LEFT HER HOME TO EBERLE ELOPE WITH LOVER

Hasty Marriage Before Justice of the Peace Eastern Capitalist Who Ends a Romance That Commenced in Ashland.

Pretty Mrytie Parker, 17 years of age, | and Marion B. Combs were hastily married yesterday afternoon by Justice Reid. This is the sequel to the strange disappearance of the girl from her home at Ashland last Thursday evening. The father of the girl is said to have been present at the ceremony.

According to the reports from Ashland Myrtle had been abducted. Today it is known that the girl was a party to an elopement, and that she was determined to marry the man whom she had become infatuated with in spite of her father's opposition. The flight of the girl and her lover is a romantic and interesting tale. Combs and Myrtle-have been in each other's company quite frequently of late and developments show that he left Ashland with her in a buggy Thursday night at about 10 o'clock, and together they drove to Medford, where they put up at the Nash Hotel until the arrival of the early morning north-bound train, Then the girl secured a ticket and took passage for Portland.

Combs returned to Ashlan ! Friday morning, and in order to cover his tracks and the object of his night trip, he sought out Chief of Police Smith and told that officer a long story of a strange man having forced him at the point of a pistol to drive him down to Medford, and who held him there until nearly break of day. Chief of Police Smith chased the story down, and traced the disappearance of Myrtle Parker to Combs. Mr. Parker the father of Myrtle, immediately went to Medford and learned that a couple answering the description given of Combs and the girl had been there Thursday night and of their goings while there Mr. Parker then returned to Ashland and confronted Combs with the facts he had learned, but the young man stoutly und vigorously denied them.

Parker, not to be trifled with, then forced Combs to go to Medford for the purpose of identification. Yesterday af ternoon, in company with the lrate father a brother and uncle of the girl, Combs was taken to Medford, where he was fully identified by hotel people and the livery stable man who had cared for his team, as having been in Medford Thursday night with Myrtle Parker. The sweating process he had been put through on the trip to Medford yesterday and the identification proved too strong for him, and Combs broke down confessed his guilt and consented to go to Portland with Mr. Parker on last evening's train and find Myrtle, whom he said he had told to go to the St. Charles Hotel, where he would follow her by the train which left Ashland today. He also expressed a desire and a willingness, it is said, to endeavor to, as far as possible, amend the wrong he had been guilty of Combs has heretofore had a good reputation. He came to Ashland four years age from Linn County, and with his brother has been engaged in the wood sawing business. Myrtle Parker was born at Parker's Station, on the Ashland-Klamath Falls road, and has lived all her life there and in Ashland. She belongs to a well-known

WRITES GLOWINGLY

Of the Coming Commercial Power of the Land of the Setting Sun.

In a letter to Fred S. Morris, of Morris & Whitehead, bankers, of this city. Dr. Charles L. Eberle, one of the party of Eastern capitalists that were here a short time ago as the guests of Morris & Whitehead, incloses the impressions of Oregon on his party as follows:

"I cannot believe the years for me in transit can ever dim the vivid impressions made upon my mind as I noted the vast stride the footprints of one decade had marked upon the development and power of the Pacific Coast. It would seem as though the struggling infant had leaped at one bound from its cradle into full puberty, casting aside its swaddling clothes to be panoplied in the impregna-ble armor of conscious resource and conscious resource and might. Cold figures of statistics can determine the material evolution of commercial growth, but they fail to express the animus of 'the man behind the hoe; the man whose pluck, patience and per severance harnesses opportunity-lashing it toward the goal. Contrast, if you will, the conditions of settlement and development governing the sections extreme east and west, and it becomes a matter of easy prophecy to foretell the early future of the Western realm.

The East, at first an asylum for those of the old world who sought avenues of escape from the oppressor upon their religious or civic rights; in many instances themselves fanatics whose primal motive toward its shores was greed of gain, or the establishment of unorthodox communities as intolerant as those from which they fled. Education-limited to a favored few. Religion-dogmatic; governments despotic, invention-but a spasm largely unapplied. Prejudice barring progress. Slow, indeed, must be the pace of ex-panding civilization and the empire of thought amid such contentions-a thousand years as one day of modern achievement or possibility "An hundred years in embryo, and the

The boundless continent is theirs.

Another century and the ever-searching tentacles of the octopus of human progress and advangement in art education, literature invention applied science and interature, invention, applied science and the problem of self-government have reached from the East and opened the Western wall of the national manor, to look upon the look upon the fairest and most favored portion of its vast estate. Brain and brawn the capital with which the early heroes delved.

"Each man a grucible of indomi-table energy and thrift, they entered upon their work broadminded, self-help-ful, hopeful; untainted by superstition or the restraints of cant and creed.

"The nation's ensign was before them. Handicapped by no effete heredity, each man a monarch, the chrystallized achievements of a ripened century paid homage to their will. The tomahawk re-treated before the birch of the pedagogue. The field was vast, and from the hordes pressing through the opened portal evolved the survival of the fittest. Drones and criminals could gain no de pending foothold. The rail and telford roads recoursed the trail worn by the un-tutored savage since the deluge.

"Nature lavished her tributes with welcoming hands. The tickled earth shouted a merry peal in showers of golden grain and luscious fruits before the har-vester. The prodded hills belched forth their secreted hordes of glittering gems and precious metals, From the caves of ocean the denisens within leaped forth into expectant arms. The gnomes of the everglade and forest bowed obesance to their conqueror and shrank back with sullen brow. Even the complaining brooks that make the meadows green dole out their molety, and Clackamas be-Atlantic East. "A mine explodes in Havana's bay and destiny decrees the islands of the Orient shall become contributors to her accumulating wealth. The gladers of the frigid North disclose beneath their melting mantles fresh tithes to her repositories. And upon the crests of the everlasting hills were set mausoleums, that, at the sound of Gabriel's trump, their resurrected dead, in upward flight should lead the van of the mighty throng assembling before the gates of Paradise. "With such control, it needs no seer to scan or trace the realistic picture to be presented before the vision of a wondering world. "Another decade, and the Pacific Coast becomes full competitor to its paternity in all that relates to agriculture, to com merce, to manufactures or to finance. Its manhood dominant; its vigor unabated; its influence imperative; here shall be noonday brightness, no declining splendor-her whole course shall be light and glory and leave a perennial brilliancy upon the national horizon." FOR GUARANTEED TITLES

The following will give you some idea of the saving the plano club affords you. Planos priced at $225 go to club members for $137; $275 planos for $164; planos that sell regularly for $300 for $187; and the finest medium-grade instruments, that cannot possibly be sold under any other conditions for less than $350, by the club system go for $307. The highest grade, fancy and hand-carved planos, the regular price of which is $500, go for $357, and $400 styles for $307.

There are only 400 planos in the club and only four hundred members are possible. You will understand, therefore, that the earlier you join, the safer you are. Ellers Plano House, 351 Washington street, opposite Cordray's Theater. Four fine stores—Portland, Spokane, San Francisco and Sacramento.
