

BROKE HER KEEL NEAR TILLAMOOK

STAMPER SUE ELMORE BROUGHT UP TO PORTLAND FROM ASTORIA TO RECEIVE REPAIRS - WENT ABOARD OF TILLAMOOK EAR DURING STORM.

One of the Smallest Stern Wheel Steamers on the Coast Requiring Completion at Supple's Yards for Snake River Mining Company - After Machinery is Installed Craft Will be Shipped by Rail to Her Destination.

The steamer schooner Sue Elmore arrived in port this morning for repairs, which will be made at Supple's shipyard. She runs between Astoria and Tillamook and during the big storm two weeks ago she was driven out of her course on Tillamook bar. The vessel went aground and her keel was broken in addition to sustaining other damages the full extent of them not being yet ascertained.

The Elmore is owned by Samuel Elmore of Astoria. She is practically a new boat, having been built at Portland three years ago by Joseph Supple. Her length is about 100 feet, beam 25 feet and draft 7 feet. The steamer is equipped for both freight and passenger traffic, and is classed among the finest vessels that operate between the towns in the vicinity of the mouth of the Columbia river.

The steamer will be pulled out on the ways at once, and the repairs made as quickly as possible. Fortunately for the owner there is no other work of any great importance at the yard, hence no delay will be experienced.

Machinery and a boiler arrived at Supple's yesterday for one of the smallest stern-wheelers that was ever built on the Willamette river. They are for the miniature steamer which was built for Raber & Co., a mining concern which is operating at Glen's Ferry. The craft is to be used as a tender for a dredge. It is only 40 feet in length, has a seven-foot beam and will not draw more than five or six inches of water. The machinery is now being installed and when this work is completed the boat will be shipped by rail to its destination. The boiler looks like a toy, but it will be capable of storing enough steam, it is said, to send the boat skimming over the water at about 10 miles an hour.

NOTICE TO MARINERS. Notice is hereby given by C. G. Calkins. lighthouse inspector, of the following change in the aids to navigation in this district, which affects the List of Lights and Fog Signals, Pacific Coast, 1903.

NICKUM REMOVED AS ADMINISTRATOR

County Judge Webster yesterday removed Joseph M. Nickum as administrator of the estate of his mother, Mrs. Susannah Nickum, who died in this city August 28, 1902. Mr. Nickum was removed because he claims to be owner of $7,000 said to belong to the estate, and not because he had not been faithful as an administrator, this ruling having been made by the supreme court.

At yesterday's hearing, Joseph M. Nickum stated that he thought his brother, John W. Nickum, had received some $1,500 of the estate before his mother's death, April 3, 1902.

Some time ago H. H. Northup, who is guardian of Ida May Feller, stipulated with Judge Tanner, attorney for J. M. Nickum, to accept $150 in settlement of the claim of Mrs. Feller. It is stated that at that time it was unknown that there was $7,000 in a local bank in the name of Mrs. Susannah Nickum.

A new administrator will be appointed by Judge Webster.

Letters From the People

Sumpter, Or., Oct. 21.-To the Editor of the Journal - Accept a few words of encouragement from one who has felt the weight of your paper as yours for the last quarter of a century.

Your editorial of September 29 and several subsequent ones were the sentiment of thousands who, if they had the power to wield the pen, would write just such an article and articles.

I will be a subscriber to your paper so long as I can. I am respectfully, P. D. HEALD.

A Police Experience. Portland, Or., Oct. 18.-To the Editor of the Journal: Please allow me space in your valuable paper to express my self in a bolder manner than I have in the Portland police. I don't mean to criticize the police here in general and I have no doubt there are some good officers among them, but the conduct of the individual of whom I am about to speak, I think can commend itself to the respectable citizens of this city.

I was standing on Burnside street last Friday night listening to the Salvation Army when officer No. 2 came up behind me, tapped me on the shoulder, and in a threatening manner told me to go with him. I thought at the time it was some one of my friends playing a joke on me, and turned round to see the worthy officer towering up before me. He seemed very much excited and in a threatening manner told me to go with him.

This being the first time in my life that I have ever been molested by an officer of the law, I was taken so much by surprise that I did not realize for a moment that I was under arrest, so turning to my escort I requested to know what this meant. He told me that if I did not want to get hurt to come right along with him. I was going all the time, but he seemed very much afraid that I was going to offer some resistance and thought it necessary to make this bluff.

I felt sure there was some mistake made and thought they mistook me for some other party and persisted in finding out what I was arrested for, but he told me I would find out when I got to the police station. However, after we went about two blocks, he began to cool down a little and apparently realizing that I was not the notorious criminal that he took me for, he told me that the gentleman who had arrested me was wearing a coat that I had seen in the window of a store. I felt somewhat indignant and roared that gentleman for making such an accusation without any better proof than he had, and of course, when we got to the police station, they examined the coat the gentleman soon saw his mistake, but said that the outward appearance of the coat resembled his, and by way of apology, offered to shake hands with me.

Now, I would like to ask if it is an officer's duty to subject a man to the indignity of being arrested on the street and hurried off to the police station without any further proof of his guilt than the mere accusation of some hoodlum who claims you are wearing some article of clothing which has some resemblance to that which he has lost?

I do not blame the officer for doing his duty, and if there was no other way to prove my innocence, I would rather be arrested than suspected of theft without an opportunity to clear myself, but I think it could have been done in a less bulldozing and domineering manner. Politeness, I think, is essential even to a Portland policeman.

HUGH MCKINNON.

Claims He Made No Mistake. Salem, Or., Oct. 18.-To the Editor of the Journal: Allow me to state through the columns of your valuable paper, in answer to many inquiries relative to a letter which I wrote, extracts from which were published in the Pilot Rock Record.

I desire to say that the letter was intended as a private letter and was published without request or authority. If I had wanted it published I certainly would have addressed it to an editor. It contained, among other things, tales I heard told in the morning and night relative to the disposition of the Heppner relief fund. After due consideration I have fully concluded that I made no grievous mistake in writing it or any mistake at all.

E. E. PARKER.

McGinn and Bussard in One Cage. McMinnville, Or., Oct. 20.-To the Editor of the Journal: I visited Portland about the middle of September with my first and daughter to see your city. While wandering over park city and country so grand and beautiful with the people so happy and contented, I heard a scream. Well I knew that cry, a cry of defiance and not of fear. I sprang to my feet and wended my way in wake of the sound. Again and again I heard that cry, soon I came in sight of a large cage in one part of the park. Here I beheld that glorious bird, emblem of my country, in a cage. Oh, how sad, how sad, and what has he for a fellow prisoner? Liberty loving people raise and think! He is in a cage with a turkey buzzard, the lowest bird in our country. How can the people of Portland and vicinity visit the city park and not enter a protest in favor of this noble bird, that will at least be a new cage, where he will not have to dine with as low a bird as a buzzard. I understand the city park is kept by the city of Portland, and I, as a citizen of Linn county, beg and implore you to build a new cage for this noble, honest bird, where at least his cry will not be so pitiful.

Yours, J. B. WIRT.

Indignantly Eloquent. Baker City, Or., Oct. 16.-To the Editor of the Journal: In the Oregonian's issue of last Sunday an unworked sample of republican liberality is shown by the attempt made to cartoon Gov. Chamberlain's visit to Washington in behalf of certain settlers.

The chief executive has gone on a journey whose purpose respects credit on the state of Oregon. He seeks to protect the landholders from the grasp of greed, to keep a shelter over the heads of innocent and helpless babes, and to demonstrate to the people of other states that this state recognizes the rights of private property, and yet the governor sins, because he is not a republican.

The cartoon represents the governor in several sequel pictures, showing him as he appears on the eve of his departure, and as he draws nearer and nearer, growing smaller and smaller, until he arrives in the presence of the terrible Hitchcock (the cock of the walk) dwarfed into insignificance, with only sufficient courage to say "Good bye."

A cartoon is justifiable when it seeks to attain a good end by holding up to public contempt an unworthy act, but when it, for political capital, would belittle an effort which has good for its object, it is unwarrantable. The cartoon which depicts the governor as a degenerate, is a weapon of the low. I ask, that if the governor were a republican, would the Oregonian have been guilty of the said cartoon? I think not.

The Oregonian also takes a shot at Chairman White in its crippled doggerel with which it attempts to explain its crude pictures, if by its illustrations can be dignified with the name. But the shoe pinches, and the Oregonian, with apologies to the rest of the gander, is about to be put to the test. He is to be put to the test by being forced to wear the shoes of defeat, and quacks forth in ducking bable its discomfiture.

Be it remembered, the valuable aid, the able support rendered by Chairman White in the turning of the tide of battle in favor of Gov. Chamberlain, in placing the eagle of victory upon the Democratic banner. Then republican confidence was spitted by the keen rapier of democracy.

The Oregonian is still sore, its wound has not healed. The fact that its double-distilled influence failed to place its man in the executive mansion, with the attractive and useful veto power, has been a melancholy fall before precipice. It has been deprived of the precious delight of being able to quack to an admiring audience of fellow ganders. "We did it! We did it! quack! quack!"

At present, the melodious and seductive siren-swan-like voice of the Oregonian is being drowned by the waters of Bitter Creek, while it paddles about in the vain attempt to avoid the sharp points of little questioning rocks which stick up their annoying heads for an explanation of its political failure. Quack again, Oregonian. Endeavor to injure with the hiss which issues from your republican bill, the good deed of a democrat. You will only succeed in calling attention to the fact that you are mad, will only draw the eyes of the public upon your impotent anger, will only bring upon your head the merited contempt of all right thinking people.

PE-RU-NA NECESSARY TO THE HOME.

A Letter From Congressman White, of North Carolina.

HON. GEORGE H. WHITE.

Congressman George Henry White, of Tarboro, N. C., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman in regard to the merits of the great catarrh cure, Peruna:

House of Representatives, Washington, Feb. 4, 1898. Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

Gentlemen - I am more than satisfied with Peruna, and find it to be an excellent remedy for the grip and catarrh. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it as an excellent remedy.

Very respectfully, George H. White.

Mrs. Nannie Wallace, Tulare, Cal., President of the Western Baptist Missionary Society, writes: "I consider Peruna an indispensable article in my medicine chest. It is twenty medicines in one, and has so far cured every sickness that has been in my home for five years. I consider it of special value to weakly women, as it builds up the general health, drives out disease and keeps you in the best of health." - Mrs. Nannie Wallace.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

PREACHER PASSES AS NEGRO FOR 20 YEARS

(Journal Special Service.) Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 21.-That Rev. L. M. Fenwick, for 20 years a pastor in the African Methodist church, is a white man and a doctor of medicine, having degrees from the Barnes Medical college at St. Louis and the Electro-Physics and Electro-Therapeutics institute of Indianapolis, was the discovery made in the police court yesterday, when he was forced to swear that he was white, and not a negro.

The story did not develop until today, when one of the court officers called attention of one of Mr. Fenwick's parishioners to the testimony in court Saturday. Now the fight against Mr. Fenwick which has developed threatens to force him out of the church. He declares, however, that he will not give up his pastorate without a fight, having, as he declares, abandoned the practice of medicine to work for the elevation of the black, among whom he has been making his home.

Though of a fair complexion his parishioners till today believed Fenwick one of their own race. "What would you say I am?" he inquired, when asked if he had admitted that he was a white man. "I never claimed to be anything else. Our church does not draw any color line. We have a white bishop, Rev. C. T. Shaffer, and a large number of white clergymen. I felt it my duty to work among the colored people. Whose business is it? I should like to know. I gave up a lucrative practice as a physician to go into the work."

Mr. Fenwick then exhibited his diplomas and licenses to practice medicine in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Missouri. And now the members of the church are drawn up in battle array along the color line, with the prospect of a long and bitter warfare before them.

"We don't need no white man for our preacher," said one of the opposition.

"Mr. Fenwick is doing a great work in Milwaukee," said one of his friends.

VITAL FORCE

Is Crushed by Chronic Troubles. One of the most weakening, undermining troubles which mankind is heir to is hemorrhoids or piles. The victim is careless and neglectful of the disease at first, because the pain is slight and the bleeding may only occur occasionally, or he may be reassured by the occasional disappearance of the symptoms. The real danger begins when he found a rational remedy to soothe the inflammation, he would probably never have had a return of this irritating malady.

Piles may develop at any season of the year and at almost any age of the victim. A valuable and reliable remedy causes this trouble, and a period arrives when the dread of pain at stool becomes so great that the patient is obliged to neglect the calls of nature, and the bowels are either forced to retain the feces or are only partially cleared, on account of the suffering attendant upon a thorough movement.

Before you reach this stage use a remedy which removes the cause, thereby eradicating the disease, and that is the Pyramid Pile Cure, which is sold by all druggists at 50 cents a package; it is in the form of a suppository, is applied directly to the parts affected, and brings about a complete cure quickly and painlessly. A valuable little book on the cause and cure of piles is published by the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., and we advise every sufferer to send for a copy of it.

People who have suffered from piles for years are often astonished at the instant relief experienced from the first application. Another important advantage is the fact that any one can use the remedy without detention from business or interference with daily occupation.

"I feel it my duty to recommend the Pyramid Pile Cure for suffering from ten years with a most distressing form of piles. I am entirely cured, thanks to this remedy. Any one doubting this can write me at 115 West 116th Street, Cleveland, O."

DEMOCRATIC CHIEF HAS CONFIDENCE

CHIEFMAN OF DEMOCRATIC STATE COMMITTEE PLANS A VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN FOR COMING PRESIDENTIAL YEAR - HOPES FOR A HEAVY GAIN IN OREGON.

Claims that Divisions Among Republicans Will Result in Accretions of Strength to Democrats - Predicts Democracy Will Enter Fight With Common Purpose - Large Local Gains at Next Election Favorable.

Capt. Sam White, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, has returned to Baker City, having spent a few days in Portland. Mr. White is preparing for a vigorous campaign next year, and is arranging his business to permit him to devote his time thereto. "The Democratic party in Oregon," said he, "will enter the campaign united and facing the future to address itself to the issues of the day with renewed vigor and fine unanimity. Our enemies allege that we are divided, but that has been true in the past. One cannot truthfully deny such an allegation. But you will find that, when our state convention has been held, and we are ready for a common purpose, we will be close together, with a common purpose."

"On the other hand, the Republican party in Oregon is hopelessly split into factions, each warring unrelentingly against the other, and determined to win at any cost. All recent events indicate a condition of feeling the fortunes of the state Republican party materially and seriously."

Events Demonstrate This. "Every occurrence of late demonstrates the truth of my assertion. For a time, the Mitchell party asserted that the Republicans of Oregon could not afford to place power in the hands of the Simon party, because ex-Senator Simon was at odds with the national administration. Then occurred the turning down of the congressional delegation in the matter of appointments, and the Simon folks came back at the Mitchell party with the charge that Simon was not now the Mitchell force, board representatives of the president, were in a worse quarrel than ever Simon had."

"The situation was changed instantly, upon the announcement that that quarrel had occurred between the president and the leaders of the late Republican party who stand at the head of the Mitchell-Pulton forces. Upon that instant, was raised the question as to who would control that party in the coming campaign, and it is an open question as to which party will be in the lead in the bitter fight ever waged in Oregon over factional differences in a political party."

Will Unite Democracy. "One thing that will unite the national and state Democracies will be the full and free discussion in advance of various men who have been talked of for presidential nomination. As this discussion proceeds, it is tending to bring closer and closer together the two main portions of the party that in the past have been more or less in antagonism. The various unavailability men will gradually be eliminated until the choice will narrow down to two or three, and one of whom will cause enthusiastic union of all factions, and the entrance into the campaign with no serious divisions."

The victory of Tammany in New York, which appears to have been assured by the injection of party politics into the municipal campaign, will do much to strengthen the party. The fusionists at first pretended it was to be a non-partisan fight, but now it is plain that it is purely and simply a desire to carry New York for the Republicans. When once the voters there get this idea clearly in their heads, that city certainly will go for McClain and Furness and Grover, the Democratic candidates.

Party Here Stronger. "In Oregon, the Democratic party, in my opinion, is in a stronger position than at any time in 10 years past. In the last state campaign we won the governorship, and also elected more local officers than did the Republicans. Our gains were distributed all over the state, and while the state ticket excepting as governor, and the congressional candidates of the Republican party was successful, yet we made such substantial gains in local offices, that it affects favorably the situation."

"In the special election to choose a congressman in the first district, the majority which had been given the late Mr. Tongue was cut down in the case of Mr. Hermann to 2,300, a falling off from 5,300 received by Mr. Tongue.

"All in all, the situation is improved materially, and enables the Democrats to enter the coming fight fitted to increase their showing and make further gains. With a divided opposition and a united Democracy, we certainly should move forward far ahead of any position we have occupied in many years."

GAS EXPLOSION, NOT A SMUGGLER'S PLOT

An amusing incident occurred last evening at the Alaska dock where the big Oriental liner Indramahla is lying. Watchmen in the employ of the government are on and about the steamer to prevent any of the Chinese crew from landing. The celestial are wily and require close watching. They can go down a rope like professional acrobats, and if the officers are not vigilant at all times there would soon be more Chinese in the city than the law allows.

Soon after dark the men on Uncle Sam's payroll heard a loud report, which seemed to be accompanied by a splash in the water. In an instant they jumped at the conclusion that it was a signal for some of the crew to make their escape. They started an investigation, every minute becoming more thoroughly convinced that several of the Chinese had stolen a march on them under cover of darkness. When Chambers and Freeman darted hither and thither in search of the fugitives, peering over the sides of the vessel into the water, and shouting for more assistants. They lighted lanterns and one of them ascended forepeak to look above. The other went above and kept running up and down the sidewalk in front of the dock to block the passage of the escapes.

"What in the world do you fellows mean?" loudly inquired a newcomer on the scene.

"Didn't you hear that report a short time ago?" asked the watchman on the dock. "That came from Chinese who are trying to make their escape."

"Oh, nonsense!" answered the third party. "I heard that. It was nothing but the nightly cleaning out of one of the gas company's retorts."

The watchman called to his companion and all further search was called off. None of the Chinese crew is missing.

GOOD ROADS CONGRESS TO MEET THIS WEEK

At the annual meeting of the Oregon Good Roads Association, to be held on Friday and Saturday, it is planned to have object lessons in road building read. Addresses on matters pertaining to good roads will be made by Gov. Chamberlain, James H. McDonald, state highway commissioner of Connecticut; J. B. Killbrew of Nashville, Tenn.; James W. Abbott, commissioner of public road inquiries of the Rocky mountain district, and M. O. Eldredge, assistant director of the office of public road inquiries of Washington, D. C.

Mr. Abbott's lecture will be illustrated by stereopticon views, showing what has been and is being accomplished in various parts of the country in the matter of road construction. The convention will close Saturday night with a banquet.

The present officers of the association are: J. H. Scott, president, Salem; J. E. Magers, secretary, Portland; C. J. Trechard, treasurer, Astoria; H. C. Scott, Executive Committee - H. C.
