STILL SEARCHING FOR TREASURE

RUINS OF CHINESE CONFLAGRATION BELIEVED TO CONCEAL MORE BODIES AND VALUABLES—FIREMEN ACCUSED OF ROBBERY BUT SAY CELESTIALS DID IT.

The list of fatalities resulting from the disastrous fire of Wednesday night in Chinatown now numbers four, but how many more corpses still lie under the ruins is unknown. There is a general belief that from one to six or eight more bodies will be found when the debris is cleared away. The exact number of missing Chinamen cannot be told even by the Chinese themselves, for they do not keep track of each other. The coolies come and go and no one knows them. Many of the laborers work in the canneries during the summer time, returning to Portland for the winter. They are in and out of their rooms and it is a difficult matter to locate them. Even their friends know nothing about them. It is stated in Chinese circles that one more Celestion is known to be missing, but well-informed Second street residents declare that the list will yet be much larger. Another body was found late yesterday afternoon by searchers in the ruins who were looking for valuables. The corpse was buried under much debris in the northwest corner of the Bacon building. It was taken to the morgue, after being viewed by Deputy Coroner Finley. The feet and hands were terribly burned and the features were so eaten away by the flames as to be unrecognizable. However, friends have identified the body as that of Lee Sue, a cannerly laborer, who returned to Portland two months ago. He was between 45 and 50 years of age and roomed in the ill-fated building where he lost his life. He is said to have been an

GOV. CHAMBERLAIN IS TO RIDE THE GOAT

Tonight will be a gala one for the Woodmen of the World, for besides having 15 candidates to initiate, they also are to make Governor Chamberlain ride the goat, in order to become one of the Webfoot camp. The team which will carry through the initiation is a crack local team of the Woodmen of the World, belonging to the George Washington camp, which has won many prizes in competitive drills on the Pacific coast. The George Washington camp was not named because the "Father of his country" was the first woodman and used the ax on the cherry tree, but the chapter was founded on the birthday of Washington in the year 1895. After the governor and the other candidates have been put through the mill opium fiend and it is believed he was under the influence of the deadly drug at the time of the fire. As exclusively published by The Journal yesterday, the other victims are Mark Yuen, Ho Lung, also known as Ho Tip Gee, and Ah Fae. Their bodies are still at the morgue unclaimed, but it is probable that friends will arrange for their proper burial. A friend of Yuen identified his corpse, which was not burned and said he would telegraph to Merced, Cal., where the dead man has a cousin. Additional cases of losses of money and jewelry came to light today. Chin Luey, a contractor, took money and jewelry valued at $700 from his safe in the building, and claims some one snatched it from him. A similar experience is reported by Chin Wuey who claims his loss is about $200. The Chinese are greatly agitated over the matter and they lay the blame upon the firemen which accusation seems unjust. But that there was robbery there is no doubt, for numerous trunks were found broken open and the valuables gone. There are still a dozen trunks, some of them very strong, lying in the Shercock building, all of which had been forced open. The story of the Monopolians is that after escaping from the burning buildings, they were kept from returning by the police and firemen. Not a few Celestion claim that the firemen made use of this opportunity to loot and ransack, but they have no proof to offer to justify this statement. On the other hand this assertion seems preposterous. The firemen are men of good character, and any overt acts on their part would mean instant dismissal. They were too much engaged in fighting the flames to commit robbery, and at the same time they were under the watchful eyes of their chiefs and the police. Chief Campbell is grieved at the charges and he brands them as false as far as his knowledge goes. He states, however, that should any charges be proved, he will summarily punish any offender. The chief also denies an alleged interview in which he is quoted as saying that it was the extra men who did the stealing. If any stealing at all was done by firemen. The firemen in turn claim that the Chinese robbed one another. They were fighting and struggling with each other, and knowing where their countrymen kept their valuables could easily find the money and jewelry. This, they say, was done by some of the Chinese criminals of whom they say the Chinese have their share. Another theory is

CHOICE LUMBER CARGO COMPLETED

BRITISH SHIP PORT PATRICK READY TO SAIL WITH LUMBER VALUED AT $1,222,400—FOR QUICK LOADING ARTHUR FITZGER ESTABLISHES NEW RECORD.

Lumber-laden for Sydney, Australia, the British ship Port Patrick dropped the British bridges from the Portland mill this afternoon when she will lay at anchor until tomorrow morning, when she will leave for the sea. She has on board 1,215,338 feet of lumber and 2,390 laths, comprising 49,900 feet of timber. The total value of the cargo amounts to $1,222,400. The vessel is not loaded to her full capacity; she could have taken out 1,500,000 feet. It is supposed to be the choicest lumber that has been recently loaded at this port. Every stick of timber is perfectly free of all blemishes, as the importers of Australia will accept no other kind. On account of their being so particularly, loading operations of the Port Patrick were necessarily slow. She began taking on cargo November 19, and a big force of longshoremen has been constantly employed since that date filling her hold. Expert lumber-inspectors were present, and more timber was thrown aside for not being up to the standard than was put on the ship. Considering the care which had to be exercised in selecting the lumber, the agents of the vessel state that she made fairly good despatch. One of the biggest day's work in the history of Portland was done yesterday, so far as loading a lumber carrier is concerned. More than 80,000 feet were placed on board the German ship Arthur Fitzger, which is loading at the Inman-Poulson mill for the west coast of South America. Timber was rolled aboard in a constant stream all day, and when the hour of quitting came it was learned that a new record had been established. Prior to yesterday the biggest day's work represented about 70,000 feet. The Arthur Fitzger is making unusually quick despatch and expects to get away about Sunday. While the South American importers are particular about the grade of lumber sent them, it is said they are not a marker compared with the Australians. Hence, it is possible for the Fitzger to make far better time than did the Port Patrick.

PRETTY GIRL WEDS A CHINESE ACTOR

New York, Dec. 18.—After flying with his sweetheart across the continent to escape the wrath of her parents, Miss Roberta Lang of San Francisco, a pretty white girl, married Lum Tat Tsee in Chinatown last night. Long strings of lanterns decorated the place at 32 Mot street, cymbals clanged and red fire glowed. Lum was an actor in a Chinese theatre of San Francisco. Miss Lang went to the show with a party of friends and was shown behind the scenes and met Lum. Shortly after she became a Sunday-school teacher and Lum joined her class. The girl's parents objected and the elopement followed. TWO DIVORCES. Two divorces were granted by Circuit Judge Frazer this morning. The parties in the cases were Hannah Blumauer against Moses Blumauer and Oscar Wiley against Jennie Wiley. The Blumaers were married in Portland 16 years ago. The Wileys were married in Kansas in 1872, and the defendant deserted his wife in 1900. They have 80 acres of land valued at $200 in Clackamas county, of which Mrs. Wiley asks possession.

GOVERNMENT WILL BUY NOLAN'S BOOK

Washington Bureau of The Journal. Washington, Dec. 18.—Senator Warren reported favorably from the military affairs committee the resolution authorizing the secretary of war to purchase from John T. Nolan of Portland the original manuscripts and copy of the order book of Gen. Arthur St. Clair. AN ASTONISHING LIGHT So Brilliant That Beside It Ordinary Lights Appear as Candles—It Burns the Atmosphere, So to Speak. The most wonderful light invention since the beginning of time has been introduced in Portland by the H. W. Manning Light and Supply company of 43 Third street, this city. The thing is a new style gas burner that actually burns the air, with just enough gas mixed with it to keep the flame alive. In producing light it consumes no more, if as much, gas as the ordinary burner, and produces a light equal to 300 candles. It incandescent electric lights, and two burners equal one gas arc light. Its brilliancy is simply astounding. It is marvelous. It is unbelievable, except when it is seen. And the cost, $2, is so little that it will save the expense of five dollars within a week, and about half the gas bill thereafter. Mr. Manning has these burners lighted in his store each evening, and the public is heartily invited to call and examine them and see for themselves the tremendous revolution they have produced in the lighting business of the world. Every person burning gas will be interested in this light, and Mr. Manning will be pleased to show and explain it to all who may desire information. When the H. W. Manning Light and Supply company opened its doors in Portland a few years ago it occupied a small room on Stark street between Front and First. It has enlarged its quarters half a dozen times since then, and today is dealing in about everything that lights the universe. Its gasoline lamps may be seen in all towns and cities of the Northwest, until they have almost driven the larger kind of kerosene lamps out of existence. They have become very popular, indeed, all over the country, and the demand for them is becoming enormous. These lights are a great comfort to the home, especially to those fond of an evening reading. They are a delight to this class of their owners.

WENT 'WAY BACK AND SAT DOWN

Rose Mortensen had revenge in the police court today when Mary C. Dill was fined $10 for using abusive language. Yesterday Rose paid $10 fine. The women are neighbors, living on Grant street. The testimony showed that vile language of the most disgusting nature had been used by both sides, and Judge Hogue did not hesitate to fine Mrs. Dill this morning. "I want to warn both of you," he said, "that if you don't stop this quarrelling or move away from each other, it will be costly for you if you again appear in this court." Mrs. Dill was very indignant after she was fined. When Judge Hogue began another case she stepped up to the witness stand and said loudly: "Say, Judge, I am going to appeal this case. I can't stand any work like this." "You sit down," said the court, and Mrs. Dill narrowly escaped another fine for contempt.
