

A RECORD BREAKER

Cornucopia Mines of Oregon Company, Incorporated in New Jersey.

$5,000,000 THE CAPITAL

Sale Is the Largest Ever Made in the History of the Blue Mountain Gold Region—Take Possession.

(Journal Special Service.)

Baker City, Sept. 28.—The biggest transaction in the matter of cash involved that has ever taken place in the history of the Blue Mountain gold region of Eastern Oregon was announced as completed this morning when Lack & Schmitts, Incorporated, of Baker City, received word from New York of the incorporation of the Cornucopia mines of the Oregon Company in New Jersey by New York capitalists.

"You may state," said Fred S. Lack of the above firm this morning, "that the cash amount paid for the Lack Chance and adjacent claims belonging to the Spaulds estate was $600,000."

The famous Bonanza mine near Sumpter sold for half a million and the sale was the only approach ever made to the new record announced today.

Bernard McDonald, for many years identified with the famous LeRoi mines of Roseland, B. C., left this morning with a party of British Columbia mine experts and is now in charge of the property.

Mr. Lack in his interview this morning said: "Well, the dispatch is slightly in error in that it misstates the name of the corporation. It is called the Cornucopia Mines of Oregon company. It has been incorporated as stated for $5,000,000 for the purpose of taking over the Cornucopia mines, which include the Union Companion group, the Red Jacket and the Last Chance. In addition there are 15 other patented claims and mineral locations with mill sites and valuable water rights. All are the property of the new company."

The property delivered has been a steady producer for a number of years past. It has produced already more than $1,000,000 in gold. It is thoroughly equipped with a 20-stamp mill, air compressors, machine drills and all the necessary mining machinery."

H. M. CAKE ENDORSES UNITY MOVEMENT

of Trade, the Manufacturers' association and the Commercial club aim practically at the same results. By working singly in any one direction one of these organizations cannot bring the same results as it could were the entire resources of all these organizations brought to bear upon the same proposition.

"While the work contemplated by these bodies may be at times along somewhat different lines, yet no one will deny that to obtain the best results requires the united strength of all four organizations."

"It does not follow that there must be a complete elimination of the several organizations or that they be actually merged in one. But entire harmony and unanimity of action certainly should be had in every direction in which either body moves."

"Another proposition will be accepted as an axiom in character—no one of the present organizations that are under discussion holds any prerogatives superior to any other. The men in all four bodies are much the same, represent the same interests."

"As to ways and means of bringing to pass harmony of action, and, if necessary, consolidation of the organizations, have no suggestion at present. I can only say that my prolonged association with the Portland commercial bodies and clubs has impressed me with the pressing necessity of harmony of action in all public movements."

Commercial Club the Rallying Ground.
"As to the Commercial club, it is, in my opinion, the rallying ground for the business interests of the city. More representatives of the various business, commercial and industrial concerns will be found every day in its parlors than in any other center of influence in the city of Portland."

"It has been seeking the public weal by preparing a suitable and attractive rendezvous for the business and professional men of the city. It has sought to advance the interests of Portland and Oregon by entertaining and caring for the needs of individuals and bodies that have visited the city."

"The Commercial club considers its primary object to be the advancement of the city's and state's commerce and industries. The social features are secondary."

"Any movement, therefore, that has for its object the unification of sentiment and the consolidation of effort meets my hearty approval. It should be considered carefully and decided wisely."

Interest in the theme, presented originally by I. N. Fleischner, and elaborated during a week past by The Journal in numerous interviews, has grown to depth and strength that augur the attainment of results.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCK IN THE WHEAT CITY

(Journal Special Service.)

Pendleton, Or., Sept. 28.—A sharp and distinct earthquake shock passed through the city yesterday afternoon at 3:25 o'clock. The disturbance was felt from one end of the city to the other, and was generally noticed by the residents of the city. It was hard enough to shake the buildings and rattle the windows and dishes in the residences.

One man coming down the sidewalk from the high school thought that the walk, which is built up from the ground along the side of the hill, was going to fall, and hurried to the foot of the hill. George Hartman Jr., a clerk in the First National bank, was in the bank writing at the time of the shock, and thought that some one was attempting to blow a hole in the bottom of the vault. He heard a dull, muffled report and thought that someone was working under the vault. This noise was heard by several over the city, and is described in various ways. Some say that it was a low rumbling, and others that it was a distinct explosion, resembling the noise made by a blast from a distant quarry. The shock lasted several seconds and seems to have been general over this district.

Big Cattle Sale.
J. C. Longley, the Frye-Bruhn Meat Company of Seattle, has bought 59 carloads of beef cattle for the Seattle market from the country around the south fork of the John Day and will ship them to this city during the first half of the coming month. This buy, added to those bought from the immediate neighborhood, will amount to more than 2,500 head. The cattle are all young, fit for the market, and require no feeding before they will be ready for the slaughter house. This is the biggest buy that has been made for some time in this part of the country.

High Priced Stubble.
The stockmen of the county are having a hard time finding feed for the winter, and it has developed into a race among them as to who will get the straw stacks and stubble fields of the county. Most of the fields have been bought up at this time, and those who have delayed this late are not sure of having feed for their herds for the coming feeding season. R. J. Boddy of Athena last week paid $60 for four small stacks of straw and $1 an acre for the use of the stubble. Another paid $200 for the straw and stubble on an 180-acre field. Even at these figures the stubble is hard to buy, for the reason that it has been all bought by feeders, or else is wanted by the farmers to seed the stubble. It begins to look as though some of the men would have to buy hay for their cattle, and this is selling at $16 a ton on the cars.

Delegate to Conference.
Mrs. Stephen A. Lowell of this city, the wife of Judge Stephen A. Lowell, has been elected by the church of this city to represent them at the 15th annual meeting of that denomination which will be held at Oregon City the first part of this week.

HABEAS CORPUS CASE DROPPED

Applications for the dismissal of writs of habeas corpus in the cases against Roy Pratt, George Roberts and John Morack were allowed by Judge Cleland this morning upon motion of W. T. Hume, attorney for the applicants. All the writs were issued in July and it is understood the cases have been settled. Illegal imprisonment was the charge made in each petition.

A. M. CRAWFORD.

CHARGES ARE FILED

Nash sold his mine for $30,000. Judge Willis says that he and Crawford were to share equally in the fees received from Nash; that in the latter part of March, 1897, he was paid $600 and he accepted it on the understanding that it was one half of the entire amount paid by Nash, and that subsequently he discovered a written agreement signed by Nash and dated February 27, 1897, wherein he agreed to pay Crawford, for the services of the two attorneys, one-third of all the money received from the sale of his mining property, or $10,000.

Nash's Agreement.
This agreement was as follows:

"Whereas, A. M. Crawford has been in my employ as my attorney for several years, and has succeeded in selling my Victory Placer Mining Company bonds, being 1 to 180, inclusive, for $30,000, payable as follows:

Cash down $ 500
April 5, 1897 2,000
May 5, 1897 2,000
June 5, 1897 2,000
July 5, 1897 2,000
August 5, 1897 2,000
September 5, 1897 2,000
October 5, 1897 2,000
November 5, 1897 2,000
December 5, 1897 2,000
January 5, 1898 2,000
February 5, 1898 2,000
March 5, 1898 2,000
April 5, 1898 2,000

..... $30,000.

"Which several sums bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, for which I hold notes for the several amounts, signed by E. N. Camp, John Addison and William L. Breyfogle, payable at the First National Bank of Roseburg, Or., and at the above dates. Now in consideration of said A. M. Crawford's services, I hereby agree to pay to him one-third of the above sum when they shall be paid to me, but not before, and his interest in said notes and sums is one-third of each and every sum paid to me at the above dates. A. M. Crawford shall pay to William R. Willis, out of the money so received by him, all sums due said Willis for services rendered for me. This agreement to be good as each payment is made to me. If any said notes are not paid, then I pay said Crawford nothing on account of said notes unpaid."

"J. T. C. NASH."

Pay "For Future Services."
November, 1898, Judge Willis brought suit against Crawford for an accounting and to recover his share of the fee paid by Nash. When the case came on for trial, Crawford testified that he had no agreement with Nash relative to attorney's fees. Apparently, however, the line of questioning pursued by the plaintiff revealed to Crawford that some knowledge of the Nash contract had reached Judge Willis, for in his subsequent testimony he asserted that after Nash had paid in full for the services of the two attorneys in his mining litigation, the old sea captain entered into an independent agreement with Crawford promising to pay the latter $5,000 for services to be rendered in the future during their joint lives. This, Crawford testified, was the only written agreement ever made between Nash and himself, and it had nothing to do with the mining suits.

Judge Willis Charges Perjury.

Judge Willis declares that in giving the testimony Crawford committed deliberate perjury. As the contract with Nash was executed February 27, 1897, while the settlement with Judge Willis did not take place until March, and as the document explicitly recites that the payments provided for are in settlement of the legal services rendered in the mining litigation, Judge Willis insists that Crawford testified falsely when he said that the contract was made subsequent to the settlement, and that it related only to services to be rendered in the future.

Judge Willis also points to the improbability that Capt. Nash would have entered into a contract to pay a lawyer $5,000 for services to be rendered entirely in the future, and that, too, without having on hand any litigation which would require the protracted employment of a lawyer.

A prominent attorney of this city said this morning, in discussing the testimony alleged to have been given by Crawford:

"The charge seems to me to be very grave. No one would believe that Crawford's client would have paid him $5,000 for services to be rendered in the future, with no litigation pending."

Personal Spite and Political Gain.
Attorney Willis, Charges, He Says.
Salem, Or., Sept. 28.—Concerning the charges made against him before the State Bar Association by Judge Willis, Attorney-General A. M. Crawford said today:

"This is an old case. It has been tried in the courts three different times and I have won out each time. I have nothing to say in the matter except that there is no truth in it. It is trumped up for personal spite and political gain, and for no other reason that I know of. I do not fear the outcome."

Several years ago Judge Willis made similar charges before the state land board, asking that Crawford, their attorney, be dismissed. Mr. Crawford at

MONTANA MAN OF SITUATION.

M. J. Jones of Butte Tells of the Operations of the Dynamiters.
Speaking of the attempts to dynamite Northern Pacific trains in Montana during the past two months, R. J. Jones of Butte, Mont., who is visiting Portland, said that half the story so far as the wrecking of trains and the destruction of railroad property has not been told in the press dispatches. The last attempt to wreck a train prior to the one yesterday happened within the city limits of Helena. It happened that the lower part of the rail was blown out, the upper part remaining until the train passed over.

"People up our way," said Mr. Jones, "think it is a foregone conclusion that the men will be caught eventually. Why? Partly because they have a good deal of confidence in their officers, and partly because the wreckers have worked so boldly, and under so wide an expanse of territory that it seems impossible that the coincidence of appearance of any individual at so many different points within a short time can long escape notice if careful work is being done by the detectives."

"The officers of the state are by no means idle, though it is apparent why they do not employ press agents. Many think the threats have come from a gang who have been operating along the Canadian boundary line. The novelty of the proceeding, the attempt to blackmail a whole railroad, has attracted attention, of course, but it is a fact that the matter is taken less seriously in Montana than at points more distant. None of the efforts made thus far have resulted in personal injury, and it seems to be intended that they shall terrorize the company rather than that passengers shall actually be hurt."

THROWN IN POND

WHITMAN COLLEGE HAS A SENSATION CAUSED BY BLUE LAWS BEING ENACTED BY MATRON OF THE GIRLS' DORMITORY IN SHUTTING OFF PROMISCUOUS CALLING

Walla Walla, Wash., Sept. 28.—Five students of Whitman college had stern college justice meted out to them Friday night by the Kangaroo court of Billings hall and today the student body is in a ferment of excitement.

The boys of the college who eat at Reynolds hall, the girls' dormitory, have been in the habit of lingering after dinner in the evening. The contract with Nash was executed February 27, 1897, while the settlement with Judge Willis did not take place until March, and as the document explicitly recites that the payments provided for are in settlement of the legal services rendered in the mining litigation, Judge Willis insists that Crawford testified falsely when he said that the contract was made subsequent to the settlement, and that it related only to services to be rendered in the future.

that time tendered his resignation to the board, but after an investigation of the charges, the members of the board declined to remove Crawford, or to accept his resignation.

Will Tour City.
"Upon the arrival of the party the members will board trolley cars at the station. The party will spend about two hours in seeing the city from a car window. At 1 o'clock the visitors will be escorted to the fruit fair, to be held in Spokane soon, and at 2:30 the guests will attend the races."

"The convention of the railroad men will be held in the parlors of the Hotel Spokane, and will begin at 8 o'clock p. m. One of the most important matters to be brought before the convention will be a series of resolutions instructing the Pacific Northwest delegates to the meeting of the Traveling Passenger Agents' Association of the United States, to be held at New Orleans next November, to work for the holding of the 1904 convention in Portland."

Will Help the Fair.

"There are to be nine delegates to the New Orleans convention, three from Portland, and three each from Seattle and Spokane. If the 1904 meeting of the traveling passenger agents can be held in this city next year it will be the means of securing a great deal of railroad advertising for the Lewis and Clark fair, and for the Pacific Northwest country in general."

"During the time the railroaders are 'talking shop,' the ladies of the party will attend the theatre. The banquet, at which the ladies will also be present, will be given at the Hotel Spokane, will begin when the theatre party returns."

MESSRS. TULL & GIBBS' FINE SHOW
Great and Grand Reception of the New Firm's Friends on Saturday Afternoon and Evening.

One of the Most Magnificent and Beautiful Mercantile Institutions in the United States.

Great multitudes of people heard Parson's fine orchestra discourse delightful music at Messrs. Tull & Gibbs' formal opening of the grand furniture store at Second and Morrison streets on Saturday afternoon and evening. This splendid musical aggregation never appeared to better advantage, the magnificent surroundings seeming to spur the players on to their very best efforts.

Messrs. Tull & Gibbs have been engaged in the furniture business in Spokane, Wash., for a number of years. The firm's business in that city has been very large and remunerative. Desiring to cover greater territory, they have opened along the Canadian boundary line. The novelty of the proceeding, the attempt to blackmail a whole railroad, has attracted attention, of course, but it is a fact that the matter is taken less seriously in Montana than at points more distant. None of the efforts made thus far have resulted in personal injury, and it seems to be intended that they shall terrorize the company rather than that passengers shall actually be hurt."

Kangaroo Court.
Five boys stayed and upon their exit from the hall late at night were seized by a gang of about 50 students and hurried over to the old gymnasium for trial. It is reported that each one was bound hand and foot and a mock trial was held. All were found guilty and sentenced to be thrown stripped in the little pond on the campus and then made to run for the dormitory. It is impossible to find the names of the victims but it leaked out that one of the offenders was a student of the law. The judge in the trial was the judge by calling him a "sore-head," etc. This language from a preparatory student to a high upper classman would not be allowed according to the code and no additional punishment was given him.

No action has been taken by the faculty as yet. The co-eds are much incensed over having their party cut. They will not speak to the boys at the table today and it is said take pains to snub them. They voted today to ostracize half a dozen fellows whom they think to be the leaders. The boys are making every effort to have them understand why they cut the party and the relations between them are not so strained as they were last week.

Tonight a gang of students went over outside of Reynolds hall and serenaded the girls with parodies of college songs aimed at the recent ruling of the matron of the girls' dormitory.

SPokane's Welcome TO TRAFFIC MEN

ELABORATE PLANS FOR THE ENTERTAINMENT OF MEMBERS OF THE PACIFIC COAST TRAFFIC AGENTS' ASSOCIATION NEXT MONTH.

Convention Will Pass Resolution Asking the Coast Passenger Agents' Delegation to New Orleans to Work for the Holding of the Next National Convention of Passenger Men in Portland.

"The citizens of Spokane are planning a royal time for the Pacific Coast Traffic Agents' Association, which will hold its annual convention in that city October 19."

This statement was made this morning by J. M. Casey, traveling passenger agent of the C. & N. P., who has just returned from a week's visit in Washington cities.

Spokane is planning to entertain at least 150 railroad men and their wives on the day of the convention," said Mr. Casey, "and if we do not have a good time during our stay in the Washington city, it will not be the fault of the citizens. The Portland delegation to the traffic agents' convention will leave here on the night of October 9, and will arrive in Spokane at 9:30 o'clock the next morning."

ASKS MONEY SALVE FOR BROKEN HAND
Story of a War Between Women Which Resulted in a Battle Royal Being Told in the Circuit Court.

The story of a battle with a clothes pole and a piece of mantling as weapon is being told in department No. 4 of the circuit court today in the trial of the case of Annie Cheatham against Minnie Ross, for $5,150 damages. The women are neighbors, on South Water street. On June 22, so Mrs. Cheatham says, Mrs. Ross struck her with a scantling and broke one of the bones of her right hand, crippling her for at least 10 years. Her earning capacity as a housecleaner during the 10 years would reach a valuation of $5,000, and she asks for further damages in the sum of $150.

Mrs. Ross says that Mrs. Cheatham had been hanging dirty carpets on her fence and she tried to remove them with a clothespole. Thereupon Mrs. Cheatham struck her with a scantling and she retaliated with the pole and whatever injuries she inflicted were in self-defense.

"The case will probably go to the jury late this afternoon or early tomorrow morning."
