Secretary Martin and his three assistants are very busy registering dele-gates, and it will be tomorrow morning before the rush is over.

The cities that would like to entertain the livestock and wool growers next year are: El Paso, Tex.; Detroit, Mich.: San Jose, Cal., and Denver, Colo. Which will secure the conventions is a questions that is being asked.

El Paso is expected to put up the strongest fight for the 1905 meeting and it is more than likely that the Texas town will win. However, Denver is very strong, and if it does not withdraw from the race the battle is apt to be very spirited.

The latest city to request the con vention is Detroit. Secretary Martin of the national association received letter from the Detroit board of trade Sunday morning, saying that if the stockmen will come to Michigan next year they will receive the best of treat-

It has been mentioned that Denver would like to be the permanent meeting place of the stockmen, but this plan, it is said, would be impracticable, because the organization draws its membership from various parts of the United States, where the conditions and desires of the several localities are not the same, and were any one place determined upon as the permanent convention town, the other cities would feel they had been discriminated against.

Reception to Ladies.

Preparations for the entertainment of the visiting ladies at a reception to be held in the Portland hotel, from 3 to 5 o'clock, on next Wednesday afternoor are being made by the reception committee. A second meeting of the committee

WHAT AND WHY.

Why should substitutes for Scott's Emulsion be refused?

Because they do not begin to offer the equivalent of foodvalue contained in Scott's Emulsion.

Why should special care be taken to avoid so-called wines, cordials and extracts of cod liver oil?

Because they contain a large percentage of alcohol and afford only temporary stimulation.

Does not Scott's Emulsion also stimulate the body?

Yes, but it is stimulation through nourishment.

What vital food principle is involved in the action of Scott's Emulsion?

Direct and perfect nourishment without tax on the stomach.

The livestock officials have the matter under consideration and will report their decision Wednesday. The Astoria & Columbia River raiload officials believe that the excursion would be of great benefit to both the visitors and the state. That part of Oregon would not be visited by the delegates unless some such inducements were offered. In order to accomplish the greatest good the railroad is willing to make very liberal concession as to the expense which would be incurred. The local committee is asked to bear a portion of this expense.

'Looking for your shoes to give them a shine,' came the reply, which satisfied Mr. Andrews, since he considers shoe-shin-ing a legitimate occupation. This morning Mr. Andrews found that he was shy just $32.50 and of course he concludes that he must have paid that amount for a shine.

SAYS SHE'S NEITHER WIDOW NOR HEIR

Objections to the final account of William G. Beck, administrator of the estate of J. W. Nickum, were filed in the county court this morning by Ida May Feller, a daughter of Nickum. She alleges that Mrs. May E. Nickum never was the wife of J. W. Nickum, and that Walter and Myrtle Nickum, two of his children, are not heirs at law. She de-clares that she is the sole heir. The money in the hands of the executor amounts to $728 and 19 acres of land in Multnomah county belong to the estate. The heirs named in the final report of the administrator are: Mrs. Mary E. Nickum and Walter and Myrtle Nickum of Portland and Ida May Feller London, Jan. 11 .- The prosecution of Whitaker Wright opened in the King's bench today with a great crowd of those interested in the defunct London Globe corporation in attendance.

There have been great changes in the style of goods, the materials used in have assurances from many other ortheir manufacture and the manner of ganizations that they will become memdoing business. Cotton has come into much more general use and imitations of is for a very flourishing membership bewoolen goods are common. Every piece fore the time for another annual meetof woolen goods is made to serve up again and again, and over and over, each time being picked up, renovated and foreign substances burned out.

"Therefore, instead of actual consumption of each year's growth of wool, as soon as the same is made into clothes, and the garments therefrom cast aside as 'worn out,' we are really losing from actual visible supply of wool only that small percentage which goes off in dust, or is washed away in the manipulation of making old woolens into new fabrics. Hence it is, that notwithstanding the great increase in population, the growth of the nation, and the ability of the consumers (never greater) to buy plenty of clothing, and good clothing if they prefer it, the percentage of new wool used compared with the total yardage of goods worn, seems to be growing less rather than more, and wool is lower in the markets than a large majority of the flockmasters feel they can afford to Tariff Meeded, He Thinks.

President Warren said that although the number of sheep in this country is decreasing, the production of wool is so great as to keep prices very low. "To remove the tariff en wool," he declared, "would be to practically blot out our flocks, compel our manufacturers to depend entirely on foreign-grown wool,

The necessity of securing proper protection for the sheep men in all national legislation upon the forestry question, and the importance of intelligent action to prevent the ravages of scab, were touched upon briefly. The speaker strong-ly deprecated any antagonism between the Wool Growers' and the Wool Manu-Oregon City, respondent, vs. Oregon & and concerted action. He commented at California Railway Co., appellant; from some length upon the shoddy bill now nding before congress. In conclusion

We are reasonably certain that pres ent protective tariff legislation will not be disturbed and therefore we apprehend no violent or sudden change in the industry. With comparative freedom from apprehension on this score we should have time and inclination to seek better methods of preparing our wool for market and more satisfactory methods of marketing; a better adjustment of forest reserve conditions and better and closer range relations; a better method for complete eradication of disease, and by all means, better rates and increased facilities for shipping our product. these subjects I commend to your attention and action."

During the morning session tardy or belated delegates began arriving singly and in squads and quietly took their seats. President Warren's address, read from manuscript, was intently listened At its close it was warmly ap-

The secretary's report follows: "As the new constitution and by-law permitted, for the first time, the receiving of association as members, we have devoted a large amount of attention to wards this work, and while results as yet are not large, we have reason to expect that within a short time we shall nclude in our membership roster the names of practically all of the Western associations. During the latter part of the year we have taken into membership quite a number of state and local organizations, principally in the West, and bers in the near future, and the outlook

Protests Against Porest Reserves.

"One of the first subjects brought the attention of your secretary was vast number of complaints regarding the wholesale establishment of forest reserves and the general turning out of sheep from the areas so occupied by the government. The complaints coming to my office indicated much inconvenience and some actual loss to the flockmasters because of this policy on the part of the national government. In the absence of any well-defined policy on the part of this association there was very little that we could do. All the complaints were referred through the president of this association to the proper authorities, and during the visit of President Roosevelt to the West last spring your president was able to call his attention to some of the conditions which our members have objected. As a result an order was issued to eliminate the non-forest portions of the reserves, as far as possible. Conference With Manufacturers. 'As there has been much complaint in regard to our rather primitive methods of marketing wool, your secretary began correspondence with officers of the Na-tional Association of Wool Manufacturers, with a view to discovering, if possible, the possibility of making improvements that would be of benefit to our members. This correspondence - ultimately led to the arrangement of a conference between committees of the two associations. One of the matters considered at this meeting was the socalled 'Grosvenor shoddy bill,' now pending in the lower house of congress. While understand that this proposed legislation originated through sheepmen in the National Livestock association, and was presented and urged by that organization, this association has never formally acted in regard to it or considered it. Inasmuch as the National Association of Wool Manufacturers has exhibited great objection to this measure, the committee on conference requested from the members of that association at the conference, arguments and reasons for their objection to the measure The arguments presented appeared so reasonable, and were so beyond the ability of your committee to refute, that on behalf of this association we requested from the manufacturers a proposition for shoddy legislation according to their ideas of what might be done and yet not damage the manufacturers, as they insist the proposed Grosvenor bill would if enacted into law.

"The word 'shoddy' apparently means two very different things to the manufacturer and woolgrower. To the manufacturer it simply means wool of a certain kind, and to the average woolgrower and layman it means old, dirty and filth-laden rags, so worn and decayed as to be unfit for any proper use for mankind. Even the members of depend entirely on foreign-grown wood, and finally to raise the price of woolen this association on that committee, goods to consumers without benefit to many of them for years engaged in the wool industry, were obliged to continuously from sheep and wool growfess that they had never seen shoddy, and they were shown some, and the lesson learned was so interesting that we have asked the secretary of the manufacturers' organization to present this object lesson to the delegates at this convention.

Misrepresentation Stopped. "It will be thus seen that the conference finally reached common ground in the agreement that misrepresentation lation to reach that result, upon which could join us in active support. Their objections to the Grosvenor bill they believe would seriously hamper their industry and be indirectly reflected upon the woolgrowing industry. Your committee expressed the opinion that no such result was aimed at by the promoters of the Grosvenor bill, agreed to bring the matter to the attention of the association at this convention. The annual report of the treasurer, Mr. A. J. Knollin, who was unable to be present, was read by Mr. Johnson. It have done nine-tenths of the work and

JANUARY EXPENSES EXCEED $30,000

The estimates for the month of January have been filed with City Auditor Devlin by the heads of the various municipal departments and aggregate an outlay of $34,887.50. The various expenditures are divided by the departments as follows:

Street cleaning, $4,057.50; city engineer, $14,400; police, $7,806; fire, $9,095; plumbing inspector, $225; pound, $204; city treasurer, $530; city auditor, $1,900; janitor's department, $670. to ship their fruit 2,000 miles. The paper also spoke of the competition between Eastern and Western fruit growers, and considered it to be a small actor as the Western fruit is an expensive luxury to most consumers, while the East filled the market with an inferior fruit at a moderate price. The New York apple market was given as an example of the scarcity of Western fruit, the writer having spent two days in the wholesale district seeking Pacific coast apples and failing to find a single box. Getting Acquainted.

After the reading of this paper the convention adjourned until 1:30 p. m., and the rest of the morning was spent in renewing acquaintances and also talking fruit.

Wandering delegates with grips full of collars and specked apples were seen wandering about in perplexity until signs were placed telling where the convention was being held.

Prunes a Big Subject.

Prunes will be a big subject, and the tomorrow afternoon will the manufacturers would try to present bring out one of the warmest debates of at this meeting a suggestion for legis- the convention, but apples also are receiving attention, and from opinions passed by Hon. E. L. Bot Apple Talk. The fruitgrowers say that the wholesale men receive too great a share of the profits, and cite the New York retail market and the Oregon fruitman's receipts as proof conclusive. Some time during the convention a discussion will be held on the best means to boost the apple price, and when it does come there will be some lurid speeches made by suffering applegrowers, who think they received a tenth of the profit

The Elaborate Badges.

The badges of the officers are some what striking, not to say startling consist of a long colored ribbon, plentifully befringed with gold surmounted by a bronze bar with the name of the office, and are further orna-mented with a medallion showing a plate of fruit painted in natural colors. For strikingness of design and florid coloring, also for impressive pomp and gay ornamentation, these insignia cast a deep shade over even the rabbit-footsombrero badge of the St. Joseph dele gates to the national stock convention. Officers of the association, adorned with the symbol of their power, unconsciously step a little higher and a little slower than the common delegates, who have only a small ribbon badge with a smaller fruit medallion.

BY ELECTROCUTION DOG SAVES A LIFE

On Saturday night a number of live electric wires were down in various parts of the city. At Thirteenth and Burnside a dog belonging to Edward Gloss was electrocuted and probably saved the life of his mistress by giving his death struggle. The fire department was called out and one of the engines became entangled in a wire and a display of fireworks followed. Fortunately none of the horses or men came in contact with the deadly circuit.

The cause of the disturbance was the high wind which prevailed Saturday night between 10 and 11 o'clock. The wind broke or crossed the wires, The wind which reached Portland was the ragged edge of the hurricane which was blowing on the coast. The velocity attained on the coast was an average of about 70 miles an hour with a maximum probably 100 miles. MASS FOR THE VICTIMS.
