a broken nose, sustained by Jeffries in his fight with Fitzsimmons, but was also due in part, at least, to the cry of "fake" raised after the Fitzsimmons fight. Corbett has been working methodically all summer at his country home. Bay Side. Long Istand. The Californian has a beautiful blace on the north shore of Long his face. Miss Coyne raised her head. He has an and jumped over the orchestra pit and excellently equipped gymnasium and handball court, and, all in all, has built for himself an ideal conditioning place. His work has not been of the rigorous kind, leaning, instead, to light exercising and outdoor life.

"Corbett feels confident that he can inter-Ocean white Jeffries. He figures -and those who saw the fight agree with him-that he would have whipped Jeffries in their last battle but for an accident which came up in the twenty-third round, at a stage where he had Jeffries completely smothered. MAKE-UP SATISFIED HIM. When "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast" was rehearsing in New York, John McNally, who rewrote the libretto, was trying to plague Phoebe Coyne about the make-up she would be compelled to wear as the witca. "I never saw a woman yet," declared McNally, "who was willing to Eacrifice her beauty to a hideous make-up." "Well, you'll see one this time," declared the actress. "I'm going to make myself so ugly that even you, Mr. Mc-Nally, will refuse to recognize me."

"Oho," laughed the librettist, " you will, will you? Well, I'll wager you won't. I'm too old a bird to be fooled by a bit of grease paint. I can tell a pretty woman under her make-up any time. When I see you on the stage for the first time in that make-up at dress rehearsal, say, I'm going to step up and kiss you, just to show that I'm game."

Nothing more was thought of the incident until the dress rehearsal was called When Miss Coyne made her first entrance, crouched in the position she assumes as the witch, Mr. McNally was standing in the wings with a smile on made one dash for the front of the stage landed in the center aisle.

DISRESPECTFUL DIZZY.

This is what Disraeli wrote at the time of Queen Victoria's coronation, and some may feel the same way now: "I must give up going to the coronation, as all the members of parliament must be in court dresses or uniforms, and I can't afford to buy any.
