

OLD MAN ROBBED BY HIS CHILDREN

Fierce Fight in Which Blood Was Shed.

Son and Daughter-in-Law Attack Father With Knives and Pistols.

(Journal Special Service.) SEATTLE, May 21.—A battle with knives and pistols in a Gypsy camp, and the robbery of one of the old men of the tribe of $400 and general disruption in the ranks of Gypsies, were features of an early morning incident at Van Asselt, a suburb of this city today. Louis Mitchell, an aged Gypsy, lost the money after a desperate battle with Tom Mitchell, his son, and Mary Mitchell, his daughter-in-law. He says the two took $900 from him, but in the mix-up he recovered $200. Warrants are out for the arrest of the alleged thieves. All of the participants were more or less injured but none seriously.

FOUND WITH THEIR THROATS BOTH CUT

Kansas Tragedy Thought to Be a Case of Suicide and Murder.

(Journal Special Service.) KANSAS CITY, May 21.—At Independence this morning Fred Letty and his wife were found dead together in their home with their throats cut and their three little children asleep in an adjoining room. Conscious of the tragedy that had been enacted sometime during the night.

From indications surrounding the case the police state that either Letty or his wife killed the other and then committed suicide.

There was no note left to show which one did the act and there is very little to explain why the deed should have been committed.

PORTER BROTHERS NOT BADLY OFF

Their Assets More Than Double the Liabilities as Reported.

(Journal Special Service.) CHICAGO, May 21.—Indications are that Porter Bros., the big fruit firm whose failure was announced last night, will be able to reorganize at an early date. An officer of the company said today that the liabilities are between $200,000 and $1,000,000 and the assets will reach nearly $2,000,000. Business will be conducted as usual, but only through receivers.

DOG FIGHT AT A SWELL RECEPTION

Maltese Cat Gets Into the Melee.

Two fox terriers and a maltese cat were the principal actors in an exciting scene which took place during a recent afternoon reception at the house of a prominent Washington official. It was 5 o'clock and the light shed by lamps and candles was artistic to the point of dimness, when there sauntered in, with the nonchalance peculiar to the aristocratic canine, a fox terrier of the wisest variety. He made friends right and left, the guests supposing him to be the property of their hostess and she in turn questioning in her mind who had the bad taste to bring a dog to an afternoon tea. It happened, too, that being a lover of cats, she hated dogs.

She Was Nervous.
"Ah," the lady remarked with evident effort, to one and another of her guests, "it is your little dog?" and every one could see she was nervous. But no one claimed the dog, and at that moment a second fox terrier rushed in, carrying the light of battle in his eye and barking madly. He was in pursuit of dog No. 1. It did not take long to find him, and then there began such a chase, and such an ear-splitting din, and such a frantic race over trailing gowns and patent leathers as to demoralize utterly the hostess and the guests of that afternoon tea. To add to the excitement, a pet maltese cat sprang from a Turkish corner and joined in the stampede.

Those Awful Dogs.
"Who brought these awful dogs into my house?" shrieked the hostess, dodging this way and that to rescue her cat, but no one answered the question and the exciting chase went on, over chairs and sofas, until the butler managed to head off the trio and eject them into the street. By that time more punch had been spilled over immaculate shirt fronts and more scalding tea upset into the laps of innocent matrons, and more foreign invective uttered by the numerous company attendants present than the hostess cares to recall.

It was learned later that the dogs belonged to the two families on either side of the official's home, and that there existed between them a feud of long standing. The terriers had escaped bondage at the hour stated, and selected the scene of the afternoon tea to settle old scores. There is a coolness at present between three big houses that stand in a row.

Old Trick All Night.
It may be an old trick, but I never heard of it until Dr. F. L. Van Note, the Flatbush dentist, told me about it yesterday. His office cat was ailing and he was going to administer a dose of medicine to her.
"How do you do it?" I asked. "A cat is so plaguesy obstinate."
"Yes, but it is very easy to make her take medicine," said he. "Just put it into something sticky and rub in on her paw. She will lick every particle of it off."
There's ingeniously worthy of Conan Doyle.—Brooklyn-Eagle.

AN APPROPRIATE TEXT.
When the Rev. Dr. John Phelps Taylor, an ex-professor in Andover Theological Seminary, was pastor of a Congregational church in a New England city he was noted as being perfectly courteous and exceedingly considerate of the feelings of others. So how he came to make the faux pas record in this story of him is past understanding.

A soprano singer, who aspired to a position in the church choir, had received permission one evening to sing a solo. The organist was not pleased with the arrangement and he played the accompaniment to the somewhat long selection as loudly and noisily as possible. When the solo came to an end it was followed almost without pause by the passage of scripture which Dr. Taylor had selected for that evening and which began: "And when the uproar had ceased."

Effect of Grase.
This breakfast food and most-coffee craze has got to stop. A man out in Atchison, Kan., has a wife who is a victim of the sawdust habit and feeds him on all sorts of queer things. He wandered home from the lodge one night and found a box of something on the dining room table and proceeded to eat it. It was a bit hard, but he thought it was some new breakfast food and finished it. The next morning he investigated the matter, as he felt a bit strange, and found he had eaten a box of bird seed—Springfield Republican.

AULD NICK'S SISTER.
A farmer's wife in Perthshire, who was much troubled by her husband's drunken habits, arranged with her brother to play the "ghost" upon her husband one dark night. When on the way home from the inn the farmer saw an apparition suddenly rise behind some bushes. "Who are ye?" cried the farmer. "I'm Auld Nick," was the reply. "Gie's a shauk o' yer hand, then!" exclaimed the tipsy man. "I'm married to a sister o' yours. She'll be waiting for's up bye at the fair, an' I'll nae doot mak' ye welcome.—Scottish American.

ATTACK BY CIRCUS MEN.
Nebraska Students Denounce the Assault Made on Them While Celebrating.
(Journal Special Service.) LINCOLN, Neb., May 21.—A carnival of Eagles was held here last night and in conjunction the students of the University of Nebraska held their annual "shirt tail" parade. They were set upon by an armed band of circus hands who had been sworn in as special policemen and a number of the students severely injured.

passed resolutions denouncing the attack and the authorities for having employed the circus men.
MITCHELL CALLS PRESIDENT.
NEW YORK, May 21.—John Mitchell announced today that he had summoned the presidents from the anthracite fields to come here and confer with him regarding the work as members of the Conciliation Committee, which meets next week, which will clear up disputed points in the award by the Anthracite Commission. Mitchell says the reports of suffering among the West Virginia strikers is untrue, as the Mine Workers' Union is not on strike.

Cloaks and Suits

We are in condition, on account of our vast selling, to offer continually new ideas in Cloaks and Suits to the public. New and original ideas can always be found here. Some stunning styles in voile and etamine suits came in lately. A group of Tailor-Made Gowns, of which we can tell but very little, so great and varied is the collection. All cloths are shown in many new weaves and color effects. Many of the styles are entirely new, showing happy improvements on those of less recent production. A certain elaborateness of trimming is noticeable and perfection of workmanship, and exactness of fit is evident.

This Store's Broad Policy

Is based on the theory that it pays to be honest—exactly honest—with every customer. If a skirt or a pair of trousers, or a coat is part cotton, we believe it pays to say so. If some other store is selling part wool goods for all wool, or a piece of furniture that is made of soft wood, for hard wood, we may lose a sale, but we have kept our reputation and will probably get the customer back in time. Our instructions to our clerks are never to misrepresent an article to make a sale. Of course, we may at times be mistaken. If we are, we want to have a chance to make it right. We want your confidence. We aim to serve the public to the best of our ability. We are doing the best we know how today. We hope to do better tomorrow. You are welcome to open an account with us for anything. You purchase, and you'll find that, owing to our vast output, our prices equal any other store in this town.
