SHIELDS FAILS TO GET RECEIVER APPOINTED

Edward Shields' application for the appointment of a receiver for Cohn's Arrow theatre was denied yesterday by Judge Cleland in the state circuit court. Shields was recently excluded from the management of the place, which he contended, was in violation of his contract with Cohn. Pending trial of this question he petitioned the court for a receiver, but Judge Cleland held yesterday that Shields had adequate remedy without the appointment of the receiver. The theatre was opened last month under the management of Shields, but after the first week's performance Cohn became dissatisfied and excluded Shields from the management on the ground that he failed to secure the proper attractions. Cohn said that he didn't care whether the place paid or not for the first few weeks, just so the people came to talk about the show. Shields, however, was receiving 20 per cent of the receipts as his share of the deal, and thought the show ought to pay from the start. Accordingly he refused to employ as high-priced attractions as Cohn desired, Cohn says.

CAPT. POWELL DID NOT RELISH JOKE

DIGNIFIED BAILIFF IN JUDGE FRAZER'S COURT MISTAKEN BY A WITNESS FOR A NON-UNION CARPENTER, WHO WOULD NOT STRIKE.

For the first time yesterday afternoon Captain Powell, the dignified bailiff who presides in department No. 4 of the state circuit court, learned that he bore a striking resemblance to a certain Portland carpenter, of whom he had never heard, and the way he gleaned the information was anything but pleasing to the somber captain.

It was toward the close of the session in Judge Frazer's court, and a suit brought by James Marshall, a contractor, against Saul Silverfield, involving two uncompleted flats, was under discussion. An attempt had been made to prove that work on the flats was tied up by a walk-out of the union carpenters during the early summer, and a little German was on the stand to tell what he knew of the case.

When a jury is not in attendance, Captain Powell usually occupies the first chair in the jury box during the sessions of the court, where, gavel in hand, he vigorously raps at the first sign of disorder. He was in his accustomed place during the trial yesterday afternoon.

The witness had just stated that he worked on the flats until the walking delegate came around, when he was ordered off. He thought most of the men on the job quit.

"How many were on the job?" was asked. "Wal, about eight I think." "And you all quit?" "Pretty near all."

"Some kept on working, did they?" "Yes, one or two did, I think. The old man here kept on working, and I guess another fellow did too—anyway I am sure the old man kept going."

The "old man" to whom he referred was Captain Powell, who has not missed a day from the court house for a number of years, and to make sure that he would not be misunderstood, the witness pointed his thumb over his shoulder at the horrified captain.

Little attention was paid to the incident until on cross-examination the witness was further questioned as to how many men were on the job after the strike began.

"I am not sure, I tell you, just how many men were left on the job, but I know sure that the old man here kept working, after the rest of us quit," and again the thumb was pointed over his shoulder at the astonished captain.

That the first time was a mistake, the captain could conceive, but that again the witness should identify him as the man who "kept on working" was more than he could stand, and he shook his head furiously at the offender. Judge Frazer enjoyed the joke hugely while an unmistakable titter flitted around the court room.

The captain stalked angrily from the court room as soon as his gavel had announced the close of the session. He encountered the reporters at the door and refused to talk about the matter at all. That he should be held up to ridicule in his own court room was bad enough—but to be branded as a "scab" by a carpenter who "kept on working" was a little too much.

THEATRES

"THE CHRISTIAN," TONIGHT.

Tonight, when "The Christian" comes to the Marquam Grand theatre for an engagement of three nights, with a special matinee Saturday at 2:15 o'clock, local play-goers will have an opportunity of witnessing one of the greatest dramas of the century. There has never been a novel of recent years which has created greater interest in the literary world than this masterpiece of Hall

OSA LEE WILLARD As John Storm.

Caine, the famous English novelist. The tremendous success of the story in book form created a demand for the narrative to be placed upon the stage. This demand was met, and the result exceeded all expectations, for "The Christian" as a play became even more popular than the novel had been. "The Christian" has netted Hall Caine over $100,000 and has been as great a success financially as it has been from a literary standpoint. The dramatization of the story is by the author himself, and Mr. Caine now ranks high among the dramatists, as he does among the writers of books. "The Christian" as presented at the Marquam Grand will be Mr. Caine's own version and the production will be presented after the plans approved by the author. Seats are now selling for the entire engagement.

MAGICIAN HERMANN COMING.

The advance sale of seats will open tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock for the great and only Hermann, who comes to the Marquam Grand theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, November 16, 17 and 18, with a popular matinee Wednesday at 2:15 o'clock. As an entertainer in magic and sensational illusions his position is absolutely secure. Novelties in magic are as essential to success as in the field of the drama, and it is probably to this one fact that Hermann always presents something new and startling.

"TENNESSEE'S PARDNER."

There is a good play at Cordray's Theatre this week, at least every one who has witnessed it pronounces it good, and that is pretty fine evidence that "Tennessee's Pardner" is a play that will always find admirers among the best class of theatre patrons. It will be billed all this week at Cordray's, including a special matinee next Sunday.

"RUDOLPH AND ADOLPH."

"Rudolph and Adolph" is an attraction of a rather higher class than those usually labeled as farce comedies. Mason and Mason are very clever German comedians. The plot of the piece depends upon the fact that these two look exactly alike and their wives and others get them mixed. So, in order to destroy the likeness both decided to shave and approach from opposite sides of a double mirror, which has the glass broken out. The shaving is performed and the men do exactly the same thing at the same time, following each other, each under the impression that he sees his own reflection. The Masons are also good singers and dancers. In addition to the strong company supporting them a large chorus of pretty girls also appears in the many specialties and musical numbers with which the piece abounds. These comedians will be the attraction at Cordray's theatre for the entire week commencing Sunday, November 15.

"THE DANCING GIRL."

While it seems almost impossible for an author or dramatist to produce a successful story or play without resorting to unnatural and impossible creations of the imagination, the experience of Orsilla Ives in "The Dancing Girl," though of course framed in romance and adventure, is still a common one, appealing to the experience of people everywhere. The Baker company is doing most excellent work in this, its opening play and has plainly lost none of the old interest and friendship of the Portland people.

"THE PRISONER OF ZENDA."

Scenic artists, stage mechanics and actors have had a busy week preparing for the large production of "The Prisoner of Zenda," which opens on Sunday afternoon at the popular Baker theatre. The Baker company produced it at Morosco Barbank theatre during their recent engagement there for the first time at popular prices and it was one of the largest week's business in the history of the house.

HERE TO HELP HALL IN PROSECUTIONS

Francis J. Heuey of San Francisco, formerly attorney-general for Arizona during the last administration of President Cleveland, has arrived in Portland to assist United States Attorney John H. Hall in the prosecution of Horace G. McKinley, Marie L. Ware, S. A. D. Puter, Guy Huff and Emma L. Watson, indicted for land frauds.

San Francisco is practicing law in San Francisco. In 1891, while chief prosecutor for the territory of Arizona, Mr. Heuey conducted the case against Fred Smith, charged with embezzling office funds to the amount of $50,000. Four true bills were returned against Smith, but he was never convicted, forfeiting his bonds and escaping to Canada.

"Strength and vigor come of good food, duly digested. Force, a ready-to-serve wheat and barley food, adds no burden, but sustains, nourishes, invigorates."

SCHOOLS DOING AS WELL AS THEY CAN

SO SAYS DR. WOODS HUTCHINSON, SECRETARY OF THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH—INSPECTION OF THE SCHOOL BUILDINGS IS NOW BEING MADE.

"Doing as well as they can under the circumstances," is the way Dr. Woods Hutchinson, secretary of the state board of health, refers to the management of the city schools and the sanitary conditions of the buildings. "About half enough money is being expended on our public schools in the way of modern apparatus and adequate buildings," he said. "Other towns that could be lost in Portland have more and better school buildings than this place. Portland claims a population of 130,000. It has 20 public school buildings, or about one to every 4,333 persons. Why, in the little town in Iowa where I formerly resided we had four schools and little more than 5,000 inhabitants."

Dr. Hutchinson and Dr. Hise Cardwell inspected the High School building Wednesday, making a thorough investigation from basement to garret. "We had intended," said Dr. Hutchinson, "visiting one or two more schools Wednesday, but we have not time. The High school and all the buildings so far visited are being conducted, as regards sanitary conditions, in a satisfactory manner, and the principals and teachers in charge are doing as well as they can under the circumstances. We intend visiting about two schools on the East Side and possibly two more on this side, and then we will be in a position to frame our report and make suggestions."

It is understood that the Park school, one of the largest public school buildings in the city, is to be one of the next ones visited by the "smelling committee." The Falling building, where the condition of the closets is causing comment, will be visited by the health officers.

Referring to the well-kept lawns of the Falling building, with the grass unmarked by the print of boisterous feet, Dr. Hutchinson remarked: "School yards have other duties to perform besides growing grass."

WILL RETURN TO THE ANTIPODES

The French ship Jollette, which arrived at the mouth of the river a few days ago from Australia in ballast, has been ordered by her owners to return to the antipodes. Capt. Mascac, master of the vessel, was in Portland yesterday morning, and stated that so soon as he can make the necessary preparations he will sail for Port Pirie, Spencer bay, South Australia, where he will probably load with copper ore.

He says that freight rates are considerably better over there than at the Pacific Coast points, and that is the reason he is going to take the back trail. At the time he left there several months ago there was a poor demand, but the outlook is now promising. It is said that no other but a French vessel could stand the expense of coming back and forth in ballast.

The captain is short of six sailors, and in securing new men attending to other business matters it will probably be a week before he again sets sail for Australia.

The British ship Strathdon completed her grain cargo last night at the Oceanic dock for South Africa. Balfour, Guthrie & Co. are the exporters.

This afternoon the Norwegian ship Almeda is expected to complete her lumber cargo at the Portland mill.

The French bark Montclair finished discharging coal this morning at the gas dock.

RARE BOOKS ON SALE.

(Journal Special Service.) Philadelphia, Nov. 12.—The sale was begun today of the second part of the valuable library of the late Howard T. Goodwin, the private secretary of A. J. Cassatt, who committed suicide some time ago. In his mania for collecting rare books Mr. Goodwin succeeded in getting together one of the most valuable libraries in America, single volumes in the collection being valued at thousands of dollars.

In the lot to be disposed of at the present sale the most important rarity is Rossetti's "Germ." There were only four numbers of "The Germ" published, although under another name the magazine continued for a short time. The scarce first edition of Milton's "Paradise Lost," printed in 1669, is included, as are also the first editions of "Paradise Regained" and "Poems, Etc., Upon Several Occasions."

In addition to these are many scarce first editions of Charles Lamb, Wilke Collins, Dickens, Disraeli and Thackeray.

CHATEAUQUA.

(Journal Special Service.) Madison, Wis., Nov. 12.—Milwaukee and Dubuque are contesting for the location of the Western Catholic Chautauqua before the meeting of the directors in session here today. The Chautauqua was formerly the Columbian Catholic summer school, the sessions of which have been held at various points in Wisconsin and Minnesota. The president of the association is Bishop Messmer of Green Bay, and as a majority of those interested in the movement are likewise residents of Wisconsin, it is considered probable that Milwaukee will be chosen as the location of the summer school.

WILLARD ASSOCIATION BANQUET.

(Journal Special Service.) New York, Nov. 12.—Elaborate arrangements have been made for the thirtieth annual banquet at the Hotel Manhattan tonight of the Emma Willard Association, of which Mrs. Russell Sage is president. The invited guests include Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Mrs. Grover Cleveland, Mrs. John Hay, Senator and Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew and Bishop and Mrs. Henry C. Potter.

LONG PASSAGE BY PROFESSOR KOCH

WAS MORE THAN SIX MONTHS COMING FROM HAMBURG TO COLUMBIA RIVER, INCLUDING SHORT TIME SPENT AT PORT LOS ANGELES—FATALITY AT SEA.

After a passage of six months and 18 days from Hamburg to the Columbia river, the German bark Professor Koch, Captain Schutte, arrived in Portland harbor yesterday afternoon. Sixteen days of that time, however, were spent at Port Los Angeles, discharging a portion of the cargo and an additional delay of four weeks was experienced in coming around Cape Horn.

While off the Horn Richard Voss, a deckboy 18 years of age, fell overboard and was drowned. At the time the accident occurred the unfortunate lad was up in the rigging loosening the sails, when he lost his hold and fell into the sea. Although it was the middle of July a blinding snowstorm was raging, and it was impossible to save the boy. The bark was rapidly drifting at the time and was soon far from the scene of the accident. She was finally swung around, and a thorough search of a day's duration was made, but the body could not be found.

After beating against heavy head winds for a month, the vessel finally rounded the Horn, but owing to a foul bottom, a slow passage was made up the coast to Port Los Angeles. It was October 1 when that port was reached, but no further unusual incidents occurred. Upon discharging 8,500 barrels of cement at Port Los Angeles, the bark again set sail, this time heading for the mouth of the Columbia river. Off the California coast on October 28, the German ship Nauarchois was spoken. She was then 11 days out from Astoria, and was making good progress. She reported all well.

About 20 miles west of Tillamook the Professor Koch was struck by the big storm which began on the afternoon of November 4, and continued with great violence for two days. The vessel hove to and the big sails were lowered, small sails being substituted. Before the storm subsided the vessel was blown almost as far north as Gray's Harbor, although she was 50 miles out to sea. She weathered the storm in a splendid manner, however, coming out of it without a scratch. No other ships were sighted during the gale, but upon reaching the mouth of the river a large number of different kinds of craft were found gathered there.

The Professor Koch is neat and clean as a pin. She is at the Mersey dock, where 4,480 barrels of cement will be discharged. The cargo is consigned to the Portland Grain company.

David Steinberg, a Umatilla county well-to-do resident of Milton, was found near the Starkey prairie country, in the southwestern part of Union county, about 50 miles from La Grande, in a semi-conscious condition with his throat backed from ear to ear. He was still alive when found, was taken to La Grande and will probably recover. He states he cut his own throat while irresponsible from excessive drinking.
