FACTIONAL WAR INJURES STATE

Pendleton Man With Strong Opinions.

Says the "Powers" Wanted May's Law and Should Abide by Same.

"Now let Mays and the rest of the people who were so loud in their declamations that the will of the people should govern, abide by the decision those people have rendered."

L. B. Reeder, a resident of Pendleton, Or., and formerly Speaker of the House of Representatives in the State Legislature, smiled grimly as he made the above remark this morning in the lobby of the Hotel Perkins. He was talking politics and his reference was in regard to the Senatorial fight now shaping itself at Salem. That Mr. Reeder had opinions of his own in this matter was easily discernible.

"This is a factional state," he continued, "and those who talk of Eastern Oregon, Western Oregon or Southern Oregon cutting any ice in matters political are breathing heated air. It is not a sectional political fight. It is a one-man power against another one-man power."

Mr. Reeder shook his finger threateningly at an imaginary leader of the opposition, and continued:

"Eastern Oregon could never hope to win in the Senatorial fight because Eastern Oregon cannot stand together. We are as badly split up over there as the people are down in this country, and it is factional strife—one man against the other—that has brought it about. We are in no worse position than is every other portion of Oregon when political alliances come to be enacted. There is not a district that will not completely lose track of its own interests to gratify a personal or a factional spite."

"How about the Senatorial contest?" was asked.

"Well, I am out of politics and cannot talk," was the answer.

"When a man is out of politics is just when he can talk," was volunteered, and thus urged Mr. Reeder went on.

POSSIBLE, NOT PROBABLE.

"There are many possibilities, but only a few probabilities. I think it is horse and horse with Geer and Fulton, but a dark equine is likely to win out."

"What are your own personal views?"

"Well, my views do not count in this election, but I have some just the same. I do not speak as a personal supporter of Governor Geer for Senator, and I do not speak as a man who has any axe to grind in this matter—I simply look at it all from the standpoint of the people, to whom, under the laws of Oregon, this matter has been appealed. And this I say:

OREGON VOTERS' BRAINS.

"The people have said they wanted Geer, and the average Oregon voter, when he goes down to the polls and casts his ballot, uses more genuine intelligence in the marking of it than could be exerted by the combined brains of all the factional leaders if gathered together in a single skull, still alive with the personal grievances, prejudices and desires which animate these same alleged leaders.

"Are they to say the people are fools? Are they to declare this country is no longer governed by the people and the voice of the people must not be heeded? Are they to say—do they believe?—the voter of Oregon has not sense enough to know whom he wants to go to the Senate? It is the duty of the Legislature to elect Geer!"

After a moment's thought, Mr. Reeder added:

RIGHTS OF THE PEOPLE.

"And that is what you can put in the newspaper as coming from me. I believe in the rights of the people and in those rights being respected."

No matter what he does believe to be the duty of the Oregon Legislature in the matter of the selection of Senator, Mr. Reeder does not believe that either Mr. Fulton or Mr. Geer will be the choice.

"The cards are not yet dealt which will decide the game," he said. "The combinations are not yet formed that will result in a win for somebody. It will be a dark horse. I am not mentioning any names."

With a knowing smile on his handsome face, Mr. Reeder walked up to the counter and began to scratch his name on the register. Looking back over his shoulder and still smiling, he finished thus:

"But I am out of politics and my voice does not count!"

TRAIN HITS WAGON.

As the Southern Pacific train from Dallas was pulling into the Jefferson street depot this morning it came into collision with the wagon and team of J. P. Culbertson, a wagoner. The wagon was overturned and the horses badly shaken up. The driver was thrown to the ground and rather severely bruised, but not otherwise injured. Dr. George F. Wilson was sent by the railroad company to attend to the wants of the injured man, but he was declared to be safe from serious complications and sent upon his way.

Weather and Climate.

A last summer's theory that abode late during the long and pleasant autumn was that on account of the cool summer we should have a mild winter. There is an antithesis about the statement that is pleasant, and the horrible condition of the fuel situation made the wish the father of the thought. Yet winter is with us, a trifle late, perhaps, and in a way that seems to betoken that he has come as one comes to his own, and that we shall have the usual visit from him. Of late years the seasons seem to have shifted a bit, all of them beginning later than the old schedule time, but as a matter of fact, modern scientific conclusion is that the supposed changes of climate are a delusion. Nothing is commoner than the belief that the climate is milder than in one's youth; that the cold then was more severe, the snows heavier. Even a philosopher, as Jefferson was supposed to be, was possessed of this delusion, and records that the snows were not so heavy as when he was a boy, and that the climate was getting milder. It is held now that climate changes now only over geologic periods, and that as far as man and his sensations are concerned it is constant. The difference is in two things, namely, manner of life and attention to fact.

HE TESTIFIED IN PANTOMIME

How Schwartz Invoked the Law And Felt Its Power.

A man named Schwartz was in the Municipal Court yesterday afternoon to prosecute C. Hearst for assault and battery. Now he is sorry for he fell himself into the pit that he digged for his adversary and will do 60 days on the rock pile.

The men both lived in the California lodging house and it seemed from the evidence that Schwartz has borne a hard reputation for some time, having been mixed up in two or three cutting affrays. Hearst is a cook and waiter and from the looks of Schwartz a keen scrapper. He admitted trying to "do for" the witness, but alleged great provocation. Schwartz found himself in a tight place and said he didn't know nothin' about it."

Here a witness was called in the person of Samuel Alexander, an old gentleman with a deliberate manner and a courtesy which forbade reference to either party in the case without the prefix "gentleman."

When sworn Mr. Alexander took the chair and folded his hands meekly.

"Tell what happened as you saw it," said Attorney Gatens.

"You want to know just what I saw?" asked the witness, gently.

"Yes," said His Honor.

"Well, what I saw was this way. Those two gentlemen ——" and the story of the fight was given in three words with a pantomine at the end which portrayed most vividly the outcome. Questioning brought out much favorable to Mr. Hearst, and Gentleman Schwartz began to look blue under his bandages. After Samuel Alexander had relapsed into his pantomime several times and slaughtered many imaginary adversaries, Judge Hogue fined Hearst $5 for fighting, and Schwartz was charged with using abusive language and sent to the jail for 60 days with a warning in addition to keep out of trouble or he would land in the penitentiary.

EITHER INSANE OR ECCENTRIC

McKendry Gave Warning of Resurrection.

"It's up to you, judge," said A. McKendry yesterday afternoon when Judge Frazer of the Circuit Court asked him what should be done with him.

McKendry is the old man who has made life a burden for Mrs. Mary Keno of the East Side for the past several months. As stated yesterday he wrote her several letters in which he warmly declared his love for her. One of the letters was shown to the judge yesterday and after reading it he exclaimed: "That man is either crazy or mighty eccentric.

"Why did you write this letter?" asked Judge Frazer.

"I didn't," was the calm reply.

"You had some one else write it?"

"Ah-m, a-yes, I had it written," mumbled McKendry.

"You say here that unless Mrs. Keno finds room for you in her house to beware of the resurrection. What do you mean by that?" asked Judge Frazer.

With a wild stare in his eyes, McKendry answered: "Well, Christ had a resurrection, didn't He?"

SOMETHING WRONG.

"Batty," whispered a spectator.

"Rooms for rent upstairs," chipped in another.

"Well, McKendry, I don't know what to think," said Judge Frazer; "but I will sentence you to serve a term of six months in the county jail."

McKendry was removed from the room by a deputy sheriff, and Judge Frazer suggested to A. Walter Wolfe, his attorney, that there be an examination as to the man's sanity. This was agreed to, and the examination will take place in the near future.

QUEER MOOSE

Tamed Himself to Become Attraction at a Hotel.

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—Kineo has a special attraction just now in the shape of a cow moose, which makes herself thoroughly at home on the hotel lawns, eying spectators mildly or chewing her cud in the sun with evident satisfaction.

Early in October the cow put in an appearance in the vicinity of the camps of the Nighthawk Club at Sugar Island and very soon manifested a decided tendency to make friends with the clubmen. She soon became so tame as to eat out of the hands of her friends.

When it came time to close the camps the members thought of the cow moose. They telephoned to Manager C. A. Judkins of the Mount Kineo House, asking him if he would take her to Kineo. He did, and since that time she has roamed at will close to the hotel, evidently thoroughly at home.

She enjoys the fresh green grass of the lawns, watches the bustle of life here with apparent interest, poses willingly for amateur photographers, and, in fact, is a most obliging and congenial guest. The intention now is to keep her here as a permanent attraction. It is believed that this is the only instance on record where a wild moose has been tamed in this way.

New French Postage Stamp.

The Government of France is to have a new postage stamp, and the issue will probably be made at the beginning of the year. The design approved is the beautiful one of the woman sower ("La Semeuse") of Roty, which already appears on the small coins in circulation. The present inartistic stamp for inland use, especially its villainous coloring, has much troubled the postal authorities, but want of money and some other considerations blocked the way. M. Roty has removed them himself. He has presented his design to the postoffice, which is equivalent to a donation of 50,000 francs, seeing that the amount is realized by the first sales of a new issue to philatelists, and he has allowed his scruples to be overcome, which prevented him from designing a stamp when he had acted as the member of a committee charged with the selecting of a vignette. Not to be outdone in generosity, M. Mouchon, who created the old stamp, is going to engrave the new. Its color will be changed to a deeper red.

LABOR UNIONS GETTING BUSY

Building Trades Make a Favorable Report.

The Garment Workers Elect New Officers—A Large Organization.

At the weekly meeting of the Building Trades Council last evening the action of the carpenters in asking for increased wages was indorsed. It was held that the new scale as prepared by them is a very reasonable one and should be granted by the building contractors. The delegates from the Carpenters' Union contended that if the minimum rate of wages should be fixed at $3.50 it would have a tendency to weed out the unskilled mechanics now in Portland.

Auditor Pierce's report for the quarter ending January 5 showed the sum of $309.55 in the treasury on that date.

NEW OFFICERS.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing term: L. D. Reed, president; J. W. Stiger, vice-president; J. Lawson secretary; Page Carter, sergeant-at-arms; H. G. Greene, business agent and treasurer; Frank Vleet, F. Ritzinger, J. S. Beriault, executive and arbitration committee.

Several of the newly-elected officers made addresses on the benefits accruing from unionism. They reported that the prospects for a busy season never looked more flattering. No trouble over the new agreements which several of the allied organizations have presented to their employers is anticipated.

STREET RAILWAY EMPLOYES

Union in Good Condition and Growing Rapidly.

Secretary Wilson, of the local Street Railway Employes' Union, reports that President Mahon, of the international organization, will arrive at San Francisco today to investigate complaints which the union has made at that place against the companies. It seems that the daily receipts turned in by the conductors fall short when a final accounting is made of them. Some suspicion falls on intermediate parties through whose hands the funds pass. At any rate, President Mahon will make an effort to clear up the mystery which has been the means for some time past of making strained relations between the employes and the companies.

The local union is in splendid condition, and rapidly growing. Secretary Wilson says he has had his hands full lately, in connection with his other duties, of filling out application blanks for new members. New men are being constantly employed by the various lines, and a big majority of them join the union soon after going to work.

THE UNITED GARMENT WORKERS

They Meet and Elect Their First Officers.

The United Garment Workers of America, Local 228, have effected a permanent organization of a union by the election of the following officers:

J. M. Buckley, president; Mrs. E. Booth, vice-president; Miss L. Keegan, recording secretary; Mrs. N. Wooley, financial secretary; I. Matthews, treasurer; R. P. Nelson, sergeant-at-arms; Lottie Johnson, guide; John McCarron, Marie Springmeyer, Walter Bryant, trustees; J. E. V. Belcher, Lizzie Hahn, Mattie Neal, finance committee; Rose Bishop, Clarence Routiege, E. Stout, Molly Connolly, D. O. D. Hughes, Blanche Tufford, O. Stillwell, executive committee.

These are the employes of Fleischner, Mayer & Co., the large wholesale house on Front street, which was recently unionized throughout. The organization starts out with a membership of more than 300, and it will gradually be added to from time to time. It is the first union of garment workers in the city, and the only one on the Pacific Coast of any consequence north of San Francisco.

A NEW UNION.

The Flour and Mill Cereal Employes is the latest union to be formed in Portland. It was organized Sunday afternoon by G. Y. Harry, and starts off with a good membership. The following officers were elected: John Hoffman, president; George Miller, vice-president; C. M. Johnson, corresponding secretary; A. Robinson, financial secretary; F. Bohnsack, treasurer; Ed. Burton, guide; Fred Stoldt, sergeant-at-arms; John Hoffman, C. M. Johnson, Arthur Robinson, delegates to the Federated Trades Council.

EXPRESSMEN'S UNION.

The Expressmen's Union has elected the following officers for the ensuing term: Thomas Garner, president; William H. Lanius, vice-president; A. Anderson, secretary and treasurer; Paul Schultz, recording secretary.

TO SALEM.

G. B. Thomas, prominent local labor leader and a member of the Machinists' Union, will leave this evening for Salem on a short business trip.

MARINE NOTES.

The Scottish Minstrel left up from Astoria at 9 o'clock this morning, and is expected to reach here some time tomorrow. She has a general cargo from Antwerp, consigned to G. W. McNear.

The French bark Surcout has cleared at the custom house for Elisabeth, South Africa, with 111,537 bushels of wheat, valued at $81,421.

ESTABLISHMENT WANTS TO KNOW

What Portland Employers Do for the Betterment of Employes.

The Mayor has turned over the following letter to Secretary Shillock of the Board of Trade, thinking that that gentleman would be able to furnish the required information.

"DAYTON, O., January 2, 1903.

"Mayor of Portland, Or.

"Dear Sir—The most excellent work being done by many employers throughout the country in the interest of their employes is attracting universal attention. As we were pioneers in this sort of work, and are losing no opportunity to gain ideas which will enable us to extend it, we are naturally interested in what others are doing.

"Will you not be good enough to advise us if there are any manufacturing or other large companies in your city which are making an effort for the betterment of their employes? We refer to anything and everything, aside from wages, which is done at the expense of the employer for the employe, or at a minimum cost to the latter. If you can send photographs portraying any such features they will be highly appreciated; or if you can place us in touch with concerns which are doing advance work we shall be glad to pay for what they may send us, or place them on our exchange list for the several attractive publications which we issue from time to time.

"We enclose stamped envelope and will thank you for the courtesy of a reply. Most cordially yours,

"GEO. A. TOWNSEND, JR.,
"Advance Department."

The policy which has lately been initiated by some of the large manufacturing concerns is becoming more widespread and will do an immense amount of good.

INTELLIGENT DEER

It Appreciated What Was Done to to Save Its Life.

DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 13.—Deer in extremity will sometimes do strange things. Not long ago Anton Lessaie, with a companion, was in a birch canoe on a pool in one of the upper reaches of the Wisconsin River. They had been lookin for cedar poles and were floating idly.

They heard the noise of dogs in the woods and supposed that some Indians from the Flambeau Reservation were chasing deer. The Chippewa use deer dogs in spite of the state law, since he lives on a United States Reservation, and skips back to it when in danger of arrest.

Five minutes after the men heard the barks a big buck appeared on the bank of the stream. It paused for a moment and showed that it was in the last stage of exhaustion. Then it fell rather than jumped in, though it saw the men plainly.

It struck out for the opposite shore, though able only to keep its nostrils above water, and as the boat was in its way, came directly toward it.

A birch canoe is a ticklish thing. Anton was excitedly afraid that the deer would strike and overturn it, since it showed no disposition to go aside, so instead of dipping his paddle and sending the craft out of harm's way, he seized a slender pole lying in the bottom and struck at the buck.

The deer, evidently fearing that it would drown—or knowing that it would drown—before it could get across, grasped the pole instantly with its teeth and hung on. Anton jerked the pole a couple of times and though he pulled the animal's nose under did not break its hold.

The canoe was rocking dangerously, and his companion, grabbing a paddle, began to work the craft toward the bank. The deer held on to its end, and Anton held on to his, and so the trio made their way strangely and slowly.

The deer did not struggle once it was permitted to retain its grip, and was towed along. When shallow water was reached it dropped the pole and started for shore.

It was so weak that it fell on the edge of the water, but managed to scramble to its feet, and the next instant into the woods at a walk. The men had no weapon, and would not have killed it anyhow.

A minute or two later three of the gaunt wolf-like dogs of the Indians appeared. They had been running hard, but were game for 20 miles more. They saw the white men, wheeled and started back into the underbrush.

STREET CAR MEN STAND TOGETHER

They Are a Unit in Asking More Pay.

Have Faith in Fairness of President Swigert of the City & Suburban.

"We are not presenting demands," said M. Nagle, a street car man in the service of the City & Suburban Transportation Co. "We are making a request for better pay, and we have the greatest confidence in the fairness of Mr. Swigert, our president, in receiving and acting upon this request."

Employes of the City & Suburban deplore the rumor that gained circulation to the effect that they were not a unit in presenting the petition which is already in the hands of President Swigert. They say that not all employes of the company signed the petition, but that the reason for their failure to do so was inability to do so through being elsewhere employed at the time the request was circulated.

AS ONE MAN.

"We are as one man in this matter," said Mr. Nagle. "There is no division of opinion. We have submitted our case to Mr. Swigert and he will act upon it."

"In the event the company does not see fit to grant your desires, what action will the employes take?" was asked.

"It will then be up to the company to show us that it is not financially able to meet our wishes. If it does so, we will wait until the proper time comes around," was the answer.

"But suppose the company does not increase your wages and still fails to show inability?" persisted a Journal reporter who was seeking information along this line.

"That would have to be decided upon later," said Mr. Nagle. "We did not discuss that, and will not do so now. We have every confidence in the fairness of Mr. Swigert.

REQUEST IS FAIR.

"We do not feel that our request is unfair. A year ago we wanted a raise in wages and we got it. There was no trouble. At that time the company said it could afford to pay us so much and that later, when it found itself in shape, it would give us more. Travel was never so heavy over the line as it is now, and we feel the time has come for that promised advance in wages. There is no thought of trouble. We simply make a request and will discuss the matter. We want 25 cents an hour for regular men and 22 1-2 cents an hour for extra men. This is no more than other roads in this country are paying."

A canvass of employes of the City & Suburban brought out very clearly the fact that no hostility toward the company is felt. The desire of the men is to better their condition, not to interfere in any way with the affairs of the company for which they are working. They have accepted what they feel to be low wages while the company was getting into form to give returns. Now they feel their loyalty should be rewarded.

SUES FOR $25,000

Nurse Expelled From Hospital Makes Sensational Allegations.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Helena Heinrichs, a trained nurse, has brought suit in the Supreme Court against the Training School of the Brooklyn Hospital for $25,00 damages. Miss Heinrichs alleges that her standing in the eyes of the world has been seriously affected by the fact that she was expelled from the school on November 21, 1891. She also says that she has been deprived of the means of a livelihood.

The suit is an outcome of the disclosures that were made some months ago concerning the alleged mismanagement of the school. Early in July, 1901, Dr. Arthur C. Jacobson, who is connected with the hospital and is a brother-in-law of the plaintiff, discovered, he said, that a certain woman officer of the school had been guilty of improper conduct. Dr. Jacobson made a threat through the medium of a newspaper.

The woman officer is said to have left the hospital and the state as a result of the disclosures. Before going, however, she succeeded in causing the dismissal of Miss Heinrichs.

When the case comes up for trial sensational testimony as to the conduct of certain former officials is promised.

WILL EXHIBIT OREGON VIEWS

O. R. & N. Will Give Stereopticon Exhibition to Portlanders.

Yesterday afternoon the executive committee of the Board of Trade held a meeting in the hall of the Oregon Mining Exchange, at which it was decided to keep the business of the meeting secret.

During the course of the meeting it was learned that the Harriman immigration bureau has arranged to send a large and varied assortment of stereopticon views to the Eastern representatives of the bureau to be exhibited in all parts of the East. These are views of Oregon, Washington and Idaho and will give an excellent idea of the productiveness of these states to the people of the East. General Passenger Agent A. L. Craig of the O. R. & N. Co. now has these views in his possession and at the request of the executive committee of the Board of Trade has kindly consented to exhibit them to the business men of Portland in the Board of Trade's quarters soon. The date for the exhibition has not as yet been decided upon, but will probably be January 31.

Literary Women and Marriage.

Women writers seem to imagine that the literary woman who wishes to make a passionate thumb-mark on the milestones of life should be either not married at all, and evoke her cryptogramic caricatures of men out of her own virgin mind, or married to a disreputable husband, who will be a living domestic model for the villain in her stories.

HEYBURN CHOSEN IDAHO'S SENATOR

Hawley, Democrat, Gets Complimentary Vote.

Borah Gives Up Fight and Caucus Nominee Is Elected With Little Opposition.

(Journal Special Service.)

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 13.—Weldon B. Heyburn was elected United States Senator from Idaho at noon today. Heyburn received 50 votes on joint ballot; Hawley (Dem.) getting 11 votes.

The Borah adherents caucused last night and 14 agreed to stand out against Heyburn. This was not a sufficient number to warrant any hope for Borah as it required 17 votes to cause a deadlock. Borah, in a ringing speech, declared that he would stand by Heyburn, the caucus nominee.

The Senatorial contest in Idaho which was settled today by the election of Heyburn as the Republican successor of Henry Heitfeld (Pop.), although upon the surface accomplished amidst the best of feeling, nevertheless has left wounds that may not easily be healed.

FAVOR WAR MUSEUM

Spanish War Veterans Will Appeal to Congress.

(Journal Special Service.)

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13.—At the recent general assembly of the National Army and Navy, Spanish War Veterans, held at Detroit, a resolution was unanimously adopted for the appointment of a committee on legislation, to look after the interests of the organization in matters coming before Congress. One of the duties imposed upon the committee is stated in a resolution, which was unanimously adopted, requiring the members "to urge Congress to pass a law and make a sufficient appropriation for the establishment at Washington, D. C., of a museum of war as a monument to the American soldiers of all wars, from the Revolution to the war with Spain."

Col. M. Emmet Urel, commander-in-chief of the Spanish War Veterans, has appointed the committee on legislation. Its members are: Capt. J. Walter Mitchell, chairman; Capt. Lee M. Lipscomb, past commander of the Corps of the District of Columbia, and Capt. Daniel V. Chisholm. Committee headquarters have been opened at 212 Third street, Northeast.

The National Army and Navy, Spanish War Veterans, has grown to a membership of about 135,000, and when the proposed amalgamation with the Spanish-American War Veterans occurs this month the number will be largely increased. Its interests before Congress will therefore be many and varied.

Two other matters which will be speedily brought to the attention of Congress are provision for a temporary home in this city for stranded Spanish War veterans and a request for the passage of a bill for the protection of the badge and button worn by the veterans.
