

BOY HIGHWAYMAN WOUNDS VICTIM

Walter Bailey of Vancouver, Aged 15, Turns Highwayman and Shoots Albert Pluss in Head.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Nov. 26.—Walter Bailey, a 15-year-old boy, attempted to hold up and rob Albert Pluss at Fifth Plain yesterday afternoon. He shot Pluss in the back of the head with a load of fine shot, severely wounding him. The boy became frightened and made an attempt to escape. Pluss was discovered shortly after the shooting, and taken to a near by neighbor's house. Word was sent to La Camas, where Bailey was apprehended and arrested. He will be placed in the county jail. He worked in this city for several months during the past summer, and has relatives in Portland. Pluss will be brought to this city and placed in the hospital. It is thought that he will recover.

EMPEROR BOWS TO A GUNMAKER

Follows in Dust of Passing Greatness.

Kaiser Wilhelm Chief Mourner at Funeral of Herr Krupp at Essen, Germany.

WESTON, Nov. 26.—An emperor, carrying his hat in his hand and following in the dust created by the passing greatness of a gun-maker, was seen in the streets of this city today when the funeral of Herr Krupp occurred. Kaiser Wilhelm paid a high tribute to the memory of the man whose name is known—and known with terror—wherever there is war. Barcheaded and sorrowing he followed the casket to the grave. The funeral cortege was magnificent. Almost the entire population of the city attended. There were many notable, but chief among them was the Emperor, who conducted himself as one of the mourners. The remains of the late baron were interred with marked ceremony and a monument is soon to be erected.

ELEVATOR TOOK DROP.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon one of the ropes connected with the elevator in the Portland Hotel broke, while the elevator was at the fourth floor, causing it to drop to the third floor, where it was caught by clutches. There were six people in the elevator at the time, but these did not know anything about the accident until they were told. The elevator did not attain sufficient velocity to shake up its occupants to any great extent.

DRYDOCK CASE IS ON TRIAL

Federated Trades Versus Port of Portland.

Curious History of Methods of the Commissioners Being Aired in Court.

Whether there was chicanery practiced in building the dry dock at Vancouver, when by all rights it should now be under construction in this city, is the question that is up before Judge Sears today. The legal title of the case is "A suit in equity to restrain the construction of case were J. C. Flanders for the Port of Portland and Wilbur & Hogue for Robert Wakenfeld. THE FIRST WITNESS. The first witness called this morning was C. E. T. Stevens, for the plaintiff. Mr. Stevens is clerk for the Port of Portland and testified that on July 26 the bids were let for constructing the dry dock and on the same day resubmitted; that Wakenfeld's bid was the lowest, at $150,000. The witness testified that the next day the board went into executive session, allowing no one present aside from themselves except Robert Wakenfeld and William Blackwell, the consulting engineer. At this meeting Wakenfeld was allowed to cut his bid down to $120,000, but for what reason the witness did not know. Mr. Stevens further said that the matter as to where the dock was to be built was not discussed at that meeting and that the matter was referred to the Port's attorney and he said it would be legal to build at Vancouver.

JOSEPH PACQUET EXPLAINS. The second witness called was Joseph Pacquet, a bidder at the time Wakenfeld's bid was accepted. He testified that his bid was higher, but he was informed that it would not be legal to construct only at Portland, and his estimate was based on the Portland prices of material and labor. He said that he had been a shipbuilder at Portland for more than 40 years, and that no better place could be found for a drydock than in the Willamette.

the dry dock at any point outside of the boundary of the Port of Portland.” For the plaintiffs appeared this morning District Attorney Chamberlain, and armed with one pertinent point of law he believes that injustice to the laboring interests of Portland caused in taking the dry dock to Vancouver will be remedied by having the order of the Port of Portland reversed. Here is the citation: “In its discretion, the Port of Portland has power to acquire, own and hold a site for and to erect, hold, own and operate a dry dock at or in the boundaries of the defendants in the George M. Orting was the next to testify, and made a strong witness for the plaintiff's side. He said that although he had been made plaintiff with W. E. Robinson, in doing so he represented $900,000 of the citizens of the City of Portland, men whose families reside in the city and to whom all work done for Portland should come. He testified that the taking of the drydock to Vancouver was an act that the laboring population of the city believed to be illegal, and hence the suit.

FOR THE DEFENSE. The defendants' first witness was Weather Director Beets, who was brought upon the stand to prove the unfavorable conditions of the Willamette River for the construction or maintenance of a drydock. Mr. Beets stated all he knew about the Willamette since 1880, but could not tell anything about the Columbia at Vancouver. His testimony was not injurious to the plaintiffs.

FUNERAL OF HENRY YORK.

(Journal Special Service.) GRANTS PASS, Nov. 26.—The funeral of Henry York, one of the oldest of the earlier Southern Oregon pioneers, was held at his home in Missouri Flat of Western Grant County, Sunday. Henry York came to the Oregon Country with the first rush of gold seekers early in 1852. He followed mining and packing in the mines of Josephine County for a number of years. He has occupied his Appleton River farm for the past 40 years. He was born in Kentucky in 1813. He leaves a wife and 10 children. Few men were more widely and more favorably known over Southern Oregon than Henry York. He was one of the very few remaining ones who were the first to discover gold in Oregon, and who fought through the Indian Wars of 1852 and 1855-6. He was a member of Captain Keene's company of Volunteers through these wars.

SERVED CEREAL LUNCHEON

Domestic Science School Guests of Acme Mills.

Make Inspection of Plant and Dine on Deliciously Served Cereals Dishes.

On Thursday of last week the Portland School of Domestic Science took lunch with the Acme Mills Company and a most interesting and delightful time was spent by the members of the classes and others interested in the work. Luncheon was served at 12:30 and the table was beautifully decorated with ferns, smilax and chrysanthemums. Each guest was given a very unique menu card as a souvenir, and almost every dish served smacked of a cereal food of one kind or another. The table was in charge of one of the Acme Mills Company's famous colored chefs, and the ladies were much surprised at the many delicious dishes that could be made from cereals.

Following is the menu: Ralston Barley Soup Ralston Whole Wheat Crackers Cold Ham Ralston Whole Wheat Bread Potato Chips Green Peas (made from Whole Wheat Flour) Olives Ralston Almonds Pickles Ralston-Corn Cereals Grano Ralston Pankakes with Maple Syrup Ralston Hominy Grits Ralston Barley Food "Acme Mills" Salad Cheese Wafers Creme de Grano Acme Grain Coffee Ralston Wafers After luncheon the guests started out on a tour of inspection. The journey was a long one and the grain was watched from the time it started in as wheat fresh from the fields of Eastern Oregon and Washington, until it came out in the various forms of delicious breakfast foods. Each nook and corner was critically inspected and Mr. Goss stated that never before had the Acme Mills Company had the pleasure of entertaining such interested guests. Those present were: Mrs. A. E. Rockey, Mrs. W. J. Honeyman, Mrs. Milo Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Dalton, Mrs. Frank Riley, Mrs. S. P. Lockwood, Mrs. E. P. Crossman, Mrs. Campbell, Miss Katharine Sitton, Miss Lucy Sitton, Miss Hazel Reed, Miss Hazel Crozier, Miss McElroy, Miss Lavenson and Miss Voorhees.

LARGEST GOLD RESERVE KNOWN

American Nation Has $610,000,000.

That Sum of Cash on Hand in the Treasury at the Present Time.

(Journal Special Service.) WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The greatest golden hoard that was ever assembled under a single ownership is now to be found in the treasury of the United States. This fact is set forth in the report of Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, which was made public this afternoon. The total gold reserve at present is $610,019,000. The Russian treasury once held $598,000,000 in gold, which was the nearest approach ever made to the stupendous sum now in possession of the American nation. Even this vast gold reserve does not in any degree represent the actual wealth of the nation, which is many times that amount. This simply means that $610,019,000 of cash in hand is at the call of the American people for governmental uses whenever needed. There is every indication that this sum will be increased during the coming year.
