Many momentous questions will be passed upon. First there will come the report of the legislation committee, and the report of its sub-committee. These committees will report that the Lewis and Clark Fair appropriation bill is already in the hands of the Multnomah delegation to the State Legislature, and will recommend that Messrs. Knapp and McIsaac be authorized to act as sp efal commissioners to the Western Legisla tures in behalf of the Fair. The agricultural committee of the Fair will report the proposition of the State Agricultural College to take charge of the agricultural exhibit, as printed in The Journal recently, and request that a few acres of land be set aside for them for this purpose, as work on the preparation of this exhibit must be commenced at once. Another question which will undoubtedly be discussed will be the number of directors to do lobbying in Salem in behalf of the Fair bill. This will undoubtedly arouse much heat in the meeting, as many consider it of momentous importance that the Fair bill be supported in every way possible. IMPROVING THE RIVER
