SAN JOSE, July 22.—The body of Major Samuel W. Boring, the well-known pioneer who mysteriously disappeared last Sunday night, was found in Alum Rock Canyon.

A superficial theory is that Major Boring had wheeled to near the spot where he was found, then walked down from the wagon road and concealed his bicycle on the other side of some bushes from the road, and gone about 30 feet farther to a sort of bank or bench beside the Peninsula Creek, laid down, and placing the muzzle of an English build 44-calibre revolver in his mouth, shot himself. His soft felt hat was lying over his face. His gun was tightly clenched in his hand by his side.

Major Boring was preparing the program for the ceremony in celebration of the first raising of the American flag over San Jose by Captain Thomas Fallon, in 1846. He had taken a prominent part in a similar exercise in San Francisco on Thursday and was full of enthusiasm over the plans for the affair here.

It has been said that he was rather disheartened over the lack of enthusiasm shown over the matter by the citizens generally, and over his failure to get a flagstaff and a band or a military salute. He was of an exceedingly proud, sensitive nature, and these disappointments may have preyed upon his mind, though when last seen alive, Sunday evening, he seemed in good spirits.

The ceremony went on as well as possible without him, and his comrades and friends at once set about searching for him, assisted by the city police and detective forces and the Sheriff and his men. Every possible clue was followed up, but for five days in vain. Suspicious circumstances were the fact that he had changed his room, and he was wearing on Sunday afternoon, and though he had taken his bicycle had left his watch and $10 in gold in his pocket.

Was He Murdered?

Nevertheless the fact of his hat being pulled down over his face, and not shaken off by involuntary movements of his head, and also his having the revolver in his hand together with the known fact of his having some bitter political and religious enemies, who possibly would not care to see him receive additional honor through the flag-raising ceremony, would point to the suspicion that he had been decoyed to that neighborhood and shot. An old revolver was found in his room, and it is not known that he had another. Nor had he money to purchase one, for he had not much money at all, and had been unable to give his daughter 25 cents on Sunday afternoon, as he said he had nothing less than $15.

He was found by Mr. Sanford of Centerville, Alameda County, while seeking twisted branches for a rustic table for his camp in the canyon and was identified by C. H. Geldert. He leaves a wife and a daughter.

Samuel W. Boring had an eventful career. He was born the 22d of February, 1824, in Washington County, Tennessee. His father was Absalom Boring, and his mother's name was Elizabeth. He spent his earliest years on a farm in Tennessee, attending school in a log cabin. His father moving to Rushville, Schuyler County, Illinois, when he was quite young, he formed in after years a strong friendship for and with such men as Lincoln, Walker, Douglas and Baker. At 15 he was apprenticed to a saddler for five years. In 1844 he attended a high school kept by a traveling teacher.

In the Mormon War.

At 20, while still at school, he was called out as a militiaman to the Mormon War. He saw the bodies of Joseph and Hiram Smith just as they lay after being slain by a mob. Scarcely was the Mormon difficulty settled when the war with Mexico broke out, and young Boring enlisted as a cavalryman, serving all through the campaign under old "Rough and Ready" General Zachary Taylor, and returning to peaceful pursuits only when the United States troops were withdrawn from Mexican soil. During the Mexican War he held the rank of orderly sergeant.

In 1849, with two comrades who had soldiered with him through the war, Mr. Boring crossed the plains to California. They made up a train of 22 wagons, with four yoke of oxen to each wagon and four teamsters to each yoke of oxen. They started on the 28th of March, coming through Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska, and ascending from the Sierras to Hangtown, Cal., on the 20th of September.

In the following July Mr. Boring bade farewell to his faithful companions and set out for the Coyote diggings, or what is now Nevada City. There he remained until the fall of 1852, when he was appointed under sheriff to William H. Endicott, serving under him the extended term of two and one-half years. In the fall of 1855 he was elected to represent Nevada County in the State Legislature. Returning home he was elected Sheriff.

Led an Active Life.

In 1859 he entered into a partnership in the lumber business with A. B. Gregory, continuing in this till 1862. Not long afterwards he became the agent of the Wells-Fargo Express Company at San Jose, and in time, through the good will of its citizens, Mayor and subsequently County Clerk.

Major Boring—for to that rank he attained—led an active life. Up to the last he engaged in business, holding agencies for books and also dealing in real estate. He was an active member of the Mexican Veteran Association, a Mason, and an enthusiastic member of the Sloat Monument Association of California.

Only a day or two before his mysterious disappearance and death, he remarked to one who was complimenting him upon the fact that he bore his almost 80 years so well, being so erect and vigorous. "Yes, I feel as active and strong as I did 40 years ago; to all appearances the machinery is in good running order and well greased."

CHILD NURTURED BY FEMALE WOLF

Wild Animal Stole Little One and Kept It as Her Own.

(Journal Special Service.)

RED LEDGE, Minn., July 22.—From Ewing, 30 miles from here, comes a story so strange and startling that it has attracted much attention, and that steps have been taken to either prove or disprove it, for if it is true a new fact in natural history has been established and the much-maligned wolf will take a higher place in the estimation of the human race.

Several weeks ago, according to reports that have come here, an infant daughter of William Dunphy, a prospector, who lived in the hills overlooking Ewing, with his wife, was carried off one afternoon by a wild animal.

Search was made for the little one, but no trace of it could be found, and but 20 days after it was found dead. Ever since then the father has spent his time in the hills seeking the bears and the wolves, which are numerous in the mountains, and slaughtering them wherever found, while the mother sat and wept and pined away over the fate of her child.

While Dunphy was hunting in the mountain yesterday he came on a wolf den, which showed signs of being occupied. He waited for a long time, and then, as no wolf came forth, he decided to enter the den and see for himself what was in it.

As he entered the place he heard the cry of a child. Advancing, he saw a sight that almost turned his hair white. Lying on a bed of grass at the end of the den was a big mother wolf, with several pups playing beside her, while close to her side was his lost baby, trying to get a dinner from the mother wolf, which seemed to enjoy the tugging.

The wolf simply growled, but made no attempt to escape or to make an attack when the man approached. She was attached to the child, apparently, and had been nursing it. At least that is the supposition, as the little one was well nourished and was without a scratch.

Two men, who have come from Ewing recently, have told the same story. Both men hitherto had excellent reputations.

A CUSTOM OF THE COUNTRY

It is said that Vicar Fillingham, during his visit to New York, exhibited more than ecclesiastical energy alone, and was curious to see all sections of the city. In many of his peregrinations he was accompanied by an old resident who could explain everything of interest. One day they came upon a huge poster adorning a wall upon which was represented life sized pictures of ex-Governor Hill, Admiral Schley, Senator Depew, Mayor Low and District Attorney Jerome, each holding a bottle of some special brand of whiskey in one hand and a glass in the other.

"This is rather interesting to a stranger," said the friend, "for these pictures represent five of our distinguished citizens," mentioning their names.

"How very extraordinary!" said the vicar, "and do all your distinguished men carry a bottle of whiskey?"

"Oh, yes," answered the friend, "Some carry a great deal more."—New York Times.

While Mrs. Russell Sage was in Troy, N. Y., to address the graduates of Emma Willard Seminary, she arranged for a mausoleum in Oakwood Cemetery there. It is to be of granite in the form of a Greek temple, and will cost about $30,000. Mrs. Sage and her venerable husband have had the idea of such a final resting place for some time. She is much opposed to cremation, holding it to be against all biblical teaching.

THEORY OF MARRIAGE

"Well, you see," said the plaintiff, "he just kept comin' around every night at bothin' me so that finally I married him to get rid of him."

The two could not, for various reasons get on well together, so the court granted a legal separation.—Indianapolis Journal.

During her testimony she was asked by Attorney Leach: "Did you not love your husband when you married him?" "No, sir, I didn't," was the emphatic reply of Mrs. De Wire. "Why did you marry him, then?" asked the attorney.
