READY FOR GOOD ROADS

Convention Will Be Held Here Next Tuesday and Wednesday.

Invitations have been issued and every person in the state interested in good roads is getting ready to take advantage of the excursion to Portland next Tuesday and Wednesday, for the Good Roads Convention. The fare will be one and a third of the regular fare for the round trip.

The convention will meet in a hall on Tuesday, and Commissioners of Good Roads Martin Dodge, James W. Abbott and Richardson will deliver addresses which will be illustrated with stereoscopic views. At the conclusion of the first day's session there will be a smoker.

The second and last day will be devoted to the reading of papers on good roads by the County Judges and Commissioners of Oregon. Undoubtedly a large crowd will attend this convention, as it is of interest to everyone in the state. The committee who has charge of this convention consists of Mayor Williams, W. B. Steele, John S. Beale, L. R. Webster, J. H. Scott, H. W. Mitchell and W. E. Coman.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT.

The case of United States of America vs. Joe Sing came up before the court this morning. Sing was charged with having sold liquor to Indians and pleaded not guilty. His trial is set for Tuesday October 14.

The Government obtained judgment in the Court this morning against William Parsons, a former Indian Agent stationed at Umatilla. Parsons was sued by the Government for balances due while in office, which he has never turned over.

WANTS BIG DAMAGES.

T. R. Sheridan of Roseburg has sued the Postal Telegraph Company for $3000 damages for a mistake alleged to have been made in a commercial message. The case will be tried in the United States Circuit Court.

VANCOUVER AND CLARKE COUNTY NEWS.

ANDERSON WAS DESPONDENT

Committed Suicide Near Amboy, Wash., by Shooting Himself.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 8.—W. W. Sparks, County Attorney, returned this morning from Amboy, where he has been investigating the shooting of Adolphus Anderson, whose body was found in his cabin Tuesday morning, by Hugh Ball. Anderson was last seen alive last Wednesday by Mr. Nyauck, who owns the ranch adjoining, and for whom Anderson had put up hay, on shares, and stored it on his (Anderson's) place. Mr. Nyauck, desirous of selling the hay, made a bargain with Hugh Ball, who went to Anderson's place yesterday morning to look at the hay. Not seeing anyone around, and getting no response to his call, he opened the door, and discovered Anderson lying on his back on a cot, with a gun by his side and a bullet hole in his breast. From letters found in the cabin it appears he was despondent over a love affair. Some time in September he borrowed $6 from a merchant at Amboy, with which to send for Miss May Preston, of Kansas City, Mo., to whom he was to have been married. A postal card stated that she had received the money, and would arrive about October 2. Subsequently he received another letter, which cannot be found, but it was noticed that he was very despondent after receiving it. Everything indicated that it was a case of suicide.

The Cotterill Meeting.

Fully 150 people assembled at the Standard theater last evening to hear Geo. P. Cotterill, Democratic nominee for Congress. He was introduced by P. Hough, amid applause, and delivered an address on the political questions confronting the people. Mr. Cotterill is a forcible speaker, of pleasing address, and created a favorable impression upon his audience.

At the Auditorium.

"Nevada" is the title of the new play in which Miss Elsa Ryan, the new star, made her initial bow August 14 at Grand Rapids, Mich. Her successes in "The Runaway Girl," "In Old Kentucky," "Hears Are Trumps," and "King Dodo," argue well for the little lady's future. "Nevada" will be the attraction at the Auditorium in this city on Saturday evening, next.

Personal Notes.

W. S. Wood and daughter Maggie, were in Portland yesterday. Miss Maggie has made arrangements to take a course in shorthand and typewriting at Mrs. Gardner's school.

Mrs. J. R. Wood, who received serious injuries by a fall at her home on 11th and West H streets, last week, is reported to be slightly improving.

James Waggoner, Jr., a prominent business man of Vancouver, is in Portland. He went over yesterday to meet his father.

AGE - WORN HEROES

And White Haired Soldiers March Shoulder to Shoulder in a Great Parade.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—President Roosevelt viewed a portion of the parade this morning from his carriage. While the parade was forming a runaway horse struck the New Hampshire division, injuring five veterans, but none of them seriously.

SAN FRANCISCO LEADS. WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—It seems almost certain that San Francisco will be chosen as the next meeting place of the National encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic. The Californians opened wines at headquarters today and commenced an active campaign. General Shafter was one of the most enthusiastic advocates. It is understood that the principal objection to San Francisco—the high railway rates—has been overcome an exceptionally low fare being promised. Atlantic City is the closest competitor.

AN IMPOSING SPECTACLE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 8.—Let's brave it, comrades; it may be the last march we will ever take part in."

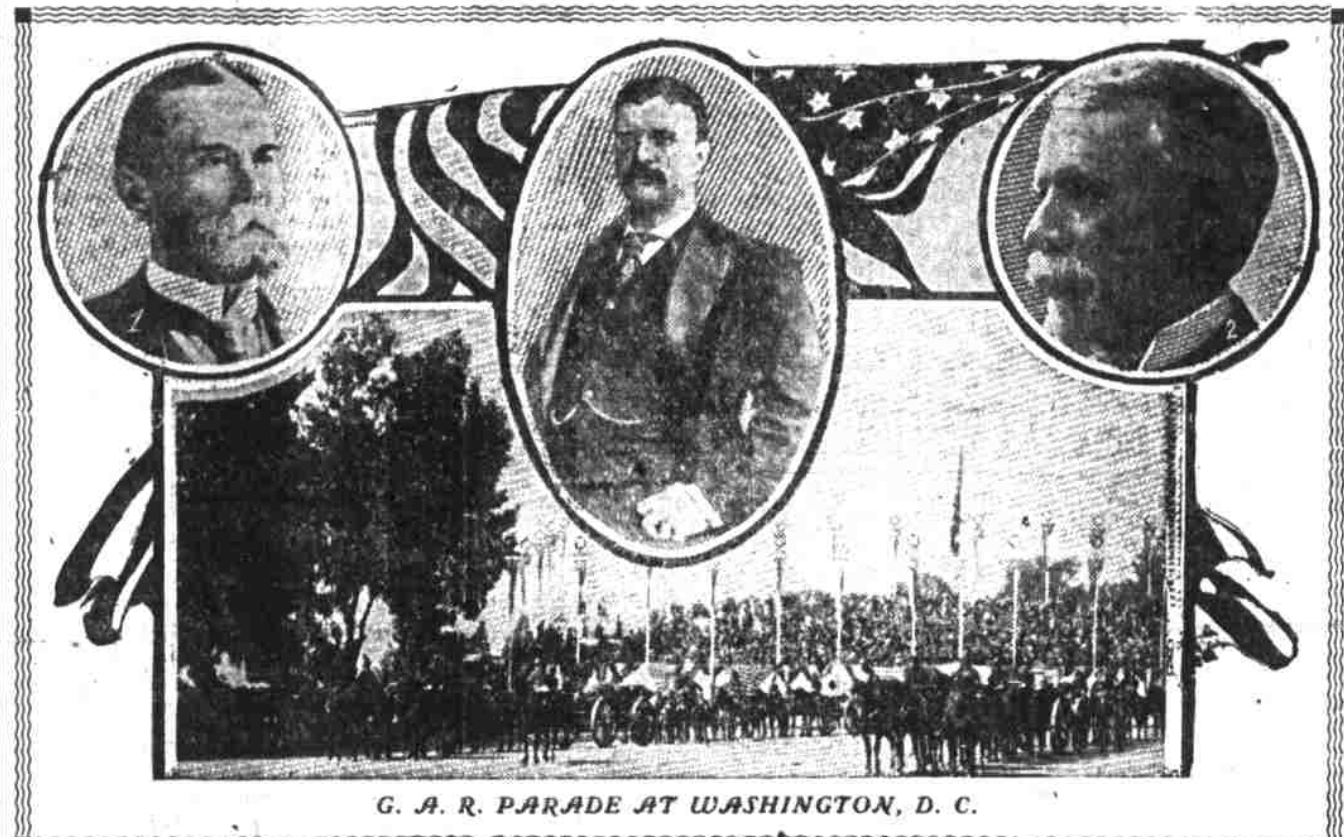

This was what a gray-haired veteran of Iowa said this morning at the hour announced for the different state departments of the G. A. R. to move towards their formation places for the big parade. The belief that it might be their last chance to march again shoulder to shoulder is what led many of the age-worn veterans to brave the torture that followed for several long hours. Fortunately it was that no serious results followed and much of the credit of that is due to the physicians of Washington, who, in spite to a man, volunteered their services for the occasion. Following each division there was a surgeons' corps of strong young men and the army ambulances.

But the old veterans stood the tremendous ordeal wonderfully well. The great majority of them marched with precision, even if they were not as quick at obeying commands as in the old days. And they demonstrated that 45 years does not take a man out of service, whatever my is the civil service rules. They carried the old flags, and some of them carried their muskets and knapsacks and blankets. They were on their feet from early morning, before the parade began, and several hours on the march in the middle of the day, though the route was greatly shortened, as compared with those of previous encampments.

A BIG AFFAIR. The arrangements were all that could be desired, but a Grand Army parade is too big an affair to be without great fatigue. They may march again, but not many think that the time has come to abandon the most inspiring spectacle because its greatest fatigues fall upon those whom the people would shield rather than burden.

THE PARADE STARTS. It was 10:20 o'clock when the signal guns to start were fired. The start was made from the Congressional Library building. The white banner of peace and the Stars and Stripes led the column. The flaming stripes and starry field of the flag were the more brilliant beside the white silken banner, above which perched the white dove of peace with a sprig of ivy in its beak. So the column approached the reviewing stand, and then between them rode the commander-in-chief of the Grand Army, General Eli Torrance, of Minnesota. Beside him rode Colonel A. Noel

G. A. R. PARADE AT WASHINGTON, D. C.

Blakeman, grand marshal of the day, and his aides, who escorted the commander to the stand, while the beauty and civility of the national capital gave him a welcome befitting a hero who conquers in peace. On the reviewing stand were seated the President, and cabinet officers and numerous other dignitaries.

TEARS FILL MANY EYES.

The flag of the G. A. R. was hung out, the Stars and Stripes and the banner of peace approached, and the column moved forward again and kept moving for several hours. The executive committee of the Grand Army and the Sons of Veterans' escort led the way, and then came Illinois, leading the veterans of the Grand Army. The bands played, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching," and Columbia Post, of Chicago, 100 strong, marched down Pennsylvania avenue as bravely as they marched on that memorable day of the grand review of 1863. But the strains of music and the applause took the heart out of many of the old soldiers and the only wonder is that it did not make them all as sentimental as were many of those who looked on and let the tears course down their cheeks as they saw the Grand Army on probably its last grand review.

Numerically Pennsylvania and New York carried off the palm in the parade, though Illinois, Indiana and Ohio did not fall far below in the number of veterans in line. Wisconsin followed Illinois in 110's, with Walcott Post, of Milwaukee, leading. Then came the Pennsylvania posts and their old battle flags, which attracted much attention. Ohio led the second division and was followed by New York, the Lafayette Post of New York City, and the Bidwell-Wilkinson Post, of Buffalo, attracting especial attention by their neat uniforms and excellent marching.

THIRD DIVISION.

The Third Division was made up of posts from Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Maine, California, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Vermont, Virginia and North Carolina. In the Fourth Division were Maryland, Nebraska, Michigan, Iowa and Indiana. Minnesota, Missouri and Kansas made a good showing in the Sixth Division. In the next division the Department of Potomac brought up the rear of the procession.

It was long after the noon hour when the last of the veterans had marched by the White House. The entire route was decorated lavishly, every building, public and private, being adorned with the stars and stripes, bunting of red, white and blue and the insignia of the G. A. R., and the various army corps, until the eye of the spectator was sated with the varied display. It is estimated that 500,000 persons witnessed the pageant. The morning trains brought hundreds of visitors from all points within a radius of a hundred miles of Washington and seldom has the Capital entertained a larger crowd.

The parade was the feature of the day. Everything else, gave way to it, and when the march was over the veterans were in no mood to do anything but rest and endeavor to recuperate sufficiently to enjoy some of the public functions arranged for the evening.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT.

Hugh Elliott, a Portland blacksmith, petitioned the United States District Court yesterday to be adjudged bankrupt. Elliott's debts amount to $380.50 and his household property is valued at $200.

The case of A. Wallson, captain of the British ship Peter Rickmers, vs. Richard McCarron, Larry Sullivan, "Billy" Smith, all came up before Judge Belinger yesterday. This is a case where the complainant desires an injunction dissolving relative to sailor boarding-house troubles. The court took the matter under advisement.

Witness Delschneider on the Stand.

DESCRIBES THE ROW

Says Andrew White Struck Beauchene on the Head With a Club.

The trial of Andrew White for the murder of Peter Beauchene was resumed this just before the noon recess and told of his being called at about midnight and the preliminary steps he took in the police investigation. He described three bludgeons which might have been used in inflicting the fatal injury. One was a piece of gas pipe, the other a piece of wagon tongue about 18 inches long and the other a heavy piece of building timber, such as was on exhibition in the court room.

SULTAN DYING

The End Expected Any Moment.

HE CAN'T LAST LONG

The Announcement Was a Great Surprise—Death Almost Certain.

VIENNA, Oct. 8.—A dispatch says that the death of the Sultan of Turkey is expected at any moment. There is a great deal of surprise being expressed here over the receipt today of a message which says the Sultan's condition is critical, and his death is expected at any minute. For some time the health of the Sultan has not been good as could be desired, but until very recently there were no serious apprehensions as to his recovery, but it seems that unlooked-for complications set in, and now the physicians fear that his death is near at hand.

THEY VISIT SITES

Port of Portland Commissioners Inspect Drydock Sites.

The Port of Portland Commissioners held an informal meeting yesterday and discussed the matter of procuring a site for the drydock. After the meeting they went to look over the proposed sites. They visited the Southern Pacific property fronting on the river and extending from the Burnside-street bridge to the Southern end of the old Oregon & Columbia wharf. This site impressed them favorably. Another site which meets their approval is the Davis property, facing the boneyard. They have as yet arrived at no decision.
