

MCKINLEY-WARE CASE NEXT WEEK

THE UNITED STATES GRAND JURY WILL MEET ON OCTOBER 19, AND WILL THEN TAKE UP THE ALLEGATIONS MADE OF FRAUDS IN OREGON TIMBER LAND FILINGS.

Both Parties to the Controversy Allege That They Have Been Strengthening Their Position Since the Case First Came Before the Court—Prosecution Has Made a Careful Investigation of All the Charges.

When the United States Grand Jury meets on October 19 the cases of Horace McKinley and Marie Ware, for alleged frauds in the timber land entries and proofs, will be the most important. Mr. McKinley recently arrived from La Crosse, Wis., where he spent the summer. Miss Ware has been in Denver and Hot Springs, Ark. Miss Ware is a sister time ago went to Spokane, Wash., where she was employed by the United States land commissioner for the United States court of this district. Mr. McKinley has been in Portland for the greater part of the time since the case was taken up by the city only when taking a trip through the central part of Oregon in company with Dan Tarpley, his private secretary and assistant during several years past. Miss Ware is now in Eugene, and will be here for her appearance before the grand jury. Mr. McKinley has paid little heed to the coming case, his attorney O'Day & Tarpley, having attended to the preliminaries of the trial. They express confidence in the outcome, and allege that the government will not be able to prove what has been charged against Mr. McKinley and Miss Ware. Mr. McKinley also expresses the belief that he will emerge from the trial proven innocent of the charges made.

Government Active.
The government has been active through its agents during the weeks that have elapsed since the defendants were before the United States commissioner, and were held to the grand jury under bonds. The jury will be in session on the 19th, although it cannot get to the trial until the 20th. The McKinley-Ware case will come up on the first trial. Special agents have been in Eugene, and upon the trails of land concerning which there has been a question as to the regularity of the filings and proofs as made before the McKinley-Ware case will come up on the first trial. Special agents have been in Eugene, and upon the trails of land concerning which there has been a question as to the regularity of the filings and proofs as made before the McKinley-Ware case will come up on the first trial.

The main allegation, however, is that Miss Ware permitted the sale of the timber land to the making of final proofs, with the knowledge that they were false, and that fictitious names were appended to proofs for the purpose of obtaining possession of several quarter sections of land from the public domain. The cases have been the most celebrated ever tried in Federal courts here, and in view of the agitation in land matters and "grafting" allegations that are being made these days, they take a peculiar significance to many citizens.

HUNT REPLIES TO LATEST CHARGE

police or the police judge. The chief of police shall keep in his office a book of arrests in which shall be entered by him or under his direction the name of every person arrested, the cause of his arrest, by whom the arrest was made and the date thereof.

Where Hunt Gets His Evidence.
As stated by The Journal several days ago, the chief is preparing formal defense to be presented at the next meeting of the executive board. On the other hand, George H. Howell, the member of the board who has been charged against the police chief at the last session, is also getting his evidence in shape.

The statement of the chief is typewritten, and refers to the charges that he released Ed French without authority and that he abused Roy Shipley and Ben Anderson, young men who were arrested for discharging firearms within the city limits.

Several days ago it was reported that the chief was trying to blame Jailer Ben Branch for the release of French, whom the chief says escaped. The statement of officers in which the chief is said not to have handled the boys roughly, has also been taken.

Instead of calling witnesses before the board and making an open examination the chief gets statements from his men, whom he has power to dismiss, and their evidence is presented in defense of the chief's actions.

Gen. Beebe Lands Hunt.

Gen. Beebe, member of the police committee, was also on hand to delight the men at roll call with another of his characteristic speeches.

In glowing terms he referred to the magnificent work done by Chief Hunt, who he said was a most efficient official, but overworked. Gen. Beebe branded the attacks upon Chief Hunt as malicious persecution and according to his estimate of the head of the police department words were not sufficiently eloquent to tell what a benefit he had been to the city. He told the men that they must obey and respect their commander. Gen. Beebe spoke at considerable length and with much feeling, especially when he recalled what complimentary remarks had been made regarding his bosom friend, Chief Hunt.

IS THE CHECK GOOD?

Thomas Quigley, 30 years of age, and a stranger to the Portland police, is in the city jail under a charge of drunkenness, but he may later have to face an accusation of forgery. The man was arrested by Detective Hartman and Day at Third and Ash streets this morning after several business men told the officers that the suspect had tried to pass a check upon them. None would cash it because they were afraid it was bogus. The check is for $18.70, drawn on a Seattle bank in favor of D. Vaughn. The prisoner says that he found the paper.

STEAMER BREAKS HER OWN RECORD

INDRASAMBA CROSSES PACIFIC IN 15 DAYS AND FIVE HOURS, MAKING QUICKER PASSAGE BY ALMOST HALF A DAY THAN EVER BEFORE.

Brings Large Cargo of Oriental Goods Consisting Principally of Matting, Tea, Pineapples, Curies and Chinese Merchandise—Had 175 Steerage Passengers, Half of Whom Landed at Victoria—News From Far East.

Just 15 days and 5 hours were required for the steamer Indrasamba to run from Yokohama to Victoria, B. C., lowering her own record by more than half a day.

The steamer arrived in Portland harbor last evening at 9 o'clock, and early this morning began discharging cargo. An uneventful voyage is reported. The vessel sailed from Hong Kong on September 14, and five days later reached Moji, where 2,000 tons of additional freight were taken on board. From there she proceeded to Kobe, reaching that port on September 22. After discharging a large quantity of wheat and loading a big consignment of tea and matting for Portland, she again set sail, arriving at Hong Kong on September 26. After discharging additional shipments of tea, curries and other merchandise, her final departure for the Pacific coast was made on September 28 at 6:30 p. m.

Until October 11 the weather was fine and clear, and the steamer averaged 12 knots an hour. Then a heavy gale was encountered, continuing two days, and having the effect of reducing the speed very materially. Victoria was finally reached at 10 o'clock on the morning of October 14, after a run of 15 days and 5 hours.

Capt. W. E. Craven is still in command of the vessel. J. T. Horne, H. Seaton and H. Oppen are her first, second and third officers, respectively. H. Charters is in charge of the engine department and is assisted by Messrs. Walsh, Hughes and Hunter, second, third and fourth engineers. Dr. Bruce, a late prominent member of the Salem football team, has been surgeon of the ship during the past voyage. The passengers consisted of 175 Chinese and Japanese, 83 of whom landed at Victoria. Those coming to Portland are mostly from Japan. First Officer Horne this morning said: "The Indrasamba is a most interesting ship. There is a mighty rush of people from Alaska just now," said Mr. Joyce, "and every steamer to Seattle is laden with passengers and goods. At least 5,000 miners have left the North in anticipation of the coming winter, and while few of them are not benefitting the traffic lines directly by going East, they are maintaining on the coast and putting good money in circulation."

"The labor difficulties at Cripple Creek have taken over 300 miners out of Wallace, Ida., in the last two months, and in was in regard to the transportation of these men that the railroad man visited Idaho. If many more miners leave the Idaho district, he said, 'I am afraid it will seriously interfere with work in that part of the country.'"

"I should like to see the annual convention of the Traveling Passenger Agents' association held in Portland." The Portland delegation to the coming convention of the Traveling Passenger Agents' association at New Orleans, November 10 to 12 inclusive, has decided not to go by way of San Francisco, as at first arranged. The local party will go direct to Chicago to work for the securing of the next meeting in Portland next fall, and the San Francisco agents will sail from Seattle with the same purpose in view. One thousand buttons bearing a picture of Mount Hood and the inscription, "Mount Hood, Portland, Or., 1904," will be distributed among the agents at the Crescent City.

COUNTY ASKS PAY FOR SHIP'S BLUNDER

Shall the Willamette & Columbia River Towing company, the Pacific Export Lumber company, Pilot Emkins and William Mitchell, former captain of the Vulcan, be required to pay for the cost in repairing the Morrison street bridge after the structure had been damaged by the British steamship Almond Branch, February 19, 1901. This question will be decided by the jury in Judge Sears' court. The case will begin this afternoon.

The history of the bumped bridge and the steamer with the forest-like name is reported as follows: The seagoing steamer is said to have been chartered by the lumber company for a cargo of timber across the sea. As the vessel was not to receive all of her cargo at one mill, when the time came to shift, the river towing boat Vulcan was engaged to assist in the moving. It is said that Pilot Emkins was given charge of the two vessels. In passing through the Morrison street bridge the Almond Branch crashed into the structure, and as a result the bridge was closed for repairs. The work was in progress several weeks, and the cost of getting it into shape for the postoffice employees will soon be accomplished. Things are said to have already been so arranged at the new quarters that there will be no delay in handling the railroad mail.

POSTOFFICE MOVES TO NEW QUARTERS

After Next Sunday Sixth and Burnside Is the Place to Go for Letters, Stamps, Money Orders, Papers and Justice.

Piece by piece the Portland postoffice and the United States court are being moved from the federal building to the temporary quarters on Sixth and Burnside streets. Yesterday afternoon the shifting of the court furniture and the railway mail department of the postoffice was begun, and the work is to be pushed forward as rapidly as possible. It is said that the work of moving of the postoffice stamp, money order and mail departments will not begin until next Sunday.

The temporary building that is to be occupied during the time the federal offices are being enlarged is now in readiness, and the work of getting it into shape for the postoffice employees will soon be accomplished. Things are said to have already been so arranged at the new quarters that there will be no delay in handling the railroad mail.

SAYS HUSBAND WAS CRUEL.

Asserting that her husband is insanely jealous of her, came home drunk, often cursed her, falsely accused her of unchastity and has made repeated threats to take her life, Clara A. Blair has asked for a divorce. The case is being tried this afternoon.

Mrs. Blair states that she was married to William C. Blair at Alsea, Or., on July 16, 1887, and that during the last four months he has been guilty of cruel and inhuman treatment toward her. She states that on April 17, 1903, her husband threatened to shoot her with his pistol. Since that time, she says, he has made several similar threats.

Mrs. Blair asks that she be given the control of their children, Elsie, aged 13 years, and Sibyl, aged 7 years. Attorneys Gantenbein and Veale appear as counsel for Mrs. Blair.

COLORADO STRIKE AFFECTS COAST

TRAVELING PASSENGER AGENT FOR COLORADO ROAD TELLS OF DEMAND FOR LABOR—FAVORS PORTLAND FOR TRAFFIC MEN'S CONVENTION.

Malone Joyce, traveling passenger agent for the Colorado Midland railway, with headquarters in San Francisco, is in Portland today on his way home from a trip to the Puget Sound country, Idaho and the Palouse.

"There is a mighty rush of people from Alaska just now," said Mr. Joyce, "and every steamer to Seattle is laden with passengers and goods. At least 5,000 miners have left the North in anticipation of the coming winter, and while few of them are not benefitting the traffic lines directly by going East, they are maintaining on the coast and putting good money in circulation."

O. W. P. & R. LINE COMPLETED TO SPRINGWATER AND THE FIRST FISHERMEN'S EXCURSION WILL BE RUN TO CASADERO NEXT SUNDAY.

The last spike has been driven and the roadbed ballasted on the extension of the Oregon Water Power & Railway line to Springwater, 40 miles south of Portland. To Casadero, the terminal station, the first through excursion train will be run next Sunday. Three trains will carry passengers out and two will convey the freight.

The first train will leave this city at 7:30 o'clock in the morning, in order to allow fishermen an early start to the Clackamas river. At present the railroad company has a large bunkhouse for holding 100 men at Casadero, and a lodge of nine rooms for the officers. The site of the big power plant is near the terminus. Laborers are at work on the huge dam in the Clackamas, which will be 100 feet thick at the base. The power plant will be between 10,000 and 15,000 horse power.

The Clackamas river is noted for its fish, and the country in and around Springwater is full of game. A company in charge of highway robbery are under way for the construction of a hunters' inn. The building will be erected on the banks of the Clackamas at High Bridge.

The accident occurred at First and Jefferson streets, between 5 and 5:30 o'clock p. m. Dubiver asks for $179 damages, alleging that the accident was caused by carelessness upon the part of streetcar employees.
