MONEY FOR THE 1930 FAIR

Appropriations Made by Wyoming and Utah

Special Commissioner Knapp Does Good Work in Western States.

The Western states are rapidly falling in line with the Lewis and Clarke Fair. Yesterday the Legislature of Wyoming passed a bill providing for an appropriation for the Fair; a bill passed the Senate of Utah yesterday carrying with it an appropriation for the 1930 Fair, and a joint committee from the Colorado Legislature is now considering the amount that Colorado should appropriate.

In a report to the Lewis and Clarke Fair board of directors, Special Commissioner Knapp announces that Governor Richards of Wyoming has notified him that the bill carrying with it an appropriation for the Lewis and Clarke Fair has passed both houses of the Wyoming Legislature. As originally drafted this bill provided for an appropriation of $36,000.

The joint committee of the Colorado Legislature is discussing two subjects in connection with an appropriation. First, whether to provide $200,000 for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition and let the Lewis and Clarke appropriation come from that amount, or, second, to present a bill providing for an appropriation but stating no amount, that to be decided upon by the Governor and the Legislature.

A bill passed the Utah Senate yesterday providing for $10,000 appropriation for Utah's exhibit at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition and $10,000 for the Lewis and Clarke Fair. The bill also provides for the appointment of a fair commission consisting of the Governor and four others.

PROMISCUOUS SHOOTING.

Some person shot a hole through the front window of the Linwood saloon, at the corner of Second and Stark streets last night. The bullet was found in the saloon this morning.

The proprietor of the saloon came to police headquarters this morning and asked that the case be investigated. A record was made of the affair, and an officer was detailed to investigate. In this instance, police officers are of the opinion that some Chinaman shot the bullet. They state that Chinamen, when full of hop, become very hilarious, and frequently discharge fire arms promiscuously.

Several cases of shooting on the streets have been reported in the city of late, and it is getting to be a dangerous practice.

KILLS GERMS OF CATARRH

Hymel Goes to the Root of the Disease and Makes Astonishing Cures.

Catarrh cannot be cured by the use of pills, liquid medicine and so-called system tonics. Under such treatment the germs in the air passages and increase and multiply.

Hymel is the only scientific and thorough way to cure catarrh. Killing the germs in the air passages, it enters the blood with the oxygen, destroys the microbes in the disease and effectually drives from the system all traces of catarrh.

Thousands of testimonials have been given as to the astonishing cures made by this remedy. J. S. Nugent, treasurer of the American Union Life Insurance Co. of New York, City, writes: "Hymel has completely cured my daughter of catarrh from which she has been suffering for years."

Probably the strongest evidence that can be offered as to the powers of Hymel to cure catarrh is the fact that you, as a druggist, will agree that if you have money if you say Hymel has not cured you now is a good time to cure your catarrh.

MANAGER'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

"The Man From Sweden"

There are some firms in the theatrical business who pursue the policy of surrounding their stars with inferior companies, but not so with Messrs. Broadhurst & Curtis. This fact will be exemplified when Kaute Erickson, in "The Man From Sweden," is presented for your approval at Cordray's all next week, beginning Washington's birthday, matinee Sunday, February 22. As is customary with this firm, everything must be up to the standard, and in this case every little detail has been attended to in a very thorough manner. Mr. Erickson has been surrounded by a thoroughly competent company and in a play which abounds in cleverness, there is little doubt of its success. The author of "The Man From Sweden," Mr. Charles Newman, has been identified with several recent successes which Broadhurst & Curtis have presented, and in this instance Mr. Newman has written a comedy drama that is full of thrilling situations, clever dialogue and delightful comedy. Several of the situations are entirely new to the stage, one in particular, the hilarious scene at the finale of the third act, calling for rounds of applause wherever "The Man From Sweden" has been played. Mr. Erickson certainly fits the part like a glove, for in this instance the part was written especially for him, and he has ample scope in which to display his droll comedy in a dialect character part, which, although not new to the stage, is presented in a new and novel manner. Judging from the large advance sale, Mr. Erickson will be greeted by a full house next Sunday matinee and evening. Special ladies' and children's matinee Saturday.

Virginia Drew Tresscott.

Virginia Drew Tresscott opens tonight at the Marquam Grand, giving the performance, including a Saturday matinee of "Lord Strathmore." Miss Tresscott is no stranger in Portland, having lived here for a number of years, and being recognized as one of the society leaders. She was seen here last season for the first time, appearing in the leading roles in a play written by Mr. Frederick Warde. This season she appears as a star, with her own company, under the personal direction of Mr. David Trattel, who was formerly Mr. Warde's manager. Miss Tresscott has met with the most flattering notices wherever she has appeared.

Lord Strathmore a Great Play.

The people who have read "Strathmore" and of course there is a number among them most of the worshippers of "Ouida," need scarcely be assured that "Lord Strathmore," which was rendered yesterday afternoon and last night at Greenwall's Opera House by Virginia Drew Tresscott, supported by a most excellent company, is a play of color, dramatic incident and picturesque human interest. Two good-sized audiences showed their appreciation for the masterly manner in which this play was presented by repeated curtain calls at the end of each act.

One cannot be said in praise of the character of Marion, the one she assumes, is not by any means a very pleasant one or one that attracts, but it is a great part, and it was greatly played. She shows us a character so different from any other that has ever appeared on the local stage, and in such a manner that her audience forgot it was acting. No greater compliment could be paid Miss Tresscott, who can feel assured that she has won herself into the hearts of the theatre-goers of Fort Worth, and by her successful acting established herself a favorite. Great credit is due her management for the very excellent company and environments in which they have surrounded their star. Not a weak spot in the entire cast being visible. Every character was sustained to the full, and as in "Lord Strathmore," Mr. Alexander Frank looked and acted the part most admirably. No better production of any play has been seen in the Opera House in many years, and should "Lord Strathmore," with Virginia Drew Tresscott, ever appear again in Fort Worth, they can feel assured of a full house—Fort Worth Register, Sunday Morning, November 23, 1922.

Daniel Sully.

The well known and popular Irish actor, Mr. Daniel Sully, surrounded by a capable company, will pay us a visit next Tuesday night at the Marquam Grand, February 25 and 26, in an entirely new play, "The Old Mill Stream," in which he has been appearing with great success. It treats of those subjects nearest the heart tenderly and wistfully is pervaded by that delightful comedy of which Sully is so expert an exponent. Its exquisite sentiment brings the tears to the eyes, but ere they can reach the eyes, Mr. Sully has banished them by his irresistible humor. The love story is a pretty one, yet forcefully told, and holds the attention until the end. Perhaps a reason for the success of the play will be placed on sale at the Marquam next Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

"All the Comforts of Home"

"All the Comforts of Home" is still being had at the Baker. This play is more a comedy than a money-making play to those who are fortunate enough to witness it. It abounds with comicities, which are not merely thrown in, but belong to the play. The members of the stock company have proven themselves entirely adequate to reproduce this comedy. Perhaps a reason for this can be assigned to some of the boarding houses some of the members of the troupe have had the good fortune to stay in. The house is being crowded nightly. In fact, Manager Baker is seriously contemplating the building of an addition to this theatre at the end of the season. Lillian Rhoads as Emily Pettibone and William Lamp as Victor Smythe, really take the part of lovers, so that a lively flirtation winds its way throughout the four acts of this play. "All the Comforts of Home" has proved one of the most successful comedies of the season. This is partly due to the fact that the production is far superior to those ordinarily seen under a similar name. The members of the Baker Stock Company seem to have fitted themselves into the cast and are representing the characters as faithfully as possible, without giving any artificial touches to them. Anyone wishing to know what "All the Comforts of Home" really are, had better not miss seeing it at the Baker.

"The Diamond Robbery"

Catharine Countess as Mrs. Maria Bulford in the powerful melodrama, "The Great Diamond Robbery," is the role which that popular young actress will enact at the Baker next week, commencing with Sunday matinee. She has outlined a role which she will play to exhibit all of her tragic talent, as the part of Mrs. Bulford must be that of a beautiful woman, who by her beauty alone tries to impress the world at large with her good looks, while at heart she is as base as her accomplices, the robbers, who steal the priceless diamonds. This play gives over 25 characters, and for its dramatic excellence and high art deserves to be placed among some of the leading productions. Every member of the Baker Stock Company will have an important part to fill. This cannot be said of any other play, where some members merely fill in. Those who delight in witnessing the performance of a melodrama of a high order without the inevitable "trilling" mill scene and the fire which consumes the villain" should not miss witnessing the performance of this excellent production, owing to its superiority over other plays of its kind, the Baker Stock Company will give it an extra rehearsal, so that when presented it will be absolutely without a flaw.

Virginia Drew Tresscott Matinee.

The last performance of "Lord Strathmore" with Virginia Drew Tresscott, a leading role, will be given at the Marquam Grand tomorrow night. There will be a matinee performance tomorrow afternoon and it has already attracted a good house. The sale of seats continues this afternoon and tomorrow morning.

SMOKER TONIGHT.

The smoker and entertainment to be given tonight in the A. O. U. W. Hall by the Federated Trades Council, at which all the unions in the city are invited to attend, is being looked forward to with a great deal of interest. It is now believed that the hall will not be large enough to accommodate all who are desirous of attending.

Emotional Scene Witnessed This Morning.

Wife Finds Missing Husband and Grand Finale Comes Off in Public.

The strange sight of a stylishly attired woman embracing a man somewhat the worse in appearance on account of a spree, was witnessed this morning at the corner of Third and Oak streets. It was the climax to a story of love and devotion on the part of the woman, and a man acting the role of a run-away husband.

Louise De Koven was the name of the pretty little woman, and McPherson De Koven was the name of the husband.

Bright and early this morning the door of the police station swung open, and a dainty woman stepped in. She inquired for the captain, and asked leave to have a private talk with him. She told her story, and as usual, there was a man in the case.

Came from Tacoma.

The story, as told by Mrs. De Koven, was that for several days her husband had been missing, and she had learned that he came to Portland. Having this information in her possession, she boarded the North Coast Limited in the City of Destiny, and was soon speeding on her way to find her erring husband. Arriving late last night, she registered at a local hotel, and arising early this morning, went at once to the police station.

A description of the husband was given, and Officer Vaughn was detailed to locate, if possible, the missing man.

Going out upon the street, the officer and the woman had not gone two blocks, when De Koven was seen, standing on the corner of Third and Oak streets. Mrs. De Koven ran over to her husband, and before he knew it, she was embracing him, and showering kisses upon him. Then they shook hands, and walked off together.

Element of Mystery.

There is an element of mystery in the case. The police seem disinclined to give out the story in its full details, and the woman refused to talk to reporters.

From other sources, however, it was learned that De Koven had been drinking for several days, and had left Tacoma while under the influence of liquor. That he was drugged, is hinted at by some, but as to that, there is no proof.

It did not take long for an immense crowd of people to gather to witness the scene on Third and Oak streets this morning; neither did it take long for Mr. and Mrs. De Koven to make tracks for other quarters.

SOFALA CHARTERED.

The British ship Sofala, 2,160 tons, has been chartered by Balfour, Guthrie & Co. to load grain at Portland for South Africa, the rate being 24 shillings. The vessel is at San Francisco, where she has been lying for the past two months. There are still 54 ships on the disengaged list at the Bay City.

DAKOTA EDITOR WORE FINE HAT

Great Jealousy Aroused by Headgear of Visitor.

He left his editorial sanctum in North Dakota, warned the devil not to put the gasoline too close to the red-hot stove, tucked his wife under his arm and came West to see the country favored by heaven.

Many strange sights added pungency to his ruminations as he sat up nights inditing letters to the Cornstock Weekly Blizard.

Also he collected curios to fill the space left in his grip-sack by a gradual consumption of railroad folders.

He saw a strange hat on a man's head in a theatre lobby. This occupational garment shut up and opened out. "I shall get one, Susan," said the editor. "It will do to wear to church," said Susan.

"And to lodge," added her husband, with growing enthusiasm.

So by an ingenious method of description the editor made a hatter know his wants.

Yesterday he appeared on Portland's streets wearing an opera hat.

"What do you call it?" inquired an envious fellow editor.

The proud possessor gesticulated eloquently.

His wife bridled haughtily.

"It's called an opera hat," vouchsafed the editor of "The Blizard."

"How does it operate?"

There were explanations, demonstration and exclamations.

Then he of the opera hat led the procession to Oregon City, carrying his former headgear in a paper sack. "Best to be on the safe side, Susan. This might shut up and we couldn't open it."

"Don't fool with it, pa; you look fine in it."

And the other editors pondered scathing paragraphs on a luxurious and effeminate civilization.

NOT JESSE'S BROTHER.

"Frank James, stand up," commanded the bailiff.

"Gracious!" exclaimed an old man. "Mercy me!" exclaimed another.

"Let me get a good look at him. I knew the James boys; I'm from Missour, and you'll have to show me, chipped in a third.

"Are you related to Jesse James, son?" asked Judge Hogue.

Needless to say, the young man replied in the negative.

He was only an unfortunate fellow who had been arrested the night before for being drunk on the streets.
