

CLIP YOUR HAIR
HATS CHIEF HUNT

Issues General Order on President's Visit.

And Don't Cant Your Helmet to
or Backward.

In getting his men into condition for the occasion of President Roosevelt's visit, May 1, Chief of Police Hunt is having a strenuous time. This morning he issued a general order which contained, among other things, the following striking paragraphs:

"It is the desire of the Chief of Police to have the Police Department present a fine appearance in carriage and equipment; neatness in dress must be marked; shoes polished, helmets sitting squarely on the head—not canted to one side, tipped back or pitched forward, as some of the men have worn them. Some of the men have long hair. The officers should have their hair cut in ordinary length, not according to any prescribed style, but it does not look well for an officer with half clipped close to the head and another at extreme length. Each man should have his hair trimmed before that date, if it is needed."

Chief Hunt read the general order to the squads as they came on duty, after which he went into details about the matter, explaining as clearly as possible the duty of each policeman.

Chief Hunt explains. Regarding the order relative to capillary adornment, the Chief made the following statement: "I have come to realize that if a body of men are to appear in uniform, they must be closely instructed. Now that order about their hair sounds funny, no doubt. Well, it is simply this way: Most every boy has had some accident during his younger days, and there are scars on his head. When the hair is closely cropped, these show, making an unsightly spectacle. Others standing near by have long, foot-long hair, and the effect is not good. It is to have the men present a uniform appearance that I issued the hair order."

"How about the helmets?" was asked. "Well, the helmet order strikes you funny, too, does it? Why, there are men in the department who wear the helmet cocked on either the right or left side, or on the back or front of the head. You get a body of men in line, all wearing the helmets different ways, and what kind of an appearance will they present? Why, something awful, as far as military style and bearing goes."

Capt. Moore, who will have general charge of police, will begin drilling the patrolmen in a few days. It will be necessary for every patrolman to go through the drills daily.

COLUMBIA BEGINS
ANNUAL RAISE

No Danger of a Flood Contemplated
This Year.

The annual rise of the Columbia is surely in progress. The snow in the mountains is very heavy at the present time and has begun to melt, although to no alarming extent as yet. If it continues to thaw in a gradual way there will be no cause for alarm. The Columbia yesterday was 10.5 feet above low water mark, and is rising slowly. The climate will come within the next three weeks. If there continues three or four days of warm weather such as yesterday and today, the snow will melt very rapidly and may cause some trouble. On May 11, 1908, the river was 14.5 feet above low water mark and the total rise that season was 17.5, probably the lowest on record. That was a year of gradual thawing, and although the snow in the mountains that year was just as plentiful as this, the weather conditions were such as to cause a steady and gradual melt.

In the year 1894, which will be remembered because of the flood, and when all transportation was carried on by boat, and when the streets of Portland were overflowing, the condition of the river on May 11 was the same as it is at the present time.

A long period of hot weather that year caused the snow to melt so rapidly that the Columbia's banks were not able to hold the water from its tributaries, and overflowing caused great damage to farming lands and also to property of Portland.

East Side Improvement
Association Meets.

An Effort Will Be Made to Have
City and Suburban Accept a New Franchise.

The general opinion among the assembled members of the East Side Improvement Association last night was that the City & Suburban Railway Company should surrender its present franchise over the Morrison street bridge and accept a new one providing for a large rental over the proposed new bridge.

The meeting of the association had been called for the express purpose of getting definite opinions from the residents of the bridge district. Many speeches were made by prominent residents.

W. B. Chase, ex-city engineer, and at present connected with the Oregon Water Power & Railway Company, was of the opinion that the bridge would have to be rebuilt in a few years, and if the coming special election did not result in a favorable vote, the matter would have to be taken up at the next meeting of the Legislature.

C. S. Cobb, a member of the Legislature and father of the bill providing for the $400,000 issue of bonds, delivered a short address in which he told the people of the East Side the necessity of hard work if they expected to carry the bill to a successful termination.

Mr. Cobb thought the central portion of the city needed a wider and stronger bridge to connect the two sides of the river. "The team traffic," said Mr. Cobb, "is becoming heavier each day and it has already reached such large proportions that the building of a new structure is a necessity. The public safety demands that the proposed new bridge be constructed at once."

Secretary Mitchell, of the Clark wood testimonial committee, received a letter from the author yesterday, in which the writer took pains to express his regret that private business matters kept him from coming to Portland. He closes his letter by saying: "When the sword and the Governor's letter come, I will make the best acknowledgment I can. I know it won't be satisfactory to me, so I am not very verbal about the impression it will have."

There's joy in a peace on comfort in a travel on the boat. (Course, there's not excitement in a ride on a railroad.) Yes, there's heaps of relaxation up an' down the stream to glide, on the prairie craft Leona, with yer sweetheart by yer side, or a band o' rompin' children shoutin' like Keweenaw braves, with their cheerful voices boundin' out along Willamit's waves. Say, it makes 'er o' folks young again an' young ones dance with glee—it's a sister voyage to one across 'er bilin', boundin' sea. PORTLAND AHEAD OF ST. LOUIS

Jeweler John A. Beck has returned from St. Louis, where he was called to the bedside of his sick son, John Beck, Jr. The latter, a writer on the St. Louis Republican, was taken down with typhoid fever several weeks ago, and for a time his life was despaired of. With his wife he came home with his father, and no one need hereafter try to pull him away from Portland. Mr. Beck, Sr., was present at the great Fair dedication, and says he does not see how the show can be made ready for the opening next year. He says that so far as streets are concerned, Portland is away ahead of St. Louis, miserable as our roadways are, and that the drinking water of the Missouri metropolis is simply abominable. No more South for either of the Messrs. Beck. Portland looks better to them now than it ever did before.

ALL THE SIWASH
GREAT NORTHERN STRIKE STATUS

Walk-Out May Be Ordered Today.

Company Will Not Yield to What
It Considers a Matter of Policy.

Englishmen are credited with being able to see a joke several days after they have heard it. The man from the Emerald Isle is supposed to be able to distinguish the laughing point at one and be ready with a reply, but who ever heard of a humorous siwash?

A group of men in the lobby of the Imperial were discussing the Jack Spear walk-out Indian case that was in the Federal Court yesterday, and the conversation regarding redskins became general.

Several amusing stories had been related when one of the older men present spoke up:

"Did you ever hear of an Indian being a practical joker?" Taking the silence for his cue the speaker continued:

"Back in the early '80s I lived in the little town of Weston, in Umatilla County. My earthly belongings consisted of my wife and baby, a kit of carpenter tools and a team of horses and a wagon."

"One day one of my horses wandered away and I put in an anxious, busy week trying to find him. Mounted on my solitary remaining animal I searched all the surrounding country and one afternoon found myself on the Umatilla Reservation in the neighborhood of the present site of Adams. I had examined about a thousand different horses, but could find no trace of my missing equine. I was ready to give up the hunt when I met a big strapping buck."

"The Indian was mounted on a mettlesome horse, not an ordinary grade, and his blanket was blue and gorgeous. I had not been in the West many months and my knowledge of Chinook was limited. I signalled with my hand for him to halt."

"Dismounting I drew in the sand the outline of a horse and on its hip the shape of the brand. Then I tapped myself on the chest and made a sweeping gesture that took in the horizon. I looked up at the Indian, but he retained my look with a motionless stare."

"Cumtux? I asked.
"Nawitika."
"I've lost my horse," said I in desperation. "Do you know that?"
"Why in thunder didn't you say so?" came from the lips of the Siwash, in almost perfect English. "I haven't seen any strange animals around, but as I own all these in sight I'll have my herd-ers look out for your horse and have him returned."

"I stammered my thanks and told the man where I lived and as he rode away I thought I saw in his eyes a gleam of comprehension just the faint sign of an approaching smile."

THEATRICAL OFFERINGS

THEATRE TONIGHT.
Marquam—McEwen, hypnotist.
Baker—"The Master at Arms," Ralph Stuart.
Cordray's—Continuous vaudeville.

"The Master at Arms."
Ralph Stuart is drawing big houses at the Marquam. This is the third week of a high order. This is the third week of Mr. Stuart and his company in Portland, and the present production is drawing more popularity than last week's bill or the one of the week before. There will be a regular matinee Saturday.

Continuous Vaudeville.
Continuous vaudeville is entertaining hundreds of persons both afternoon and evening at Cordray's. Mr. Shields has arranged a bill for this week that meets with great favor. The Martelles in their clever bicycle riding are star features. There is a special about the program that keeps the audience in constant good humor. In other words there are no dragging moments at Mr. Shields' vaudeville entertainments. Matinees are given every afternoon.

Up-to-Date Novelty.
The newest, brightest and most up-to-date theatrical novelty of the present season is "Zig Zag Alley" from the pen of James Gorman, which comes to the Marquam Grand Theatre next Monday Tuesday nights, May 18 and 19. The company is large and comprises many expert farceurs, who are headed by the famous comedy team, Zeb & Zarrov. The staging of the piece promises a lavish outlay of money and considerable artistic effort. It was conducted under the personal supervision of the author, which is a guarantee of its excellent. "Zig Zag Alley" was written solely to amuse and all who have seen it concede that the piece is altogether the funniest musical melange that this section of the country has known for years. Although comedy is the driving principle of the piece, its great drawing power may be attributed in some degree to the beautiful and shapely chorus which is a conspicuous part of the entertainment. The advance matinee will open next Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

Monte Cristo.
One of the most intensely interesting and most successful plays ever produced in this city is "Monte Cristo." Theatre next week, the fourth of Ralph Stuart's season.

The popular young actor excelling in the portrayal of romantic and picturesque characters, has made the role of Edmond Dantes afterwards the Count of Monte Cristo, the subject of thorough study and careful preparation, with the result that it is one of his most pronounced successes. While the part is a tremendous one, placing in requisition the utmost resources of any actor who essays it, Mr. Stuart meets its requirements fully and in a most pleasing manner.

Edmond Dantes, young, vigorous, happy, full of love for his beautiful betrothed, Mercedes, just returned from a successful voyage, is the very em-
