Greenbacks Removed From an Inside Vest Pocket by a Thief.

Rich Haul Made on Third Street Car During the Parade.

I. K. Anderson was "frisked" to the tune of $520 yesterday afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock by one of the cleverest pickpockets on the road. The money, all in greenbacks, was removed from an vest pocket, being bound in a Detectives state that there are but very few "dips" sufficiently adept at the business to turn as clever a trick as the one in which Anderson was separated from his small fortune yesterday. The man who made the haul was not even noticed by the victim at the time, and he does not positively know where the robbery occurred. He thinks, however, that it was accomplished when he was on a Third street car, just at the intersection of Morrison.

Anderson is a resident of McMinnville, d came to Portland yesterday for the viewing the Presidential parade, and incidentally enjoying him-self on a short vacation. When he left pinned his wealth inside a leather wallet, after which he tucked it saugly away in an inside vest pocket. He had heard of pickpockets, but never for one moment did he think there were any with ability to remove coin or currency from such a place as he had chosen to hide his.

Work "Bush Act." There were many passengers on the car on which Anderson was riding yesterday afternoon, and as it neared Morrison street on Third, several arose to Among them was Anderson, who was tightly squeezed while endeavoring to extricate himself from the tangled mass of humanity. This is the time he thinks a man who brushed up close to alm ,must have stolen the money. Anderson now recalls the fact that the man, whose description he did not obtain, seemed in a very great hurry, and squeezed tighter than any of the other passengers, as though he would be first to alight from the car. He did not make any headway, however, and seemed wedged in close to Anderson. The latter, once off the car, made a purchase, and when he went to get his bills from the wallet, discovered his loss. Remembering the actions of the man in the car, Anderson quickly realized that he had been robbed, and probably by the individual who pressed him so closely. He rushed to police headquarters where he poured out his tale of woe to letectives Simmons. This is the largest haul made by the pickpockets who infested the city yesterday, so far as reported to the police. Every city along the line of the Presitour has been notified to'l sharp lookout for these expert crooks, and it is hoped by the police that some will have the good fortune to cap-

Levi L. Stillwell Says He Supported Family.

Husband and Wife Are Fighting for Possession of Children and Tillamook Property.

Property in Stillwell's addition to the two of Tillamook is causing to be tried in the Circuit Court today the case of Mary Jane Stillwell against her husband, Levi L. Stillwell, for the possession of the property. Incidentally Mrs. Stillwell charges her spouse with being an habitual drunkard and a poor pro-vider. She desires the court to dissolve the existing bonds of marrimony and to grant her the custody of two minor children. Stillwell admits that he has been a little too fond of intoxicants, but declares this fact has not kept him from alding in the support of his family. He declares he is a fit and proper person to care for his children.

As to the Tllamook property the wife declares it is in her name and was purchased with the proceeds of her own individual toil, Stillwell says he bought the property and that it was deeded to the wife to be held in trust for the family. He denies that she has had to la-bor any more than families placed iff. similar walks of life.

Counsel for the plaintiff objected to the admission of evidence by deposition and the objection was sustained by Judge Sears. Mrs. Stillwell, accom-panied by her five daughters, occupies one end of a long bench in the court room and the defendant sits across the room. Between the husband and wife there passes no sign of recognition and those in the room not cognizant with the facts, would take them for total strangers

They Refused to Work. Lora S. Smale and Mary Armsden were granted divorces in Judge George's court this morning because they detheir husbands were worthless and refused to support them. Mrs. Smale said her spouse, Webster B., absolutely refused to work after they were married and that for five long years she was obliged to earn a living for both of them by retouching photographs. Finally the husband deserted that Mr. McDevitt was still in this city her. Mrs. Armsden supported her husband until he left her seven years ago. "My husband said," declared Mrs. Arms-

Shortage in McDevitt's Accounts to Be Discussed.

Accused Man Here and Will Be Present.

When Portland Aerie, Independent Order of Eagles, meets in regular ses-sion this evening in its hall at Second and Yamhill streets it is claimed there come up for discussion the subject of a shortage in accounts aggregating more than $1,000 and charged Secretary Thomas B. Mcagainst Devitt, Jr. A prominent Eagle today gave to The Journal information that misappropriation of funds extending over a period of time greater than a year had been traced to McDevitt, but that steps toward criminal prosecution were hardly likely to be taken.

At the meeting this evening the alleged shortage will be taken up and a report of the exact amount to the extent of which the lodge treasury has suffered will be made.

Thomas B. McDevitt, Jr., is at pres ent in Portland and it is expected will be in attendance at the meeting tonight. The exact result cannot forecasted.

President Watson Reticent. John Watson, who as president of the Portland Aerie had charge of the experting of officers' accounts which, is alleged, resulted in a shortage being discovered, refused this morning to discuss the matter further than to say and would certainly attend the session this evening.

"I will not answer your questions, Mr. Watson said. "I do not know how the story got out. I will make nothden, "that some one had to work and ing public until after the meeting to-night. If there is anything for the public it will come out then."

Treasurer Edward Holman of Portland Lodge Eagles denied that money had ever been given Secretary McDevitt by him.

Money is first paid to the secretary and by him into the treasury," Mr. Hol-man said. "I do not know anything about any shortage having been found except what I saw in The Journal of yesterday. This is the regular time for the lodge officers to have their books experted and mine are being gone over in the same manner as are those of the others.

The Wrong McDevitt.

"There are two Thomas B. Mc-Devitts in Portland. They are father and son. The father is at present attending to legal business in California and will return toward the latter part of the present month. The son is in this city and will be at the meeting of our lodge tonight. It is the son who is secretary of the Eagles' lodge.
- "Personally I know nothing against young McDevitt and I do not know how the story of a shortage in his accounts gained circulation." Another member of the lodge of Eagles said to The Journal that it was confidently expected that the report to be made public tonight would contain statements of a cash shortage well above the $1,000 mark.

From other sources it was learned that Thomas B. McDevitt, Jr., is a hail-fellow-well-met, whose society is highly enjoyed by the members of his He is, however, accused of being "rather wild" and of demonstrating a tendency to be "sporty." His name was mentioned recently in connection with an alleged attempt to swindle several insurance companies out of an aggregate of $2,750.

COMPANY LOSES

Burlington Will Try a New System.

Daily Reports Will Be Made to the Superintendent of Car System at Chicago by Agents.

Howard Elliott, second vice-president of the Burlington system, has just issued a comprehensive circular to the freight agents and others responsible for the care of rolling stock, regarding the registry and care of freight cars. Owing to an imperfect system and a division of the work into several de-partments the road officials have been unable to keep thorough and accurate account of all cars owned by the com-

During the recent car blockade in the East, Western roads found it neces-sary to issue blockade orders to the effect that no car shipments would be made east of Chicago except in cars belonging to the company operating at point of destination.

The result was that many Burling-ton cars were held in various parts of Oregon and Washington and used by other lines.

The circular states that W. L. Barnes will act as superintendent of car ser-vice, with headquarters in Chicago. He will have an assistant in Lincoln and one in St. Louis. Daily reports are to be made by agents over the system and it is believed that the loss to the company will in this way be minimized.

The Burlington has an order placed for 50,000 freight cars, about 45,000 of which have been delivered. This represents an investment of $30,000,000 and the loss or detention of cars means a considerable loss to the company. Will Attend Convention.

That is pretty fair advice for the elder folks, too. I like to see people have a good time. I believe in their having a good time. And the very surest way in life not to have it is to try to make a life business of having it.

The only life worth living in the long run is the life of effort. The life of striving to accomplish something. the man or woman who makes up his or her mind that the thing to do is to endeavor only to have a soft and easy time and to shirk duty, is not only sure to be a poor citizen, but a pretty un-happy one in addition."

"Wherever I have been I have noticed the attention paid to your schools—paid to the education of the young, and that such a course is wise hardly needs mention. The greatest material resources will amount to nothing if you have not the right type of men to take advantage of them. Just exactly as in the Civil War; it made no difference as to the arms or the training you gave a man, if he did not have the right stuff in him, you could not get it out of him. Our men became such matchless soldiers because they had in them the quality out of which heroes are made. So in our citizenship, great though our physical advantages are in the nation as a whole, peculiarly great though they are in this state, they would amount to nothing if you did not have the right kind of men and women to take advantage of them. I believe in your future and am convinced of the future of the republic because I am confident that the average citizen of the republic has the right stuff in him."

Considered the Most Successful Convention Ever Held in Oregon---Next Year at Astoria.

The 48th annual convention of the grand lodge of the I. O. O. F. of Oregon concluded its work and adjourned at noon today, to meet a year hence at Astoria. The place of the next meet-ing was decided yesterday, Astoria being the only bidder for the honor. The closing session this morning was marked by general good fellowship and the belief that much good has resulted from the convention, There was a report of the committee appointed yesterday to which was referred the matter of building an addition to the Odd Fellows' Home. They reported in favor of the plan, and it is robable that the work will be done within two months. Following the final reports came the installation of the new grand officers elected yesterday. This occupied the balance of the time until noon, and after brief ceremonies of parting, according to the ritual of the order, the members filed from the hall. At 1:30 this afternoon delegates to the Grand Lodge, Grand Encampment and Rebekah Assembly, together with a few invited guests and several members of local lodges met at the Odd Fellows Temple at First and Alder streets. Cars were boarded and the party given a ride to the main points of interest in the city, including the Lewis and Clark Fair grounds. About an hour was spent at the I. O. O. F. Home for needy members of the order, where light refreshments were served. The Rebekans adjourned yesterday noon, the assembly having completed the work laid out.

The Imperial Order of Muscovites, the highest degree of Oddfellowship, banquet was given to visiting brothers. There were about 125 present. Most of the delegates will leave for heir homes this evening. About 2,000
