Great excitement prevails among the striking miners and further bloodshed is expected. Troops have been ordered to the scene but cannot, it is thought, reach the mines in time to prevent serious trouble and further clashes between the now thoroughly exasperated miners and the officers of ...e law.

A Blanket Injunction.

Armed with a blanket warrant, Deputy United States Marshal Cunningham Saturday last went to the mines and attempted to arrest a lot of strikers on the charge of disobeying an injunction from the United States court Since the issuing of the injunction the miners have been endeavoring to keep the strike going.

Cunningham was surrounded by s mob of strikers and given five minutes to leave the vicinity. He left and notified the sheriff, who formed a posse and went to the scene. Strikers armed with Winchesters drove the sheriff's men away without firing a shot.

Sunday the miners withdrew from the collieries and made a camp across the river. They returned to Staniford yesterday en masse and rioting began. Several non-union miners were assaulted and a deputy sheriff was chased from

Large Posse Organized.

Cunningham rushed to this city and engaged 35 men to join his expedition against the miners. At the same time a sheriff's posse made a forced march to the mines, where the two attacking forces joined. In all there were 150 men in the combined posses.

The miners had secured 150 rifles but

The attacking force succeeded in surrounding the strikers and taking the latter by surprise. Without warning a volley was fired at the miners and the battle began. Hastily seizing rifles the miners returned the fire as best they could, but they were surrounded on all sides and a rain of lead poured in upon

The wonder is that more men were not killed at the first fire. Seven of the union men were riddled with builets while others were fatally shot. Many were slightly wounded.

The hot fire of the officers soon had its effect and the miners raised a white rag on a rifle barrel as a token of sur-

One hundred and twenty-five miners were gathered in from the surrounding country and marched under guard to this city, where they were formally charged with rioting and disobeying an injunction from a United States court.

SCANDAL OF RARE VARIETY

Brought Frisco Girl to Oregon---The Biter Badly Bitten.

Charged with bringing Pretty Ida Gray from San Francisco to Oregon with improver motives, arrested this morning on his arrival in Portland and compelled to part with 80 good goilars to return the young woman to her home are some of the things which today happened to Stephen Carver, president of the Bank of Ontario, Or.

When the San Francisco train pulled into the depot this morning a complaint was at once lodged with the police against Carver, he was placed under arrest and the story of the trouble was

Carver's Story.

President Carver, according to his own story, left his quiet Ontario home for a business trip to San Francisco. The chief object of his trip was to procure a young lady for a position in his financial institution as assistant cashier, typewriter and stenographer. Well, Carver arrived in the city by the Golden Gate. Where should he look for an as sistant?

"Ah!" thought Carver "I'll put ar 'ad' in that great newspaper, the Ex-aminer; it'll fetch a pretty string!" And he placed the "ad."

And the girls came in swarms and droves.

"Of all men, I certainly am the most blest," thought Carver, as he bade the pretty young things sit down and wait until he could get an opportunity to talk with each one.

What a dazzling array those girls made as they lined up in Carver's room. Just think of the opportunity! All of those pretty young beauties had come. desiring to become his assistant in the Bank of Ontario.

There were so many, and each one possessed many graceful charms. It was very difficult indeed to make choice from among them. But he could not very well employ the whole num-ber. He must select one—just one girl, that was all he could afford. The upshot of the matter was the engagement of the little maid who proved Carver's utter undoing before he dropped her like a red-hot coal in this city today. He found, and acknowledges, that she is the most tenacious little woman he ever dealt with. Miss Gray's Story.

"On the way up, I think it was yesterday afternoon, he came to me and made me an indecent proposal. I indignantly refused. I said that I was not that sort of a girl, and he was mistaken if he thought I was. I then asked him if he was married. He told me 'no' one time, and then he told me he was. I had begun to think he was a pretty peculiar sort of a man.

He told me his wife was very jealous and that he did not want me to be seen with him. There were some people on the train named Bernard, and he told me he knew them, and did not want me to speak to them.

"He kept telling me all the time on the train that I was not competent, and that he did not want me. But he did tell me that if I would come and live in Ontario for his own personal gratification, that he would support me. I again made an indignant reply, and he then told me he would not have me for his assistant cashier.

Carver Paid the Money. Carver sat near by and listened to the story as related by Miss Gray. He did not deny anything. He said he was willing to pay Miss Gray the amount she asked for, if the matter would be dropped by the authorities. He also wanted an agreement that the newspapers should not publish the story. The authorities agreed to drop the matter, Carver wrote his personal check on the First National Bank of Portland and Captain of Detectives Simmons had no trouble in cashing it. The money was given to Miss Gray, and she will go back to San Francisco.

Carver, when asked if he had anything to say, stated that he had not. He said he thought the girl a little bit crazy, but he did not care to explain inything.
