

OREGON CITY WOMAN HONORED

Mrs. Galloway Will Promote the 1905 Fair.

(Journal Special Service.) OREGON CITY, March 31.—Mrs. William Galloway of this city has been honored with an important commission from the Woman's Committee of the Lewis and Clark Fair. She will be in charge of the organization of the new clubs to be started over the state, these having for their object the promotion and welfare of the coming 1905 Fair.

Mrs. Galloway will start on her new work in the very near future, and she will have completed at least a greater portion of the state by the time a state convention will be held on May 20, in Portland. Besides other work to be accomplished at this meeting of the delegates from all over the state, it will be one of its objects to secure the means for the erection of a Woman's Building at the Fair grounds.

BASEBALL NOTE

Portland Browns Cross Bats With Los Angeles This Afternoon.

The Portland Browns, refreshed from their day's rest, will meet the strong Los Angeles team at the latter city this afternoon. Thatcher or Slagle will officiate in the box. Neither have pitched so far this season, so it is Vignaux's intention to give both twirlers a chance as soon as possible. Andy Anderson, who has fully recovered from his late illness, may be found at his regular second station today.

The Pacific Coast League Park in this city is about completed. The interior has been arranged so that the fans may enter and leave without any inconvenience.

Settling Notes. The batting averages of the Browns so far this season are as follows: Smith, .60; Nadeau, .55; Shafter, .55; Van Buren, .55; Butler, .55; Shields, .55; Vignaux, .55; Zinsner, .55; Andrews, .55; Schmeier, .55; Engle, .55.

DEATH OF GOOD SISTER.

Sister Mary of the Good Shepherd died yesterday at the convent of the Good Shepherd, East Portland. Sister Mary was a native of St. Louis. She was aged 33 years. Entering the Order of the Good Shepherd in Minneapolis 10 years ago she has since continued to give her life to the rescuing of unfortunates. Her funeral will occur tomorrow morning from the convent of the Good Shepherd, East Portland.

Tuesday Evening Pops.

A large attendance is expected to-night, the event being the third concert in the Pop series, under the direction of Elmore Rice. The Hidden-Courtesy Quartet will give a big program and are in the best of form. Mr. Hidden will play the "Air Variations" by Vieuxtemps. Mrs. A. C. Sheldon will sing a group of five songs. The Pops are growing most popular with those who care for the best.

THE FOOD THAT DOES GOOD

A medicinal food that attacks microbes and drives out disease.

The only vitalized Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with the hypophosphites of lime and soda and guaiacal. For weak, thin, consumptive, pale-faced people, and for those who suffer from chronic skin disease and weakness of lungs, chest or throat.

Ozonulsion is a scientific food, prepared under aseptic conditions in a modern laboratory under supervision of skilled physicians. To be had of all druggists. A Large Sample Bottle Free will be sent by us to any address on request, so that invalids in every walk of life can test it for themselves and see what Ozonulsion will do for them. Send us your name and complete address, mentioning this paper, and the large sample bottle will at once be sent to you by mail, prepaid.

The Ozonulsion Co., De Poyster Street, New York.

WAS A BUILDER OF HIS CHOSEN STATE

A Pioneer, He Labored for the Advancement of the Country.

(Continued from First Page.)

ing I gave the patient a little nourishment, which he called for. After partaking of it he relaxed in condition until 6:30 o'clock this morning, when the nurse came to me and said that Mr. Corbett's pulse had stopped beating. I found on arriving at his bedside that the pulsations were very weak, although there was no unconsciousness. I called Mrs. Corbett and her brother-in-law and sister. Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Mason, who arrived at least ten minutes before the great messenger had summoned the husband and friend away. I called Mrs. Corbett and her brother-in-law and sister. Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Mason, who arrived at least ten minutes before the great messenger had summoned the husband and friend away.

As a self-made man, Henry W. Corbett is worthy of mention. When a mere youth he left his home in Washington County, N. Y., and journeyed to Albany in that state. Not finding ready employment he traveled down the Hudson River to New York City and there hired out to a firm dealing in hardware on Spring street. His wages at the start were $2.50 per week. He remained with this firm for nearly five years and then decided to make his home in the Far West. He came to Portland via the steamer in 1852, and settled in Portland. He hired the second story of the building at Oak and Front streets. Here he engaged in the hardware trade and within a year was a prosperous merchant.

Resolutions of Condolence.

A special meeting of the directors of the Lewis and Clark Fair is being held this afternoon in the office of the company on Washington street for the purpose of appointing a committee to draft resolutions relative to the death of President Corbett. Another committee will be appointed to consult with those having charge of the funeral arrangements regarding the pallbearers who will represent the Fair. The members of the State Commission have been invited to meet with the directors. All of the out-of-town members of the directors and the State Commission have been notified of Mr. Corbett's death by Secretary Reed. Mr. Reed has also telephoned to San Francisco notifying Directors Charles E. Ladd and J. C. Ainsworth, who are there at the present time.

Funeral of Mr. Corbett.

The funeral of Henry W. Corbett will probably be held Thursday afternoon from the family residence. Interment will be made in Riverview Cemetery.

Regret Sincere Overcomes All

W. D. Fenton. "In my opinion, the death of ex-Senator Corbett, while not wholly unexpected, will be coming so suddenly, a great shock to this community. He was easily the Prince of Financiers in the Northwest, and his death is a public calamity, coming at a time when the larger interests of the Northwest were awaiting the attention and care of the country. The closing years of his long career of usefulness in this city and state were filled with plans for the upbuilding of this great empire. He entered upon the great historical celebration which will be held in 1905 in memory of the Lewis and Clark explorations with zeal, energy and enthusiasm. The influence he was able to exert in this direction did much to crystallize public sentiment in favor of the great undertaking. Associated with him in this work, I am able to say that no man was more far seeing or more unselfish in his plans to perfect the great exposition. It was not a local enterprise with him; it was a great historical event and memorial to American energy, enterprise and daring. For more than 50 years Mr. Corbett had been a great figure in the political, financial and social life of the Oregon country, and his greatest ambition in his declining years was to leave here some memorial of the work which he and the state builders of the Northwest had helped to do. You ask me what effect his death will have upon the Fair. Of this I am doubtful and somewhat delicate to speak. We shall miss him from our councils. His death is but little short of a calamity, and for the time being we shall hardly know how to supply his place. It is, however, to the credit of the people with whom he labored and among whom he lived that the death of no man can stay the hand of progress; and while it will be difficult, if not impossible, to supply his place in this great undertaking, we shall all unite with great earnestness of purpose to consummate the great work which he so auspiciously began."

E. M. Fleischner.

"Portland has lost its greatest citizen and as time moves on we will feel the loss very keenly. As far as the Fair is concerned the death of Mr. Corbett will not affect the workings of the corporation very much, although we need his advice and his help. He had sound judgment and was very much interested in the success of the Fair."

A. L. Mills.

"The death of Mr. Corbett is a great loss to the community. He was the head of the Lewis and Clark Fair and took a prominent part in the management of its affairs. Although his death is felt very deeply by the directors, work on the Fair will go right ahead."

Paul Wessinger.

"No one expected that the death of Mr. Corbett would occur so soon. I saw him last Thursday and he complained that the work connected with the office of president of the Lewis and Clark Fair was very hard for him. I was thunderstruck when I heard the news of his death. I thought that he would be present at the laying of the cornerstone

THE HISTORY OF HIS LIFE

(Continued from Page One.)

he went to New York City and obtained a clerkship in the dry goods store of William Bradford & Co., serving seven years in the business. During this period he became firmly established in the confidence of his employers and in October, 1850, they furnished him the necessary capital to ship a general line of merchandise to Portland, Or., by way of Cape Horn, on the bark Francis and Louise. He arrived in Portland March 4, 1851. At that time the embryo City of Portland contained about 400 inhabitants and five small stores; stumps of trees were standing on Front street and a block of first street stood in the forests. He secured the rental of a frame building, then not fully completed, on the corner of Front and Oak streets, at the rate of $125 per month. He removed his goods to the second floor of this building, before it was completed, his customers being obliged to ascend a flight of stairs. "At night," said Mr. Corbett at one time when referring to his early start, "I slept in the store and when I was ready to retire I pulled the stairs up after me." It was amid these rude surroundings that Mr. Corbett began his business career on the Pacific Coast. He applied himself to his work with all the energy and industry which has ever characterized him and within 14 months disposed of his entire stock of goods, the net profits of his venture amounting to the sum of $20,000, with which he returned to Portland, before leaving he became associated with Robert and Finney McLaren, who were to continue the business in Portland. He remained in New York for one year and during this time continued to ship goods to parties in Portland. He then determined to make Portland his home, and some months after his return dissolved with his partners and established the business in his own name. He continued to do general merchandise business until 1856, when he changed to a wholesale hardware store. In 1871 he consolidated with Henry Falling and established the firm of Corbett, Falling & Co., which has since occupied the first place in the mercantile houses of the Pacific Northwest.

Mr. Corbett's mercantile operations, great and successful as they have been, represent but feebly his capabilities and achievements in the business world. As soon as he had gained a fair financial start in his adopted home he began to take a prominent part in those enterprises which he saw were needed to develop the resources of the country. His first turned his attention to the improvement of transportation facilities on the river, becoming interested in steamboating. He was also among the first to advance the building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, and while in the Senate, he labored zealously for the project, although he had no personal interest to subservise in so doing.

Helped to Build Northern Pacific

The sands are numbered that make up my life. Here must I stay, and here my life must end. After the failure of Jay Cooke to carry the undertaking through, he assisted in the reorganization of the company by raising the necessary capital in the enterprise, and from that time until its completion was one of its most active promoters. In the winter of 1856-6 Mr. Corbett secured the government contract to carry the mail between San Francisco and Oregon. The line, 60 miles in length, he stocked with four-horse stages and successfully continued the business until his election to the United States Senate, when he relinquished his contract, believing his relation to the business incompatible with his duties as a public servant.

In 1859, with Henry Falling, Mr. Corbett purchased a controlling interest in the First National Bank of Portland, which had been established four years previously. Its business, however, was then limited, its deposits amounting to about $40,000. Under the new management it has steadily grown in magnitude until at the present time it is at the very head of the financial institutions of the Northwest, with deposits aggregating over $3,000,000, and capital and surplus amounting to $1,000,000. It is the oldest and strongest national bank in the Pacific Northwest. Henry Falling has been president ever since they took control and after his retirement from the Senate Mr. Corbett acted as vice-president.

Numerous are the other business enterprises which have received substantial encouragement and pecuniary assistance from Mr. Corbett. He was a director of the O. R. & N. Co., and always cast his influence in behalf of the liberal measures of this line, and to secure the lowest rates of transportation possible with good and quick service. He was also largely interested in the Portland Rope Works, Oregon Linsseed

Was Elected to Senate in 1866

There is no death—the thing we call death is but another name for life. Which is itself an innumerable name. That power whose shadow is the Universe. While Mr. Corbett continued to take a most active and influential part in managing the affairs of his party during the war period, he was actually by no personal ambition. He believed the maintenance of the principle and purposes of the party was essential to the preservation of the Union, and his labors were prompted by purely patriotic motives. In 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 1866, when some of the Republican members of the Legislature who recognized his unselfish labors in behalf of the organization of the party, asked the privilege of using his name as a candidate for United States Senator, he consented to being nominated, and he was elected to the Senate in 18