WHO IS TO LEAD PARADE?

No Grand Marshal for Portland's Turnout May 21.

Gen. Beebe Declines and Summers Will Not Act.

Who will be grand marshal of the Presidential-day parade?
General Charles F. Beebe today assured The Journal that his resignation from the position of grand marshal of the Portland demonstration, May 21, on the occasion of the visit to this city of the President of the United States, was final and could not be reconsidered.

General Owen Summers, at the head of the Spanish-American War Veterans of Oregon, and who has been mentioned as a rival candidate for grand marshal, today made most positive statement that he could not, under any circumstances, accept the honor, and stid that he deeply deplored the hasty action of his men

Mayor George H. Williams, chairman of the general committee on Presidential reception, states he is in favor of the retention of General Beebe as grand marshal and that he will use his influence to persuade that gentleman to cogtinue the services he has so ably

And the whole matter will be decided one way or another at a special session of the general committee which will be called for next Tuesday, and before which the written resignation of General Beebe will be presented.

War Veterans Will March.

General Owen Summers walked un-expectedly into a meeting of Spanish-American War Veterans being held at the Armory last evening, prevented the adoption of resolutions indorsing him from the post as grand marshal on Presidential day and dominated the meeting to the extent that a motion passed pledging the men who fought in the Philippines to participate in the parade regardless of the position assigned their commander.

Many believe that when this action is clearly understood General Beebe will be willing to act and will not force acceptance of his unwelcome resigna-

"While I cannot help but feel com-plimented at the action of my men," said General Summers to The Journal this "I am mortified at its result and had I known of it in advance I should have taken measures to prevent anything being done that would either hurt the feelings of General Beebe or disarranged the plans of the commit tee. Between General Beebe and myself there is now and always has been only the warmest feeling of friendship. shall insist upon his acting as grand marshal of the Presidential parade and shall fall into whatever position is as signed me and do my duty. I could not now accept the post of grand marshal, no matter under what terms it may be of-

In speaking of last night's meeting of Spanish-American War Veterans General Summers said:

Veterans Met Last Night. "Some 300 of my men were holding a meeting in the Armory and I happened in just in time to prevent the adoption of resolutions which would have been useless and might have only served to increase the delicacy of the situation. I was not expected to attend, but am very glad that I dropped in just when I did. 'I made the men talk along the lines of duty to themselves, to the City of Port-land and to the Nation and then moved that they participate in the Presidential parade without question of rank or precedent. The motion carried.

"I would like The Journal to say for me that I will do everything I can to make the parade an unqualified success will participate in whatever capacity would best suit the general committee and am willing to do anything except act as grand marshal. This I could not

General Summers feels that in urging his name as a candidate for grand marshal the members of his former regiment paid him a high compliment, al-though their efforts were mistaken and resulted in placing him in a very delicate position.

"The days of army discipline are over." the General said. "I cannot now control the actions of my men."

Beebe Holds No Grudge. To The Journal, General Charles, F. Becbe talked without reserve:

"My decision to resign from the posi-tion of grand marshal was primarily brought about by criticism. I discovered yesterday morning that some were not satisfied with my serving in that ca-pacity and I at once drew up my resignation and submitted it to the Mayor. There is absolutely not the slightest feeling between General Summers and my-self in this regard, and I had hardly finished my breakfast yesterday morning before he called me up by telephone and assured me that he had no knowledge of the movement to cause his selection in my stead. General Summers is one of my warmest friends and I believe he would be an excellent grand marshal and one of whom the City of Portland might feel justly proud." General Beebe does not mean his resignation as grand marshal of the parade to sever his connection with the Presidential pregram. "I will aid in every way I can," he said, "and do all in my power to help the thing along. It is not feel-ing against the committee, against the people nor against the celebration that prompted my resignation-simply that I cannot serve where all are not satisfied with my incumbency." General Beebe urges also that matters of private business would interfere with his attention to details of the parade business trip must be made by him into Eastern Oregon between the present time and May 21, and he says the man who is to set as grand marshal should some one who could give the matter his undivided attention

Mayor Williams Is Decided. To a reporter for The Journal, Mayor

White I certainly must submit to the committee the resignation of General Beebe, I shall counsel against its acceptance. He is the man best acquainted with the work to be done and the people are looking to him. I believe him to be the right man for the place. In making this statement I wish it distinctly under-stood that I have the highest regard for General Summers and his abilities. He General Summers and his abilities. He could fill the position of grand murshal as well as any man in the State of Oregon, but I do not believe a change ought to be made at this late date."

And so the question of who is to be grand marshal of the Portland demonstration in honor of President Roose-veit is still a matter for conjecture.

General Beebs has declined it, General Summers will not have it and the committee in charge does not want anybody else.

sise. But it is believed General Reche can be prevailed upon to not.

UNION MARKET IS AUTHORIZED

Council Passes Franchise at Special Meeting to Permit Work.

At a special meeting of the City Council held yesterday afternoon the franchise granting the Union Market Company for 25 years the right to construct and operate a market building on the site of the Mechanics' Paydion, was ap-

But few changes were made in the franchise as offered by the City Attorney. One alteration was the introduction of a clause that allows a board of arbitra-tion to regulate the fees charged market men by the company. Another amend-ment was to the effect that the company should build and maintain a cement walk around the block of Market Square.

The ordinance will be printed in the official newspaper of the city and will then come up for final passage, but as the Council agreed to allow work to begin on the old pavilion at once it is prac-tically certain that there will be no opposition to the final passage of the franchise.

Mr. Sharkey offered a resolution instructing the Executive Board to delay the purchase of the fireboat Hamill until further light could be had on the subject.

Corpse Seen in Floating

Belteved to Be Remains of Missing Schooner General Siglin.

SEATTLE, May 9 .- A corpse clad in oilskins floating amid the wreckage of a yessel that appeared to be a schooner, was passed in latitude 46 north, about 150 miles southwest of Cape Flattery, on March 31, by the British ship Glenalven, which arrived here last night from Liverpool via Victoria and Vancouver, 113 days out. In the opinion of local marine men the deal sailor and the wreckage were of the in fated Scattle schooner Gen. Siglin, which left the mouth of the Kuskokwim River for Seattle last October.

(Journal Special Service.)

The Siglin has not been reported since she was seen, October 12, in Bering Sea, by the revenue cutter Manning. She was then headed for Scattle and for months has been given up as lost.

The wreckage was seen during a heavy gale from the northwest and for that reason the Glenalven could not stop to identify it. It floated southward past the port side of the vessel and all that could be gleaned from a short glimpse of it was that the rails were painted white and the saflor was clad in oilskins that appeared to be of American manufacture
