BOARD OF TRADE AT ANNUAL FEAST

PAST EFFORTS AND SUCCESSES ARE REVIEWED AND FUTURE ACRIEVEMENTS ARE TOASTED-ENTRUSIASTIC UNION FOR IN-CREASED RESULTS IS GAINED.

About 90 persons, members and their friends, attended the annual banquet of the board of trade in the Portland hotel last night. Gratification over the splendid showing of the city last year was expressed and confidence in her future growth to power and place among the arge cities of the world was the keynote of every toast. The Portland board of trade is one of the strongest commercial odies in the West, and has done much toward the uphuilding of the city. There seems to be a strong sentiment to have all the commercial bodies of Portland work together for the betterment of their city.

The Apastmaster was Retiring President F. E. Beach, who reviewed the work of the board. He spoke of its small beginning and how it has grown with the city. He closed by introducing the new president, I. D. Hammond, who responded to the toast, "The Work of the Portland Board of Trade for the Coming Year." President Hammond thanked the board for the office they had given him, and pledged himself to put forth his best efforts toward the good of the board. The toast meant for Gov-ernor Chamberlain, who telegraphed his commissioner. Mr. Bailey spoke of when he first knew the state 25 years ago, and what it is at the present day. GOES BROKE TO SATISFY CREDITORS

CHARLES B. WADE OF PENDLETON AND WIFE GIVE UP ALL THEIR PROPERTY-UNFORTUNATE VEN-TURE IN BAKER MINES CAUSED HIS FINANCIAL RUIN.

(Journal Special Service.) day afternoon Charles B. Wade, who has been cashier of the First National bank in this city for the last seven years, turned over all his property to satisfy his creditors. Wade failed for probably $250,000. It is estimated that creditors will not get more than 20 per cent when final settlement is made.
All Wade's property was turned over to W. F. Matlock and T. C. Taylor, and the former in a statement made today said that he did not believe the liabilities would reach more than $150,000. The failure is considered one of the biggest ever recorded in Eastern Oregon and with more people involved. Mr. Wade was a heavy investor in Baker mines. It was the Golconda that ruined him. In this mine alone he had $100,000 invested. Eastern capitalists were negotiating for this property at the price of $2.600,000, but two weeks ago they backed down. Mr. Wade was a stockholder in many Eastern Oregon ranches. Col. J. H. Baley is receiver and C. H. Carter attorney. With her husband, Mrs. Wade assigned all the property in her name. The couple have been residents of this city for 21 years.

When the news of the failure leaked out last Monday, Levi Ankeny was sumned from Walla Walla, but failed to appear as he was not at his home. The soon stopped when it became known that Mr. Wade's business interests were separate from those of the bank.

cers are paid, as provided by section He closed by remarking "that that hostilities had actually begun be- 2935 of said codes and statutes." By those who question the validity of precedent is established if the legislature is permitted to appropriate county funds at will for the compensation of state officials. Their salaries are properly payable by the state, and if the legislature regards their compensation as inadequate, the remedy is to draw upon the state treasury. In this specific case it is pointed out also that Multnomah couffis still saddled with an indebtedness of some $300,000, despite the retrenchments and economies of the present county administration. Upon this indebtedness the county is paying six per cent interest, and the contemplated increase in the salaries of the circuit judges will add annually $4,000, with interest, to the county's burden.

Emergency Clause Questioned. The second and last section of the act is as follows:

"Whereas the compensation of judges in judicial districts composed of one county only is, under the present law, inadequate, an emergency is declared, and this act shall take effect upon its approval by the governor."

While this section declares an "emer gency," it does not declare in specific terms that the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety requires that the act should go into effect at once. This omission, it is contended is serious. Lawyers differ in their inter pretation of the recent decision of the supreme court upon the referendum high in authority said he understood amendment to the constitution, and some such a message had been received in of them are of the opinion that the emergency clause of the act in question is not sufficient, under that decision, to suspend the referendum. If this contention is correct, the circuit judges are not entitled to draw increased salary until 90 days have elapsed from the gov-ernor's approval of the act, even though the act be valid in other respects.

It is generally conceded that the sal-ary of the circuit judges should be increased, and the action of the legislature is questioned simply on the ground that any additional salary should be paid by the state and not by the county. The four circuit judges now in office in this county are said to have introduced many economies in the administration of the

THE CHARGE THAT CHIEF OF PO-LICE HUNT COLLECTED FEES PROM SLOT MACHINE MEN ON

By resolution adopted by the city council yesterday, a committee was apunder an understanding that their fines were equivalent to a license to violate the law for a month. Councilmen Al-bee, Flegel, Sharkey, Sigler and Rumeweek. All of them are among the num- low ebb. ber that suggested to the mayor the retiring of Chief of Police Hunt.

Councilman Flegel said:
"If the chief made the promise as inducement that machines could be op-erated by paying fines, he did so in opposition to the policy of the mayor, who that no money slot devices would be permitted to run under any arrangement. One thing is certain, that money slot n operation without the knowledge of the mayor. Chief Hunt says that he did not know this, and could not get any evidence to convict them. We will put all the slot machine men under oath, and learn whether he made a direct promise, or what the conversation was by which they arrived at the conclusion that they would not be molested. It foes not look reasonable on the face of it that men would give up large sums of money for a privilege unless they had some guarantee that it would be granted. The range of our investigation will probably cover the entire sub-ject, and all classes of machines will be examined to distinguish between the money and the trade machines. One result may be the closing of all machines. If it is shown that the chief has not kept faith with the mayor it

Chief Hunt promised the slot machine men they could run under the fine sys The closing of slot machines had the mayor had previously at various times emphatically declared himself as opposed to this form of gambling. I don't see where the machine men have any great kick coming. They have enjoyed the privilege of running for many months and have never paid a cent. The chief may have figured that in view of all the circumstances it would be no more than right that they pay for the favors that had in the past been extended to them. To accomplish this re-sult he may have been diplomatic and expressed himself in a manner that was optimistic for the future of the ma-chines. If, however, he made the open promise that machines would be allowed to run on the monthly fine system, he overstepped his authority, and will have to reckon with Mayor Williams."

"All we desire to do is to get at the facts," said Councilman Albee, chairman of the investigating committee. The committee will be organized as soon as possible.

Story of the Machine Men.

Frank Griffiths said: "I never had a promise from Chief Hunt that I could run slot machines on the money system by paying a monthly fine. I had a talk with him, and he gave me to under-stand that the machines would probably be recognized as gambling devices and be treated the same as other gambling games, which, under the policy of the administration, are paying fines. He gave out the impression that the slot machine men would not be discrimi-nated against."

E. O. Magoon said: "I would not have paid to the city $360 unless I had in-ferred from the talk I had with Chief Hunt that slot machines would be permitted to continue. He did not say so in that many words, but said it was the policy to get money for the city in order to build a new jail, and as other forms of gambling were being fined, it was no more than right that slot machines should also donate. He stated that he would not discriminate against the machines as long as other forms of gaming were allowed. He fixed the fine at $10 a month for each machine, and went so far as to have me make out a list of the places where my machines were operated, and agreed that to save complications that I should pay the fines for all of them and fix it with my customers on any basis that they would agree to."

A representative of the machine company at which S. Morton Cohn is the head, said: "We had no understanding with Chief Hunt that we would be permitted to run. He notified us that we would have to pay a fine of $10 for each machine, and that the basis of the fine would be that sum each month. We paid our money and were then noti-fied to close up. If he had told us that the machines would not be allowed to run we would naturally have closed before paying the money."

Several days will be required to make the necessary repairs. The Leona ran between Portland and Independence and during her enforced idleness the steamer Metlako of the Regulator line will take her place. She went out on the run this morning.

The Oregon City Transportation com-pany has been experiencing a continuous round of hard luck during the past few weeks during which time all of its boats have been more or less disabled. First the Altona was in a collision with the Modoc at a point about 50 miles above Portland, which, necessitated her being taken out on the ways to undergo extensive repairs. Before she was in shape to resume business the Pomons struck a submerged log and was sunk. She was recently raised and is now in the Portland shipvards, where she will remain about a month being put in run ning condition again. The Altona has just come off the ways and is once back on the Albany-Corvallis run.

SICK CHILD GAINS FATHER'S FREEDOM

The story of a sick child and a desti-tute family touched the heart of Police Captain Moore last night and he released J. B. Morris, who was serving time on the city rockpile. His time would have expired today but as the attending physician reported that Morris' little girl was dying and wanted to see her father Morris was turned loose last night. The story showed that the sick child was continually crying for her father, while the tired mother was in destitute circum stances, so Captain Moore felt justified in sending Morris home to his family after he made a solemn promise to go home and take care of them.

Morris was fined $5 Tuesday on charge of drunkenness, he and several companions having been in a row on Columbia street. At the same time J. C. Taft was found guilty, but because of the plea of his wife that she and her three little children were destitute Judge Hogue suspended sentence on Taft,

SAYS BOND ISSUE WAS NOT REGULAR

Asserting that the amount is excesive, and proceedings relative to the bidding irregular, suit to enjoin the is-suance of $100,000 street improvement bonds, against Mayor Williams, City Au-ditor Devlin, and members of the council, was filed in the state circuit court yesterday by Attorney George W. Joseph. In his complaint, Mr. Joseph states that bids were called for December 11, which he says was wrong because the time for the fling of applications for the payment of assessments had not then expired. He also contends that no bond docket was made up of any assessment upon which the issuance of bonds could be issued. Had the proceedings been regu-lar, he avers, more bids for the bonds would have been submitted.
