F. H. Alliston Killed by Trolley Car.

Accident Supposedly Due to Fact That Victim Was Absorbed in I hought.

F. H. Alliston, well known in Masonic and insurance circles, collided with a Morrison-street trolley car between Tenth and Eleventh streets yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, receiving injuries from which he died at 4:45 p. m. The accident is inexplicable, but the most reasonable theory is that Mr. Alliston was occupied with some absorbing thought and failed to see the approaching car.

H. A. Sargent, Motorman Hicks and a lady passenger were the sole eyewitnesses to the fragedy. They agree that Mr. Alliston must have been unaware of the approach of the car. Sargent and Alliston were riding their wheels down Morrison street, the latter being in the lead. They were between the double tracks. They had been inspecting the new Scottish Rite Temple, and were going home. Motorman Hicks, all the eye witnesses state, rang his gong loudly, but Mr. Alliston, unheedingly rode on. He must have become confused when he suddenly looked up and saw the car almost upon him. If he had kept straight ahead, all would have been well, but he swerved his wheel directly in front of the car. He was knocked down instantly, and dragged a short distance. Motorman Hicksendeavored to reverse his car, but it was too late, and injuries were inflicted sufficient to cause death.

Dies at Mospital.

The injured man was removed immedistely to the Good Samaritan Hospital, where he was attended by Drs. Panton, It was thought at first that the distinguished patient would live, but he died from a blow on the head. There were numerous other wounds inflicted, also, and the loss of blood was great.
At the bedside were Mrs. Alliston, G. H. Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Holt. None of these were recognized by Mr. Alliston before death, although he showed no signs of mental distress. Owing the city, the funeral services over the

to the absence of certain relatives from remains will probably not occur until next Friday.

The late Mr. Alliston had been a resident of Portland for 20 years. At the time of his death he was the local agent for the German-American Insuran Company. He was a 32d degree Mason, and, among other high offices, was Grand Treasurer of the Grand Lodge of Masons of Oregon.

Will Make Portland Its Headquarters in Pacific Northwest---O. R. & N. Men Advanced

The Wabash Railroad, which has heretofore had no Western office north of San Francisco, has established headquarters in this city, and in future a traveling passenger agent for that line will operate throughout the Northwest from this city. W. S. Coburn, formerly rate clerk in the passenger department of the Q. R. & N. Company, has been appointed such agent and will enter upon his duties at once. WILL APPROACH MR. HARRIMAN

The transportation committee of the Chamber of Commerce met last Friday afternoon and appointed T. B. Wilcox and A. L. Mills a committee to confer with T. B. Potter and E. M. Brannick regarding the extension of the Columbia Southern Railway into the interior.

It is understood that President Harri-man of the lines which bear his name would be willing to extend the Columbia Southern but he does not wish to do so while others own this line. It is said that he would purchase the Columbia Southern, the only drawback being that no price can be agreed upon tween him and the stockholders of that railway. As the situation is at present, R. & N. Co. will not aid the Columbia Southern to build the extension and will not build it themselves. When seen regarding this matter W. A. Mears, secretary of the transportation committee and an authority on all matters pertaining to transportation, said:

Mr. Mears' Opinion. 'It is my opinion that under the circumstances it is necessary to get someone with influence, who understands the whole matter and knows how anxious the Chamber is to open up the country quainted with Mr. Harriman, but who could meet him on an equal ground. This person should go East and lay the matter before Mr. Harriman and see whether some figure could not be arrived at, at which he would buy out present owners of the Columbia

Southern. "Looking towards that end the transportation committee has approached one of our most prominent men, one who has all the necessary attributes which I have mentioned. This gentleman has agreed to take the matter under consideration and let us know in very short time if he would act. It is believed and hoped that he will give us a favorable answer."

Baker Offers "Because She Loved Him So."

Good Presentation of "The Peddler's Claim" at Cordray's.

Two red hairs and a quart of doubtfulsmelling perfume, carefully placed, furnish the plot of the play that is being "boarded" at the Baker Theatre this week. "Because She Loved Him So" is the title and the reasons she had for her soul-devouring passion are presented in many forms. The entire performance is a roaring, rollicking farce, and the climaxes and situations are cleverly worked out and ingeniously sustained. The favorite Baker Stock Company does the work.

One leving pair that is married; another loving pair that would like to be, and a number of incidentals complete the list of characters. The lovers who are not yet enjoying the bliss of wedlock are employed as servants to those who do. They are kept busy, but want more time to themselves and to bring this about they plan a family quarrel. It is then that the red hairs and "horsey" perfume get in their deadly The husband is made the victim. the jealous instincts of the wife are aroused and the unmarried make merry, while the married suffer and grow sad.

The divorce court is threatened, but the parents of the bride come as arbitrators. By a double-back-action arrangement of the plot the old people actually quarrel while attempting to show the youngsters the error of their ways in a mock set-to, but things are finally arranged with plenty of comedy and a quick curtain at the finish.

Bennett Southard, Howard Russell, George Allison, William Bernard, Miss Counties and Miss Esmond are good in their parts and each member of the company, which has been before the Portland playgoers long enough to need to special mention, is good.

The company is well balanced and contains artists of true merit. It is a pity the work cut out for them cannot be more high class.

A Good Show at Cordray's.

No sand was thrown on the stage at Cordray's Theatre last night, as only two men were killed, and but one of them had trouble in dying. "The Peddier's Claim" is a melodrama that has far more of the sparkle than it has of gore, jokes being pushed many times oftener than knives. Sam Morris, a favorite with Pacific Coasters, was the hero, and nearly the whole three rings of the show. As Moses Levi, the Hebrew miner, life-saver, adviser, peddler. osher and fine fellow. Mr. Morris kept the audience in a good humon throughout the performance. He never became wearisome, and his puns were from a new stock. Whenever Moses said a few words everybody laughed

Miss Marie Nielsen was also a shining star. She was more pleasing in some respects than Mr. Morris, but that was because she was a princess and the peddler only a prince. Miss Nielsen's singing was heartily applauded. In voice and looks, she is a worthy rival of her famous sister, Miss Alice Nielsen. Bertram Miller, as Guisseppe Duranti, the heavy man, should import a new voice, or repair the present one. He speaks so low at times that the audience begins to long for a carload of eartrumpets. Duranti's sweetheart; Miss Blanche Chenoworth, is another lowvoiced villain, but her face and figure are redeeming.

George F. Hemandey, as Harry Nolan, possesses an elegant Irish "mug." and is a flerce joker. Mrs. Golden, widow of the first man killed, was acted by Miss Jessie Mosley. She was a handsome widow without the dash.

"The Peddler's Claim" will be the Cordray's attraction until Thursday night. The following is the cast:

THE MIND IS

Psychic Vibration Explained by Dr. Collinge at the Marquam.

Psychic vibration was dwelt upon at length by Dr. J. E. Collinge in a lecture delivered at the Marquam Theatre yesterday afternoon. The subject, "Man His Own Creator." was handled from the "new thought" standpoint and in a way that made it entertaining as well as instructive. Dr. Collinge did not attack members of the medical profession as many had been led to expect he would. On the other hand, he paid the highest possible compliment to physicians, claiming they were working for the general good of humanity and to alleviate suffering, but had mistaken ideas. The effects of suggestion and mental vibratory power the speaker declared to be phenomenal. They were coming to be more and more readily understood and generally practiced and the good to be world and the people who inhabit it is noticeable. Not only the physical ills, but love, business and pleasure are influenced and more or less governed by this system

In a quarrel here yesterday afternoon J. E. Patty assaulted M. Bohanan with an axe, not, however, doing any injury. The wielder of the weapon was placed under arrest and will be held for trial.

TONIGHT'S PLAYBILL. The Marquam Grand-"Lovers' Lane. The Baker-"Because She Loved Him

"The Peddier's Claim Fredericksburg-Vaudeville.

"Logers' Lane," at the Marquam. A play of great runs in great cities is "Lovers' Lane," by Clyde Fitch, which William A. Brady presents at the Marquam Grand Theatre tenight, tomorrow and Wednesday night, with a popular matinee Wednesday. After its accept-ance for months in New York Chicago and Boston, it went to Philadelphia last spring and ran for 150 nights. The company which interprets it here is the same. The production is upon the same scale of scenic perfection. "Lovers Lane" owes its success and universal popularity to the fact that it interests all classes. There are crowds of children in it, together with all the pastime in which the little ones indulge. The two big-hearted Eddyville boys, who fight in the village street because of hoydenish simplicity are so true to nature that the little ones in the audience are wrought up to a pitch of enthusiasm which few plays are calculated to inspire in children.

The childish songs and games, too, are familiar and bring to the recollections of those of mature years the days when hey, too, played the same games and indulged in the same games and childish frolles in their village homes. The oldfashioned village street, the general store, the little district school house, Milly Mealy, the bustling school marm, the scholars, including Johnny, the fat boy: the big-hearted clergyman, the funny manager of the village opera house, and the many other characters form a gathering in which mirth and pathos are skillfully blended. The real orchard in the clergyman's garden, in which many of the most pathetic scenes of the play are enacted, showing the trees in full bloom in the spring, and again in the fall, when the fruit is mellow, is very beautiful.

For Nance O'Neill. The advance sale of seats will open tomorrow (Tuesday) morning at o'clock for Nance O'Neil's engagement at the Marquam Grand Theatre the last three nights of this week with a matinee Saturday. The opening bill will be "The Jewess," on Thursday night, Fri-day night, "Magda." Saturday matinee, "Camille." Saturday night, "Elizabeth." The starry theatrical firmament this country today is well crowded, but of the stars who flicker there are many of one order and but few of another. The comedians, farceurs, operatic and comedy drama stars are in the majority-s great majority — while the tragedy queens are few and far between. This. course, is not without good and sufficient reason. An actress today, with the glittering offers of the vaudeville stage and the opportunities held out for feature positions in big productions, cares little to seek favor in the trying legitimate. Among the few stars in this line who have won the much-soughtafter smile of the theatre-going public is Nance O'Neil. Miss O'Neil's triumphs the legitimate have been clear-cut and brilliant, and today she ranks among the greatest of the world's tragedians.
