

HANDSOME DECORATIONS ADMIRER

PARADE FORMED EARLY

Thousands Anxiously Awaited the Big Procession.

The main platform, held a chorus of 200 voices. The entire stand was covered with evergreens, in keeping with the rugged surroundings. Evergreens draped the rail with now and then a bunch of purple lilacs to lend a dash of brightness.

By a Cordon of Soldiers.
Ropes enclosed a space 10 feet from the platform and this space was kept clear by a cordon of soldiers, who also held open the walk leading from Park avenue to the steps reaching the stand. Police officers at the foot of the steps admitted guests to the platform by ticket only until the arrival of the carriage. Guests alighting from the carriages were not required to present tickets. As soon as the guests shall have alighted the carriages will be driven ahead and at the conclusion of the ceremony returned to their former position.

"Hail to the Chief."
The band played "Hail to the Chief" as the President approached the stand and the selected guests were finding their respective chairs.

Mr. Roosevelt is to occupy a seat facing the east and at a point commanding an excellent view of the city. On his right will be President F. G. Young, of the Oregon Historical Society, and on his left Harvey W. Scott. Immediately back of and grouped about the President are to be the members of his party, members of the Oregon Historical Society, the Mayor and other prominent guests, including the architect, the engineer and the mason who are constructing the monument.

Mr. Scott will present the Chief Executive on a silver platter decorated with the American flag the trowel used in the laying of the stone.

Laying the Cornerstone.

At the conclusion of Mr. Roosevelt's remarks, Mr. Young will deposit a copper box in the monument. The box contains the history of Oregon, history of the route, adventures and achievements of Lewis and Clark, copies of today's Journal, Telegram and Oregonian and coins.
Two men, acting under the direction of Engineer Huber, will, by means of the derrick lower the huge stone to within two feet of its concrete bed.
After the engineer and architect have leveled and squared the stone the Hallelujah Chorus will sing with orchestra accompaniment. Archbishop Christie pronouncing the benediction and the exercises concluding with the singing of "America" by all present.

POLICE ALERT TO PROTECT PRESIDENT

From the moment President Roosevelt became the guest of the city, Chief of Police Hunt's bluecoats, plain clothes men and bureau detectives have been ever at his side aiding in every possible manner the Secret Service agents accompanying the Nation's Chief Executive.

Not the slightest intimation of lurking danger has been received by the police, yet every precaution was taken by the Chief to insure absolute safety to the distinguished guest. Details were so arranged that under any emergency, the President would have been surrounded instantly scores of officers in uniform and plain clothes.
The commanding officer of each squad of police had instructions covering every imaginable sudden accident, and Chief Hunt, as commander-in-chief, was in a position to concentrate the squads, or deploy them, as the occasion might require.

Detectives From Abroad.

In addition to the 42 special detectives sworn in for the occasion, and the bureau detectives, Chief Hunt secured the services of expert detectives from every city of importance on the Pacific Coast, and as far East as Montana. This was to insure, as far as possible, absolute safety from anarchistic cranks, as well as to protect the city at large from the depredations of the gang of criminals traveling ahead of the Presidential train.

The detectives from abroad comprise ten in the employ of the Pinkerton's, chiefs, special agencies, railroad and city bureaus. They know every nook and cranny in the United States, and have wide experience in running down the peculiar individuals who would, if not interfered with, harass the President, and perhaps endanger his life. These men have been in the city for several days, and have been watching, assisted by the local detectives and patrolmen, every train and steamer arriving. As the crowds of passengers have been closely scrutinized, and Chief Hunt is informed that no dangerous characters now infest the city.

Brand New Uniforms.

Chief Hunt, attired in a handsome new uniform, was most conspicuous of all the Portland police, and Captain John Moore was a close second. Every Patrolman was attired in brand new summer uniforms, worn upon this occasion for the first time.

Accompanying the President on the 15th of March were 14 mounted policemen, in command of Patrolman L. G. Carpenter, and six picked men acted as flankers. An even dozen patrolmen marched on either side of the carriage bearing the President.

ing of the cornerstone of the Lewis and Clark memorial monument, a large detail of patrolmen were present to preserve order, and to assist in any manner required by the committee.
At the Hotel Portland from the time of the arrival of President Roosevelt, a large detail of patrolmen and some 50 plain clothes men will be on duty.

DECORATIONS ARE FLAGS AND BUNTING

Today the Hotel Portland, headquarters for President Roosevelt during his stay in this city, is a mass of color and tonight it will be a blaze of light.

Across Sixth street from the big hotel the Postoffice Building is draped with flags and bunting and pictures of the President are in every window.
Flags of all nations hang from a grid of ropes and wires above the arch of the hotel, but American flags are everywhere. From every cornice, nook and window a staff projects and from that staff is hung a flag. Palms, ferns and potted plants and flowers are in profusion throughout the hotel court and in the central circle thousands of sweet-faced panicles show like a velvet carpet of varied hues.

Tonight there will be displayed a flag made from red, white and blue electric lights, the work of the electricians in designing and constructing this beautiful device being the finest ever seen in Portland. Strings of incandescents extend from the gables of the hotel to posts and arches, and when evening comes these will drive darkness back with a glow that will reflect against the heavens and be seen for miles.

Private Decorations.

Business houses, residences and public buildings all over the city are decorated with flags and bunting. On the buildings occupied by the various foreign consuls the flags of their countries were displayed, but on the streets and in the procession there was no contrast—red, white and blue were everywhere. Each pedestrian carried a flag and wore a button or a badge bearing a picture of the President.

One Flag Among Thousands.

From among the hundreds of thousands of flags on display in Portland today one may be singled out as deserving of special mention. Suspended over Sixth street in front of the Hotel Portland is a mammoth but somewhat frayed and soiled specimen of "Old Glory." This flag was the first American color hoisted inside the walls of Manila when that city was surrendered by the Spaniards on August 13, 1898. It was originally designed as a battle flag on the cruiser Olympia and was sent ashore by Admiral Dewey to hoist over the Spanish works. On the occasion of its first being hoisted the Second Oregon Band saluted it with "The Star Spangled Banner." General Sumner was presented with the flag and brought it back to Oregon.

EVER HAVE IT?

IF YOU HAVE, THE STATEMENT OF THIS PORTLAND MAN WILL INTEREST YOU.

Ever have a "low-down" pain in the back?
In the "small" right over the hip?
That's the home of backache.
It's caused by sick kidneys.
That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Portland people endorse this—read a case of it:
J. Jenkins of 315 East Sixth street, now retired from active life, says: "I think very highly of Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured at the Laue-Davis Drug Co.'s store, corner Yamhill and Third streets. I used them for an acute attack of backache, which had annoyed me for some little time. Three days after I began their use, I knew they had gone to the cause of the ailment, dragging pains across the small of my back, and relief came sooner than I expected. I believe the cure is permanent, for I have not felt any symptoms of a recurrence. Other members of my family have also used Doan's Kidney Pills with equally good results."

SHORT HISTORY OF THE 1905 FAIR

The beautiful Lewis and Clark Monument, the corner stone of which was laid this afternoon by President Roosevelt, will stand not only as a memorial to the two great explorers, but also as a tribute to the energy and public spiritedness of the late I. W. Corbett. At a meeting of the Lewis and Clark Fair directors held on August 15, 1902, Mr. Corbett, then president of the Fair Association, offered the following resolution:

"Resolved, That we erect a monument in the City Park to the memory of Lewis and Clark, the early explorers of the Oregon country, on which shall be four tablets representing Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana, by their respective coat-of-arms, or symbolic inscriptions on the respective tablets. The granite from which it is erected to be from near the route pursued by the explorers. The monument to be unveiled in the Centennial Year, 1905. Be it further

"Resolved, That the corner stone be prepared and laid as early as practicable, and the President of the United States be invited to be present and participate in the laying of the same. Be it further

"Resolved, That the Governors of the States of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana be invited to be present and participate in the ceremony."

The resolution met with hearty favor from every member of the Board of Directors, and $15,000 was appropriated for the purpose of erecting the monument. It was decided to raise the memorial in the park at a spot overlooking the great city, where those visiting the monument might have a grand view of the picturesque river as it winds its silvery way to the sea.

The graceful column that will ever recall the joys and the sufferings of the men who plowed through the unknown Western wilderness nearly a century ago is to be made of granite from Governor Powell C. Moore's quarry near Granite Point, Washington. This quarry is located on the banks of the Snake River, near a spot where the great exploring party is said to have camped and exchanged friendly greetings with the Indians. The shaft will be 40 feet high, and eventually the top of the column may be surmounted with a heroic figure of a pathfinder, or a symbol of liberty.

The trowel with which the President spread the mortar that will hold the monument's corner stone in place was made by A. & C. Feldenheimer of this city. It is of solid silver with an ivory handle. The face of the instrument bears the inscription:

"This trowel was used in laying the corner stone of the Lewis and Clark Monument in the City Park of Portland, Oregon, by Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, May 21, 1903."

The trowel will be retained by the directors of the Fair and is to be kept among the relics of the Exposition.

WE CURE MEN!

F. L. TALCOTT, M. D.
CONTRACTED DISORDERS.
Every contracted disease is attended by grave dangers that nothing less than a thorough and absolute cure can remove. To take even the slightest chance in such cases is to invite lifelong misery. Men do not realize the possibility of relief if removed by a chronic stage, with all its horrors, the same as though the disease had not been treated at all. We positively will not dismiss a patient until every possibility of relief is removed. By our system of treatment every patient is soundly cured, and made as free from disease taint as he was before the ailment was contracted.
