PROSPERITY CAMP NO. 396 WINS FIRST PRIZE IN THE COMPETITIVE DRILL AT THE MERCHANTS' AND MANUFACTURERS' EXPOSITION.

Parade of Uniformed Members of the Order Precedes the Evening's Exercises—One of the Largest Public Gatherings in Portland and the Largest Crowd of the Fair Thus Far—Today for Children and Confetti.

TODAY'S PROGRAM.

- School Children's Day.
- 2 to 5—Band concert in the pavilion.
- 2:15—Jabour shows.
- Confetti night.
- 7:30—Band concert.
- 8—Ride for life.

The Woodmen of the World did themselves proud last night at the carnival. As was anticipated, Woodmen day was the greatest of the several days which the splendid entertainment given Portland by the Multnomah Club has yet enjoyed. Woodmen, their friends and families literally poured through the gates in droves and the record last evening showed that over 15,000 people had taken part in the mirth-provoking, care-destroying festival. The parade started promptly at 7:45 p. m. from the Woodmen of the World "forest" at Tenth and Washington streets and moved down Washington to Third; to Morrison and from Morrison to the carnival grounds.

It was under the command of Grand Marshal Woodcock who was early on the scene and worked hard for its complete success. Brown's band led the jolly knights of the W. W. immediately behind the band the first regiment of the uniform rank, under command of Col. J. C. Jones and Majors North and Bradley, marched with a step which would have done credit to any military organization in the land. Nearly 300 men comprised the various companies of the uniform rank. These are known and attached to various camps of the order, as follows: Company A, Lieutenant Crabbill, commanding Multnomah camp; Company B, Capt. F. H. Kramer; George Washington camp; Company C, Albina camp, Capt. Fred Paul; Company D, Portland camp, Capt. A. M. Brown; Company E, Prospect camp, Capt. J. B. Barnes; Company F, Prosperity camp, Capt. F. H. Kramer; Company G, Tabor camp, Capt. Roy A. Nicholson; Company H, Sunnyside camp, Capt. E. R. Raymond; Company I, Webfoot camp, Capt. H. J. Hayes; Company J, Montavilla camp, Capt. B. E. Longenecker.

These were followed by a carriage containing Head Banker C. V. Cooper of Portland, George K. Rogers, state deputy, Consul Commander William Reidt and A. D. Cridge, a prominent California Woodman. After these came the general membership of various camps, nearly 2,000 strong. These marched in solid columns of fours in a procession over half a mile long. The carnival "police patrol" brought up the rear and enlivened the scene with red-fire and skyrockets. Many business houses along the line of march also showed their appreciation of the turnout by liberally burning red-fire.

Woodmen Carnival Features.

But three companies of the uniform rank of the Woodmen participated in the drills. They were those of Portland, Prospect and Prosperity camps and were scored by a committee consisting of Maj. John L. May, Capt. Charles E. Smith and Lieut. Arthur J. Johnstone all of the Third regiment, O. N. G. The skill of the various drill teams won the admiration of these judges and made their decisions exceedingly difficult. First prize, however, was awarded to the team of Prosperity camp, second to Prospect camp and third to the team of Portland camp.

Over in the pond into which the shooter of the chute shoots from his bicycle, the Woodmen also gave an exhibition in log-rolling. Not the kind the politicians do, but a genuine log was mounted by skilled craftsmen, who vied with each other in retaining their position, whilst the log under their feet was spun around like a caged squirrel in his wheel. Three times these contestants went down, to the great delight of the crowd, before a decision was reached.

Altogether Woodmen night was a royal success in every particular and many compliments and congratulations passed between the executive officers of the Multnomah carnival committee and those of the Woodmen.

The Journal booth at the Multnomah carnival continues to attract a great many visitors who evince considerable interest in the plates and matrices on exhibition. The booth is attractively decorated with bunting and electric lights and a great many are taking advantage of "The Bargain Day" offer, whereby the Daily, Weekly or Semi-Weekly Journal can be sent to friends or relatives outside of Oregon at half the regular rates.

Looks for Things and Sees Them.

From the New York Tribune. Charles Frohman was discussing the morals of the average play.

"I believe in a clean stage," he said, "and I think the stage, pretty generally, is clean enough. Here and there, to be sure, you can find a spot of black, but you have to look for it. You have to nose for it in the corners and remote recesses."

"Some of a woman found uncleanness anywhere. A woman found uncleanness once in Dr. Johnson's dictionary."

"I am sorry, sir," she said, "to see in your work so many naughty words."

"So madam, you were looking for them, eh? The old lexicographer retorted."

ROSH HASHONA TO BE OBSERVED

ACCORDING TO HEBREW CALENDAR THE WORLD WILL BE FIVE THOUSAND SIX HUNDRED AND SIXTY-FOUR YEARS OLD ON MONDAY—THE EVENT WILL BE OBSERVED.

Services Will Be Held in All Other Synagogues and the Schoffar Will Be Blown—History of the Holiday Explained by Rabbi Mosesohn—It Is the New Year Day of the Jews and Fast-ing Will Be Indulged In.

Next Monday evening is the beginning of the year 5,664, according to the Jewish calendar, and followers of the faith in this city will unite with members of their race throughout the world in observing Rosh Hashona. The name of the holiday means "the beginning of the year." Services will be held in the temple Beth Israel, and by the congregations Ahava Shalom and Nevah Zedeck Talmud Torah, Monday evening and Tuesday morning. The last named congregations will also hold services Tuesday evening and Wednesday morning.

"According to the biblical ordinance, Nisan is the first month of the year," said Rabbi N. Mosesohn this morning. "The keeping of the Rosh Hashona as a holiday is a later innovation by the Tal-muists, who considered it as the day of the creation of the world, therefore it is called New Year. The coming holiday will be the 5,664th year from creation.

The holiday begins Monday evening, and is kept by the orthodox Jews for two days, but the reformed only one day. The characteristic service of these days is the blowing of a trumpet made from a ram's horn. This trumpet is called the 'shofar,' and is blown during the morning services by some member of the congregation who has been appointed for this purpose. Thirty sounds are made from the shofar during the service.

"This blowing of the shofar, which has been done away with in many of the radical reformed temples, is to commemorate the ram that Abraham saw just as he was about to offer as a sacrifice his only son, Isaac, which act he had been commanded to do by God. The prayers of this holiday, containing supplications for the welfare of all humanity during the coming year, support themselves mostly on the righteousness of the patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob."

The services at the temple Beth Israel, Twelfth and Main streets, will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise, who will be assisted by Rev. David Levine of New York City. Rev. Levine is considered one of the ablest orators among the Jews of this country. He is expected to arrive in this city tomorrow. It is said to be his first visit to Portland. Owing to the indisposition of Dr. Wise no special program has as yet been arranged. The musical program is in charge of Mrs. Rosa Bloch-Bauer. Monday evening's services at the temple will begin at 8 o'clock; Tuesday they will commence at 10 a. m.

The services of the congregation Ahava Shalom, Sixth and Oak streets, will be conducted by Rev. R. Abrahamson, begin Monday at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday evening's services will be held at the same hour. Tuesday and Wednesday mornings the services commence at 9 o'clock. The services of the congregation Nevah Zedeck Talmud Torah, Sixth and Hall streets, will be held two days, at 7:30 p. m. and 9 a. m.

KEEPING OUT THE HOBOS AND SUSPECTS

Of late two extra policemen have been on duty at the Union depot in the morning during the arrival of trains from the north and south. They are on the lookout for tramps and suspicious characters and the absence of crime during the carnival is partially attributed to the watchfulness of the station police.

Formerly the police department kept extra men stationed at the East Side depot of the Southern Pacific, but hoboes became aware of this and the unwelcome travelers began riding into the yards before leaving the cars.

"It is an easy matter," said a patrolman, "to find men stealing rides on the passenger trains, but on the freights some brakemen stand in with the tramps and they keep them hid until a safe place is reached."

"I heard today that your son was an undertaker, I thought you told me he was a physician." "Not at all," "I don't like to contradict, but I'm positive you did say so." "You misunderstood me, I said he followed the medical profession."—Philadelphia Press.

TWO FORMER RESIDENTS OF OREGON SENTENCED TO THE PENITENTIARY FOR LONG TERMS FOR CRIME COMMITTED IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA METROPOLIS.

"Bull" White and a Man Named Wilson Beat an Aged Woman Into Insensibility in Order to Rob Her of a few Dollars—Drastic Action of California Court Applauded by Local Blenhas—Severe Sentences Check Crime.

After two trials, two Portland young men, denizens of Goose Hollow, have been sentenced at Los Angeles, Cal., to 24 years each in the penitentiary for highway robbery.

One of the convicted thugs is Thomas White, alias "Bull" White; the other gave his name as Wilson. Detective Day of the local department has received the information from the California city.

"That is an example of how they deal out justice in California," said Detective Day. "These men were convicted of an aggravated crime and the courts speedily handed them their dues. With the courts working hand in hand with the police 'crooks' get what they ought to have and it means that criminals will keep away. I know of cases in this city where the courts have been altogether too lenient with men known to be professional outlaws, and they either escaped with light sentences, 'jumped' their bail or managed to squeeze out of a tight place in some way."

The crime for which White and Wilson were sent to prison was a very bold one. Meeting a middle-aged woman on the street they seized her chatelaine bag and tried to run off. She caught the chain and held on while screaming for help. The brutal thugs, to accomplish their purpose, struck their victim, beating her into insensibility and tried to escape. They were soon arrested and given a quarter of a century in prison after two trials.

"Bull" White's photograph adorns the local rogues' gallery, together with that of his brother, Andrew White, now dead. Both were arrested here in August, 1902, for complicity in the murder of Peter Beauchene, a blacksmith, who was killed in a drunken row in a saloon near Portland Heights a little over a year ago. John Keefe, John O'Keefe and others were also held by Detectives Kerrigan and Snow, who rounded up the gang.

The blacksmith got into a row with the White brothers and their pals. Andrew White threw a piece of board at Beauchene, striking him in the head and killing him. He was arrested August 26, by the marshal at Vancouver, convicted of manslaughter October 9, 1902, and sent to the Salem prison for five years six days later. He died at the penitentiary December 21, last year of typhoid fever.

In February, 1896, Andrew White, who was a plumber by trade, and at that time 21 years of age, was arrested for stealing drug sundries from the J. P. Walls store. He served three months in the county jail upon conviction.

"Bull" White was taken into custody by Detectives Kerrigan and Snow August 23, for being implicated in the Beauchene murder. He was not convicted and was discharged October 15 last year. "Bull" is now 27 years old. In the police records his occupation is given as fisherman and laborer.

"Bull" kept out of trouble after his brother was sent to prison until last spring, when Eastman King arrested him on suspicion of larceny. The case could not be proved against him and he was released.

FRUIT PEDDLERS TO TEST ORDINANCE

The legality of an ordinance recently passed by the city council regulating street fruit peddlers will be passed upon by Judge Hogue of the municipal court within a few days.

Formerly the peddlers were in the habit of standing their wagons on down town corners and remaining in one place day after day. But merchants complained and the new law enacted by the council provided that the street vendors must keep moving. That is they must not remain in one block longer than 10 minutes at a time and must not return to the same blocks within two hours.

Three arrests have resulted and already one case has been submitted to the court. This morning N. Calof and Leo Goldblatt were in the police court charged with violating the ordinance.

Calof and Goldblatt were arrested on Burns street by Patrolmen Gibson and Baty last night for infraction of the ordinance.

The claim of the attorneys for the peddlers is that the ordinance is unreasonable and practically will drive his clients out of business. Assistant City Attorney Fitzgerald on the other hand asserts that the council under the new charter has the power to pass a law, such as the one in question.
