TERRIBLE POWER OF THE TRUSTS

Problem by Hoar.

Venerable Massachusetts Senator Makes Able Presentation of Need of Legislation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.-The Senate today listened to a masterly discussion of the trusts problem. Mr. Hoar, the venerable Senator from Massachusetts, opened the debate, saying that he acknowledged that his bill is imperfect, it being tentative and experimental in char-He contended that with the exception of the coal strike, the country had not suffered from the trust evil in any way to affect the general prospercondition of workmen ter than in other countries, and better than in any other period of American history. Trust legislation should be enwith a view to the future, rather than the present. Such a terrible money power as is concentrated in trusts is in some cases greater than the power of many states, and greater than the power of any nation except ours on this conti-nent. The money power can make or prevent wars; it can threaten the com munity with a coal famine or a wheat famine, and it can execute the threat. nator Hoar enumerated the chief evils of the trusts as follows:

Destruction of competition; management of local industries by absentees in interests of absentee capital; the destruction of local public spirit; fraudulent capitalization; secrecy of management for the private benefits of officials; the power to corrupt elections, and in some cases to corrupt courts; the want of peral responsibility to public sentiment; the absence of personal Hability for coracts or wrongdoing; the holding of vast properties in the mortmain or dead hand of the ancient English law.

The speaker approved combinations of capital and paid tribute to Morgan's genius, but said he did not want Amerikan trusts to dominate the world at the se of American local public spirit. He said Socialism never accomplished anything, and would destroy American manhood.

> INDURATED SCOUNDRELISM. (Morning Oregonian, Monday, Nov. 16, 1885.)

Mitchell at last proclaims himself a candidate. This was to have been ex-pected. He was pressing his candidacy covertly; he can do it openly with less effect. Were he not a scoundrel with-out shame he never would have the hardihood to announce himself as a He hopes by brazen denial of the in-famies with which he is charged to make it possible to secure an election. He challenges the publication of the letters in fac-simile, knowing that the engraving cannot be done here, and trusting that it will not be possible to get it done till the election has passed by. The confidence of a scoundrel has often carried him through, but this time it will not. The Oregonian never makes false promises. It will have the letters engraved and will print them in facsimile, just as soon as the same can be done. Many members of the Legisladone. Many members of the Legisla-ture have already seen the principal ones and know they are genuine. In fact, no one for a moment doubts their authenticity. If any profess to doubt it, they are wholly insincers. They know the Oregonian would not have dared to print forged letters; and they know if the letters were forged that Mitchell would not content himself with a mere denist. To the complaint of this lecherous poliroon that the Oregonian, in order to "defame" him, has brought, through misrepresentations and falsehood, the names of women and children in a disgraceful manner before the public, the appropriate reply is, why did he not think in time of what was due from decency and manhood to those women and children? It was he, the seducer, lecher and villain, who dishonored the wife he had promised to cherish, the wife's sister, whom he proposed to put in the wife's place, and the children, whom, were he a man, would have bound him to the mother by the strongest of all earthly ties. But, having dishonored them by the infamy of his proposals, he now comes with a snivel at the publication of the "disgrace" which he de-liberately attempted. Did he expect to change wives, and nobody know it?

The denial that he was guilty of corruption as a Senator is as worthless as his denial of the authorship of the let-ters. For the public knows that no journal as responsible as the Oregonian would make such a charge unless it were prepared to prove it. With bombast he pretends to "defy" proof. Now proof in such cases—proof that cannot be questioned—can be had only through a court of law. Let Mitchell bring the Oregonian before a court of law, and he shall have the proof. Will he do it? Of course not. It is quite characteristic of the brasen effrontery of this dis-honored scoundrel to wind up his "piece" with an effort to commend him-self by a demagegic appeal to the coun-try, as a man who could and would do great things in the Senate. His charac-ter would not be complete were by great things in the Senate. His character would not be complete were he not a pretentious and lying demagogue as well as reciter, senater, a professional rascal, a corruptionist in politics and he does not act. What is the explanations of the contract of the charges do? Here is a responsible newspaper, which he says has pursued him with a deadly enmity. But if it has not told the rascal, a corruptionist in politics and

THE QUESTION IS DID MITCHELL WRITE THOSE LETTERS AND WAS HE A CORRUPT SENATOR ON BOTH POINTS THE OREGONIAN HOLDS ITSELF READY TO ANSWER IF IT HAS NOT TOLD THE TRUTH IT HAS LIBELED HIM ATROCIOUSLY, CRIMINALLY: IF IT HAS TOLD THE TRUTH MITCHELL IS NOT FIT FOR ANY POSITION. NOW IT HOLDS IT-SELF READY TO ANSWER, EITHER UPON CRIMINAL LIBEL OR IN A SUIT FOR DAMAGES TO ANY AMOUNT; AND IT HAS CALLED UPON MITCHELL IN TERMS AS STRONG AS LANGUAGE AFFORDS TO TAKE NOTICE OF THE FACT. BUT BECAUSE HE IS GUILTY HE CANNOT HEAR THE CALL. CERTAIN MINOR MATTERS.

(Morning Oregonian, Monday, November 16, 1885.)

The character of the editor of the Oregonian, personal or official, is not in question. He is a private citizen, seek-ing no public place and minding his own business. But he is ready at all times to submit to the most careful and searching inquiry into his acts, perofficial, and to aid such inquiry to the fullest extent. There is nothing in his life of which he is ashamed, except his association in positics for a short time with John H. Mitchell. The only loss of reputation he ever suffered was from that incident; and even Mitchell and his friends are aware of this, even they never fall to use it when they want to cast a reproach upon his name. His only extenuation is that when he was associated with Mitchell in poli-tics, helped to elect him to the Senate and tried to sustain him afterwards, Mitchell was not known as the utterly corrupt, vicious and irrecoverable scoundrel that he is now known to have been, and is known still to be. . . .

GUILT AND COWARDICE. Morning Oregonian, Tuesday, November

17, 1885.) "O that my tongue were in the thunder's mouth!" exclaimed Constance in "John King." But even such a voice could not reach the ear of J. H. Mitchell. A respectable newspaper publishes statements that fix upon him the deepest possible brand of infamy, and it challenges him, with all the terms in the vocabulary of entreaty and invective to adopt the simple and adequate easure of redress which the law gives to all persons who are wronged by libelous charges. But he cannot hear! Thus it appears that even the most hardened knave has conscience enough left to make him a coward. Are there any broader, deeper, infamies than those with which the Oregonian has charged J. H. Mitchell? What would an honor-being set aside for the more interprising evening publication. A recent issue of the San Francisco Bulletin said: "Thirty years ago the work of gathering, putting into type and printing news took a good deal more tme than it does now. When the day was done, and all the news of the world has been gathered by reporters and correspond-ents, the night was given to printing it. Thus the successful and popular daily paper that succeeded the weekly was in nearly every case published in the Improvement and invention, however, did not stop $0 years ago. American mechanics have made it possible for a newspaper to put on the streets of San Franciscos sheet telling in full the news of events which happened half an hour previous in Peking. Calcutts, Berlin, London or any other part of the civilized world to which telegraph wires run. "The natural consequence of this continuing invention and improvement has been the rise of the afternoon paper, telling the news of today, and the decline of the morning paper, telling the news of yesterday. If a man, when he arrives home from work, can get an arternoon paper, quite as large as any morning paper, and containing all the news that happened in any part of the world today, it is not reasonable that he should ignore the afternoon paper and wait until next day for the tardy morning paper containing the same news."

Now, many of Portland's business men have declared that they believe in an evening newspaper, and do not care for the ancient system of gathering news adopted by the morning newspaper. Mr. Olds. of Olds. Wortman & King, in a written communication, said of the evening edition of a local contemporary in said paper's last evening's issue: "The evening paper on the Pacific Coast will have more prestige than on the Atantic Slope because the difference in time gives it a wonderful advantage as a chronicler of telegraphic news.

Naturally the public will also congratulate The Journal for having forced the issue and compelled Portland evening newspapers to be up-to-date, be however, The Journal is glad of this. John Fellerman, manager of the O. M.

Co.'s store, says: "During my advertising experience of several years in large dry goods and clothing stores, Lhave found the afternoon paper better than any other if its circulation was as good, and never had the least trouble about other merchants cutting my prices next morning, although the competition is no keener here, if as great as in Denver or Spokane, where I passed several years as advertising man ager for leading stores."

Mr. Ben Selling, writing to the same paper, says:

"I consider the afternoon or evening paper, the best advertising medium for this section of the country. As the larg-est advertiser in the clothing line, after an experience of many years, I have no hesitancy in saying that better results are obtained from evening than from morning papers-here.

"In short, the evening paper is the paper of today—the morning paper that Wise Brothers declare in their letter to the contemporary:

"I find it pays, and cannot account for it, except on the ground of big individual circulation, and the other fact that the people have time to read an evening

Suit Begun in United States Court.

C. A. Bushnell of North Yakima, Wash., today filed his complaint in equity in the United Stafes Circuit Court in this city to set aside a deed, naming J. F. Phy, W. T. Phy and Edith Phy, all of Oregon, as defendants. J. F. Phy resides at Union, and W. T. Phy and Edith Phy, his wife, at Baker City. It is shown that on November 12, 1897, the plaintiff brought an action for damages against J. F. Phy and one A. K. Jones.

JUDGMENT AGAINST PHY. Judgment was given against the defendants July 19, 1898, for $2,246.72, at Chehalis. Wash. Nothing was paid on the judgment, which has now reached the amount of $2,819.43. The execution which issued on the judgment September 2, 1858, was returned unsatisfied.

July 9, 1902, the plaintiff found that J.

F. Phy owned real estate in Chehalis County. Attachment proceedings were instituted, and J. F. Phy executed his bond therein. The time for answering the complaint expired September 16, 1902, and judgment was given against the defend-

A fraudulent conveyance of the property for $2,000 to W. T. Phy and Edith Phy is alleged, on July 5, 1902.

The plaintiff having exhausted his remedy at common law, takes recourse to equity to recover his rights.

SPAIN MOURNS FOR SAGASTA

MADRID, Jan. 6 .- The death last night of ex-Premier Praxedes Mateo Sa-gasta has plunged the Spanish capital into mourning. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed, but the interment will take place Wednesday of this week.

Already the fight for the Liberal leadership has begun. It is probable that either Canalejos, whose program is anticierical, or a former minister of the Interior, who has been known as a conservative, will be chosen as Sagasta's successor. The Queen Regent is said successor. The Queen Regent is said to favor the selection of Monet.
